Taxpayers' bill on unit plan vote mounts

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The unit school district controversy in Elk Grove Township cost taxpayers at least $136,885 and maybe as much as a quarter of a million dollars.

High School Dist. 214 and Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 spent $136,885 on attorneys' and consultants' fees during the battle over whether a unit district should be formed in Elk Grove Township.

If funds used for printing, duplicating, and mailing flyers were added up along with administrators' time spent on the issue, the total cost to the two districts probably would amount to a quarter of a million dollars, Paul Kucharski, Dist. 59 Board of Education member, estimated.

"IT'S A SHAME that all of this money had to be spent for an effort that was proven not worth it by the voters," said Kucharski, referring to the 2-1 defeat of the April 9 unit district referendum. "The money could have done a lot for our children."

Dist. 214 officials said, for example, that the $136,885 would have outfitted 27 football teams, operated and maintained at least three swimming pools for a year, outfitted 650 band members, hired more than nine teachers, supported four bilingual programs or more than doubled Dist. 214's horticulture program.

Not all the money spent during the controversy came from taxes. Another $20,400 was spent by organizations campaigning for or against the referendum.

The group supporting the unit district, led by the committee of 10 Dist. 59 residents who filed the petitions seeking formation of the unit district, spent about $3,000, committee chairman Thomas Guy said.

THE ELK GROVE Assn. of Industry and Commerce spent about $4,400 to support the referendum, association Pres. James Lancaster said.

The big spender was the opposition group, Citizens Opposed to the Formation of the Unit District. Chairman Bernard Lee said his group put about $13,000 toward their effort to defeat the referendum.

With the total figure still undetermined, 214 has spent $78,859 on unit district attorney and consultant fees and Dist. 59 has spent $58,026.

A Dist. 214 lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of allowing only Dist. 59 residents to vote in the April 9 unit district referendum is pending in Illinois Appellate Court and will add to legal fees in Dist. 214 and Dist. 59.

In supporting the unit district proposal, the Dist. 59 Board of Education paid the law firm of Reid, Ochsenschlager, Murphy and Hupp $45,009 to research and argue the case at seven public hearings in the fall and to defend the board in lawsuits initiated by Dist. 214, said Arthur Perry, director of administrative services.

CONSULTANT FEES have cost Dist. 59 taxpayers $13,017, with most of this money paid to William R. Hazard, dean of Northwestern University's School of Education, and to the Illinois School Consulting Service,

Big cars built with small appetites

With a family of nine, Robert J. Guss of Palatine buys a car with one thing in mind.

"The major concern has been fitting the family into the car," said Guss, Village president-elect. "The consideration of miles per gallon up to this point has not been of major concern."

All that is likely to change if President Carter's energy proposal passes Congress with a tax on gas-guzzling cars. The tax would apply to all cars that don't get 19 miles per gallon by 1978, 21 miles per gallon by 1980 and 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985.

GUSS'S FORD LTD station wagon gets only 15 miles per gallon according to the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. If Guss were to buy the same car in 1978, he would have to pay $179 tax, based on Carter's energy proposal.

But Guss and other people with large families don't have to worry about paying a large tax to get a large car. Plenty of the big American cars aren't gas guzzlers anymore, at least according to Carter's standards.

The Pontiac Safari Wagon, for example, gets 19 miles per gallon with an eight-cylinder engine.

In the mid-size wagons, the Dodge Aspen wagon with a manual transmission and six-cylinder engine gets 20 miles per gallon as does the Plymouth Volare wagon.

Both Chevy and Ford vans, which seat up to 12 people, get 21 miles per gallon with a six-cylinder engine and manual transmission. That mileage is sufficient to meet even the 1980 federal standards.

MANY DEALERS SAY they will have no problem meeting the proposed standards, since most of their models already get 19 miles per gallon.

"We have 26 engine-transmission combinations available, and probably we don't have more than four or five that do not already exceed the minimum requirement," said Bill Bechtle, general manager of Tom Todd Chevrolet in Wheeling.

Chevy boasts the best gas mileage on a domestic car, with a EPA rating of 33 miles per gallon on the four-cylinder Chevette.

By the time next year's models hit the showroom, Bechtle said he expects even more of the larger cars will meet the mileage standards. He said there are plans to "downsize" some models, reducing their weight without cutting back on interior room.

PAUL SCHWEET, SALES manager for Chalet Ford in Arlington Heights, said Ford also plans to downsize some of its cars. "For example, they knocked 2,500 pounds off the 1977 T-bird last year and its only seven inches smaller," he said.

Pontiac has about the most efficient eight-cylinder engine, getting 19 miles per gallon. "We've never gotten the gas mileage that we're getting now," said Charlie Manian, new car sales manager for Bill Sullivan Pontiac in Arlington Heights.

When asked about the 1985 standards, Bechtle said that was too far down the road to make any predictions. "I think it is a little distant to be making much of a prediction on that," he said.

Contract for nuclear reactor canceled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shifting further away from nuclear power, the administration said Thursday it is canceling all contracts for a plutonium breeder reactor and adding $37.5 million to the budget for conservation, solar power, coal and geothermal programs.

President Carter, however, ended a 1974 ban on government sales of reactor fuel at home and abroad and called for a new uranium enrichment program to create such fuel.

Energy officials said the nation will need between 300 and 400 atomic power plants by the end of the century, more than five times the number now in use, but 100 fewer than the Ford administration predicted last year.

THE PRESIDENT'S new spending plan for fiscal 1978 would add $4.5 million to conservation research, $12 million to coal and natural gas programs, $10 million to solar heating and solar electric efforts and $10 million for heating homes with geothermal energy.

It also would provide $1 million for a one-year study of the environmental impact caused by increasing amounts of carbon dioxide from burning fossil fuels.

Money for those increases would be provided by a $176 million cut in nuclear spending, including the indefinite cancellation of the breeder reactor demonstration and of programs related to the reactor fuel cycle.

The revisions to Carter's spending plans for fiscal 1978, the second set of changes he has ordered in energy programs since taking office, reflected the new emphasis of strict fuel conservation.

They also underscored Carter's determination to lead the way in preventing nuclear weapons proliferation by abandoning plans to use plutonium in reactors, a fuel that also can be used to produce atomic bombs.

ROBERT FRI, acting head of the Energy Research and Development Administration, said his agency is canceling all hardware contracts for the planned Clinch River plutonium breeder demonstration reactor at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Fri said killing the Clinch River project allowed $62 million to be taken from the breeder budget in addition to $85 million Carter removed when he put the program in limbo in February and transferred it to other energy research. He said the remaining $589 million would be used for nonplutonium research.

Carter also dropped plans for a $4.4 million gaseous diffusion enrichment plant at Portsmouth, Ohio, in favor of a $4.1 million plant in Portsmouth or Oak Ridge that would use the once-secret centrifuge enrichment process.

Fri said centrifuge enrichment would save vast quantities of energy.

To further the goal of nonproliferation, Carter ordered ERDA to open the books once more to contracts for government supplies of enriched uranium fuel. The President hoped that by offering fuel for the lifetime of reactors at home and abroad he could reduce the drive for other nations to get enrichment plants.

Big, yellow taxi to be a white elephant?

The big yellow taxi may be as extinct as the dinosaur if President Carter's energy package is passed into law, cab operators say.

And the comfortable limousine trip to the airport will be a real luxury ride.

That was the message voiced by cab and limousine company officials Thursday — men who are in the business of providing public transportation but who receive no government subsidies for their vehicles or gasoline.

"IF THE PROGRAM goes through, there will be an absolute necessity for smaller cars," said a spokesman for the Checker Taxi Co. Inc. in Chicago. "It will be more inconvenient for the passengers. The Checker cars we use now, fitted with jump seats, can carry six passengers. No small car can do that."

Carter proposed a surtax of $449 on full-size, gas guzzling cars next year. The premium could increase over 10 years to $2,488 per car.

"In this business, we can't run a small car," says Ton Varchetto, operator of the On Time Limousine Service in Rolling Meadows. "The full size car is all we can use. If they put the surtax on, we'll just have to pay it. We won't be pleased, but I don't know what else we can do."

Varchetto has five Cadillac and Lincoln limousines which he admits are "big gas guzzlers" getting approximately 10 miles per gallon.

"A person who is going to use a limousine does so because of its comfort," he says.

EVEN MORE worrisome is Carter's proposals for a standby gasoline tax of 5 cents a gallon every year that total gasoline consumption is not reduced by 10 per cent.

The Checker cab company uses about 6 million gallons of gasoline a year, the spokesman said. "If we're forced to pay a $500 surcharge on the full-size car, and if gasoline goes up 50 cents a gallon, there is no way we could stay in business," he said.

"If gas goes up, it obviously won't do us a lot of good," said Varchetto. "On the other hand, it might help our business a little if the average person who doesn't use a limousine now decides he's going to cut down on his driving."

A 25-cent a gallon tax on gasoline will add about $1.10 to the cost of a limousine ride between Barrington and O'Hare Airport, Varchetto said.

ROBERT E. BIRKS, president of the Arlington Heights City Co., wrote to Carter on April 15 to say that the taxi business "is completely overlooked" when it comes to government assistance programs for transportation.

Our industry has been providing the only means of public transportation available in 85 per cent of the communities in this country," Birks said.

"The taxi cab industry has comparable problems with other public transportation facilities, such as inflation, regulation, subsidies to mass transit and unfair taxes. Where we differ from other public transportation is that they have received relief in these areas and we have not," he said.

Birks, who is vice president of the Illinois Taxi Cab and Livery Assn., said he hopes federal energy laws would include an exemption for Taxis, but, realistically, he said he does not expect it.

The state fire marshal's office has ordered a Schaumburg Park District building where about 100 youngsters attend preschool classes closed at the end of May unless the district corrects several fire code violations. Village and state inspectors said Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr., must be equipped with a sprinkler system or smoke and heat detectors to allow the district's Tiny Tot program to continue. Fire doors with overhead exit signs, an emergency lighting system and a new boiler door and improved fire extinguishers also are required. The park district leases the old residence from the village for $1 a year. It has been used for preschool and youth programs for the past 10 years.

Chicago women charged in theft

Two North Chicago women were arrested in Buffalo Grove Thursday for stealing $314 in meat, children's clothing and groceries from three area food stores and a drug store. Charged with three counts of theft was Maureen Bryson, 28, of 1508 Elizabeth St. Carol J. Franks, of 1645 Kennedy Ave., was charged with four counts of theft. The two were apprehended by Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki and Patrolman Charles Weidner when the manager of Eagle Food Store in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads, saw Ms. Bryson leave the store with merchandise she had not paid for, investigators said. A search of the car and women uncovered meat and other merchandise stolen from three stores. The women were released Thursday night on a $1,000 bond each and are scheduled to appear May 24 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Boyfriend wins delay of girlfriend's abortion

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—An unwed expectant mother Thursday was ordered by the state Supreme Court not to have an abortion until her spurned boyfriend can present legal pleas for the child's right to birth.

"It is not something you should go and step on like an ant," said John Rothenberger, 23, the father of the unborn child.

Justice Robert Clifford issued a temporary injunction barring Wendy Chasalow, 19, Morristown, from having an abortion until the full court can consider the case on Monday. Miss Chasalow had been scheduled to have the abortion Thursday.

ROTHENBERGER of Orange asked the court to appoint him as guardian to protect the child's rights.

"She doesn't like to see animals killed. But now she wants to kill the baby," Rothenberger, an unemployed construction worker, said at a news conference in his attorney's office.

Asked earlier if he wanted to marry Miss Chasalow, Rothenberger replied, "I already asked her twice since I found out she was pregnant."

He said he appealed to the court because he said "a father's duty is to protect his child from the moment of conception."

Rothenberger said he might not have gone to court to block the abortion if Miss Chasalow had spent more time making the decision. He said, however, she was under pressure from her family.

"SHE HAS A family to lose and a college education to lose. She has just me to gain. She has a baby to gain, too, a human life," Rothenberger said.

"I believe she said to me, 'I don't want to be tied down with it,' " Rothenberger said.

Miss Chasalow, a student at Trenton State College, could not be reached for comment.

State orders tots' classroom fixed

The state fire marshal's office has ordered a Schaumburg Park District building where about 100 youngsters attend preschool classes closed at the end of May unless the district corrects several fire code violations. Village and state inspectors said Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr., must be equipped with a sprinkler system or smoke and heat detectors to allow the district's Tiny Tot program to continue. Fire doors with overhead exit signs, an emergency lighting system and a new boiler door and improved fire extinguishers also are required. The park district leases the old residence from the village for $1 a year. It has been used for preschool and youth programs for the past 10 years.

Chicago women charged in theft

Two North Chicago women were arrested in Buffalo Grove Thursday for stealing $314 in meat, children's clothing and groceries from three area food stores and a drug store. Charged with three counts of theft was Maureen Bryson, 28, of 1508 Elizabeth St. Carol J. Franks, of 1645 Kennedy Ave., was charged with four counts of theft. The two were apprehended by Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki and Patrolman Charles Weidner when the manager of Eagle Food Store in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads, saw Ms. Bryson leave the store with merchandise she had not paid for, investigators said. A search of the car and women uncovered meat and other merchandise stolen from three stores. The women were released Thursday night on a $1,000 bond each and are scheduled to appear May 24 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Boyfriend wins delay of girlfriend's abortion

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—An unwed expectant mother Thursday was ordered by the state Supreme Court not to have an abortion until her spurned boyfriend can present legal pleas for the child's right to birth.

"It is not something you should go and step on like an ant," said John Rothenberger, 23, the father of the unborn child.

Justice Robert Clifford issued a temporary injunction barring Wendy Chasalow, 19, Morristown, from having an abortion until the full court can consider the case on Monday. Miss Chasalow had been scheduled to have the abortion Thursday.

ROTHENBERGER of Orange asked the court to appoint him as guardian to protect the child's rights.

"She doesn't like to see animals killed. But now she wants to kill the baby," Rothenberger, an unemployed construction worker, said at a news conference in his attorney's office.

Asked earlier if he wanted to marry Miss Chasalow, Rothenberger replied, "I already asked her twice since I found out she was pregnant."

He said he appealed to the court because he said "a father's duty is to protect his child from the moment of conception."

Rothenberger said he might not have gone to court to block the abortion if Miss Chasalow had spent more time making the decision. He said, however, she was under pressure from her family.

"SHE HAS A family to lose and a college education to lose. She has just me to gain. She has a baby to gain, too, a human life," Rothenberger said.

"I believe she said to me, 'I don't want to be tied down with it,' " Rothenberger said.

Miss Chasalow, a student at Trenton State College, could not be reached for comment.

Shocked patients defend Foy in license suspension

by BILL HILL

"No office hours today" read the sign posted on Dr. Hayward Foy's office at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Patients who called were told that Dr. Foy was not in and to "check again in a couple of days."

And all Dr. Foy was saying is "we have to see what the lawyers can do."

Word that the 77-year-old general practioner's medical license had been suspended Wednesday for allegedly dispensing weight reducing drugs to teen-agers without a proper medical examination had not reached his patients who could not believe the charges.

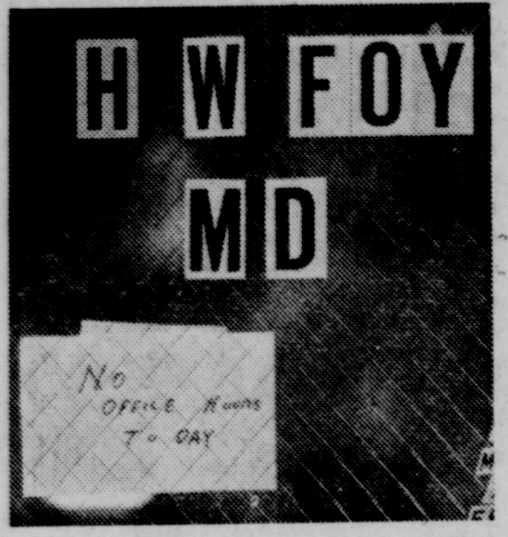
Foy also finds the charges difficult to believe and up to Wednesday, he has not allowed them to disrupt his practice.

IT DID NOT matter Thursday that he could see no patients; he arrived at his office in Arlington Heights about the usual time. Drenched from th pouring rain, he smiled broadly as he approached the front door where two patients awaited him.

To his patients, Foy merely said there would be no office hours. He did not explain it was because his medical license was suspended by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

As Foy bent down to pick up his packet of mail, another man arrived and said he needed a simple employment physical.

"I'm sorry, it's against the law for me to do it today," Foy said.



'No office hours today.'

The man looked confused, but he did not ask Foy to explain.

Foy was at his office for a half-hour Thursday morning. But the green door of the office stayed locked. Inside a portable color television set blared the sounds of game shows and soap operas as the receptionist answered the phone which rang constantly.

FOY EXPECTED 40-50 patients to come to his office Thursday because they would be unaware of the suspension.

He continues to deny the charges against him and appears disgusted with the way he is being treated. "They should not do things like this without trial, I don't think," Foy said.

Patients who came to see Foy Thursday morning were surprised when told his license had been suspended.

"Aw, that's a shame," said an Arlington Heights woman who has gone to Foy for more than a year. "I always liked him; he's very nice. He listens to you when you have problems. He listens to you all the way through. He doesn't cut you off," she said.

"His license has been suspended," a Des Plaines woman repeated. "I don't know what to say. I just really like him. I hope it works out all right for him," she said.

"I can't believe that," said another Des Plaines woman when told Foy is charged with illegally dispensing drugs to underaged youths without conducting proper medical examinations.

"I see a lot of young people here, but I can't believe that. Unbelievable. I'm really sorry to hear that. Who can I write to," she said.

FOY HOPES MANY of his patients will write and testify for him when the Dept. of Registration and Education meets in May to consider revoking his license.

Foy's attorneys Thursday asked Cook County Circuit Court Judge Francis Delaney for a temporary restraining order to Foy's suspension but then withdrew the request when Delaney said he would not treat it as an emergency matter.

Foy also will go on trial in May on charges of dispensing drugs for nontherapeutic purposes to three Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents.

Testimonials from many loyal patients already have been collected by Foy.

"He never would distribute drugs to young teen-agers. I think he is being railroaded by someone for revenge. He's an honest doctor and it's a shame to put a man of his honesty through this," a letter signed by Jean and Roy Thorsen of Schaumburg states.

"He has been very cautious about prescriptions and dosages, especially with the children. I personally know him to be one of the kindest and most conscientious people I have ever known. He will always have our complete confidence," writes Barbara Oshinski of Arlington Heights.

"HOW UNFORTUNATE that a highly respected physician has to be placed in the most depressing situation he could be faced with. The poor can come to this marvelous physician knowing they will receive the best of care, without having to worry about a high fee for professional services. God love you Dr. Foy," states the letter of Mrs. James Swanson of Elk Grove Village.

"I have been extremely touched by his kindness and his old-fashioned family physician character. It is quite therapeutic in itself to be able to come in and talk family problems to a friend," a letter signed by Vera Fabian of Prospect Heights states.

Dr. Foy is grateful for the support he has received from his patients. "There are going to be a lot of people trying to find a doctor. They're depriving this area of a good one," Foy said.

Urges higher prices, not taxes

GOP weighs own energy plan

From Herald News Services

The Senate Republican Policy Committee is considering an answer to President Carter's energy program, emphasizing higher prices instead of higher taxes and rejecting new taxes on gasoline and inefficient cars.

In a suggested plan — not acted upon by the full policy committee — the program outline says: "The GOP approach to conserving America's present energy resources reflects the traditional Republican principle of limiting governmental interference in the private lives of American citizens."

The main parts of the GOP plan:

- Freeing new natural gas production from price controls.
- Gradually freeing oil prices from the controls, towards the world price.
- Require gas-and oil-using utilities and industries to switch to coal "wherever practical."
- Bring conservation to fuel uses across the board. Include some tax incentives.
- Provide federal money to research new forms of energy.

Carter's plan proposes a stiff tax on "gas guzzling" cars, a standby new tax on gasoline, and it extends federal authority to regulate gas sales within the state of production.

The GOP plan does not have a gasoline tax, it leaves the federal government out of state gas sales and it proposes to make auto efficiency standars tougher, but not through the tax of the Carter plan.

In other energy news:

- The House established special machinery to handle Carter's energy plan, but rumblings from both parties made plain the package faces an uphill fight in Congress. Speaker Thomas O'Neil supported the plan's design, but added: "The only thing I've got to say is Carter's going to have to give us some help along the line." In the Senate, Democratic leader Robert Byrd said he would assign top priority to the program. Republican leader Howard Baker said he doubted Americans could be made to swallow the increased taxation burden.
- Budget Director Bert Lance put a relatively modest price tag on Carter's energy package, saying it might cost the government $7 billion to $15 billion, total, through 1985. A Treasury official said most of the $7 billion to $15 billion would be spent stockpiling the billion-barrel emergency crude oil reserve Carter wants established.
- World energy experts hoped the plan would spark similar belt-tightening all over the world. The European Common Market's energy chief, Guido Brunner of West Germany, said he hoped to unveil an energy conservation program for Europe similar to Carter's in June. Britain's Energy Department said, "The fact that the President of the world's richest nation is taking conservation so seriously will enhance the importance of energy saving and development programs in other countries. In Venezuela, one of the world's leading oil exporters, finance Minister Hector Hurtado urged the government to follow the United States' lead by raising gasoline taxes.
- In Detroit, Thomas Murphy, Chairman of General Motors Corp. warned that a proposed tax on large cars would penalize American families who need the bigger automobiles and might have "disastrous" economic repercussions. Henry Ford II, Murphy's counterpart at the Ford Motor Co. said the energy plan is a challenge to the auto industry.

Social Security benefits to rise 5.9%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Social Security checks will go up 5.9 per cent July 1 for 33.4 million recipients to reflect the cost-of-living increase in the past year, the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday.

The cost of the increase for recipients of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income will be $5.5 billion a year.

The increases will add $1 billion to a Social Security deficit for fiscal 1978 previously estimated at $5 billion and total spending will reach $92 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY actuaries predict that at current rates of spending the systems' cash reserves will be depleted in the early 1980s.

For an elderly widow, the average Social Security benefit will increase from $210 to $223 a month. An average combined benefit for an elderly couple will rise from $377 to $400 a month.

The increases take effect in the June checks beneficiaries are scheduled to receive July 1.

Under a 1972 law, Social Security and SSI checks are increased automatically each year if the cost of living, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rises by 3 per cent or more during specified periods.

THE AVERAGE monthly CPI rose by 5.9 per cent during the most recent period, March 31, 1976, through March 31, 1977, capped by a .6 per cent rise for last month. The 3 per cent trigger was reached last September.

"I am delighted to be able to announce this benefit increase to a sizable and deserving group of our citizens," said HEW Secy. Joseph Califano.

"I am also glad that we have a law on the books that recognizes the need to maintain the purchasing power of our elderly and disabled citizens by assuring these regular cost-of-living increases."

Following are examples of monthly benefit increases scheduled to take effect in July 1 checks for retirees, disabled persons and recipients of Supplemental Security Income payments:

- Maximum benefit for a female worker retiring in 1977 at age 65 will increase from $422.40 to $447.40.
- For a man meeting the same criteria, the maximum benefit increases from $412.70 to $437.10. (Social Security Law has been changed to eliminate the sex differential in payments for workers who reach age 65 beginning next Jan. 1.)
- Minimum benefit for a worker retiring in 1977 at age 65 will increase from $107.90 to $114.30.

Average social security benefits will increase for:

- A retired worker living alone, from $221 to $234.
- An aged couple, both receiving benefits, from $377 to $400.
- Mother and two children, from $517 to $547.
- Aged widow, from $210 to $223.
- Disabled worker, wife and children, from $448 to $517.
- All disabled workers, from $248 to $262.

Maximum federal SSI payments for an individual increase from $167.30 to $177.80 and for a couple from $251.80 to $266.70.

Mansfield OKd as Japan envoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hailing him as "a great American," the Senate Thursday unanimously confirmed former Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield as U.S. ambassador to Japan.

The action came less than four hours after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved Mansfield in public hearings that were more of a testament than a test for the 74-year-old Montana Democrat.

"I wish I could quote Shakespeare now, but the only line that comes to mind is 'Why not send the best,'" said Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla.

SEN. ROBERT BYRD, D-W. Va., who succeeded Mansfield as Senate Democratic leader, hailed him as "a great senator, a great man, and a great American" and asked that President Carter be informed immediately of the confirmation.

During the committee hearing, chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said: "No better selection could have been made. We are glad to have some conversation with you and send you on your way with our best wishes."

"There is no better signal that this administration can send to Japan than Mike Mansfield as our ambassador," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The committee also approved the nominations of Samuel Lewis of Texas as ambassador to Israel, former Princeton University President Robert Goheen of New Jersey as ambassador to India, and W. Tapley Bennett of Georgia as permanent representative to NATO.

MANSFIELD'S 34-year congressional career ended last January after he decided not to run again.

Nearly every senator who spoke said he leared most of what he knew about foreign policy from Mansfield, whom they addressed as "Mr. Leader."

"Mike, you look the same, you sound the same, you act the same, and I am glad," said Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J.

The nominee smiled and shook his head negatively when Sparkman introduced him as Michael Mansfield. He has always gone by the name Mike.

A Treasury official said most of the $7 billion to $15 billion would be spent stockpiling the billion-barrel emergency crude oil reserve Carter wants established.
- World energy experts hoped the plan would spark similar belt-tightening all over the world. The European Common Market's energy chief, Guido Brunner of West Germany, said he hoped to unveil an energy conservation program for Europe similar to Carter's in June. Britain's Energy Department said, "The fact that the President of the world's richest nation is taking conservation so seriously will enhance the importance of energy saving and development programs in other countries. In Venezuela, one of the world's leading oil exporters, finance Minister Hector Hurtado urged the government to follow the United States' lead by raising gasoline taxes.
- In Detroit, Thomas Murphy, Chairman of General Motors Corp. warned that a proposed tax on large cars would penalize American families who need the bigger automobiles and might have "disastrous" economic repercussions. Henry Ford II, Murphy's counterpart at the Ford Motor Co. said the energy plan is a challenge to the auto industry.

Mansfield OKd as Japan envoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hailing him as "a great American," the Senate Thursday unanimously confirmed former Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield as U.S. ambassador to Japan.

The action came less than four hours after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved Mansfield in public hearings that were more of a testament than a test for the 74-year-old Montana Democrat.

"I wish I could quote Shakespeare now, but the only line that comes to mind is 'Why not send the best,'" said Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla.

SEN. ROBERT BYRD, D-W. Va., who succeeded Mansfield as Senate Democratic leader, hailed him as "a great senator, a great man, and a great American" and asked that President Carter be informed immediately of the confirmation.

During the committee hearing, chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said: "No better selection could have been made. We are glad to have some conversation with you and send you on your way with our best wishes."

"There is no better signal that this administration can send to Japan than Mike Mansfield as our ambassador," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The committee also approved the nominations of Samuel Lewis of Texas as ambassador to Israel, former Princeton University President Robert Goheen of New Jersey as ambassador to India, and W. Tapley Bennett of Georgia as permanent representative to NATO.

MANSFIELD'S 34-year congressional career ended last January after he decided not to run again.

Nearly every senator who spoke said he leared most of what he knew about foreign policy from Mansfield, whom they addressed as "Mr. Leader."

"Mike, you look the same, you sound the same, you act the same, and I am glad," said Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J.

The nominee smiled and shook his head negatively when Sparkman introduced him as Michael Mansfield. He has always gone by the name Mike.

Social Security benefits to rise 5.9%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Social Security checks will go up 5.9 per cent July 1 for 33.4 million recipients to reflect the cost-of-living increase in the past year, the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday.

The cost of the increase for recipients of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income will be $5.5 billion a year.

The increases will add $1 billion to a Social Security deficit for fiscal 1978 previously estimated at $5 billion and total spending will reach $92 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY actuaries predict that at current rates of spending the systems' cash reserves will be depleted in the early 1980s.

For an elderly widow, the average Social Security benefit will increase from $210 to $223 a month. An average combined benefit for an elderly couple will rise from $377 to $400 a month.

The increases take effect in the June checks beneficiaries are scheduled to receive July 1.

Under a 1972 law, Social Security and SSI checks are increased automatically each year if the cost of living, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rises by 3 per cent or more during specified periods.

THE AVERAGE monthly CPI rose by 5.9 per cent during the most recent period, March 31, 1976, through March 31, 1977, capped by a .6 per cent rise for last month. The 3 per cent trigger was reached last September.

"I am delighted to be able to announce this benefit increase to a sizable and deserving group of our citizens," said HEW Secy. Joseph Califano.

"I am also glad that we have a law on the books that recognizes the need to maintain the purchasing power of our elderly and disabled citizens by assuring these regular cost-of-living increases."

Following are examples of monthly benefit increases scheduled to take effect in July 1 checks for retirees, disabled persons and recipients of Supplemental Security Income payments:

- Maximum benefit for a female worker retiring in 1977 at age 65 will increase from $422.40 to $447.40.
- For a man meeting the same criteria, the maximum benefit increases from $412.70 to $437.10. (Social Security Law has been changed to eliminate the sex differential in payments for workers who reach age 65 beginning next Jan. 1.)
- Minimum benefit for a worker retiring in 1977 at age 65 will increase from $107.90 to $114.30.

Average social security benefits will increase for:

- A retired worker living alone, from $221 to $234.
- An aged couple, both receiving benefits, from $377 to $400.
- Mother and two children, from $517 to $547.
- Aged widow, from $210 to $223.
- Disabled worker, wife and children, from $448 to $517.
- All disabled workers, from $248 to $262.

Maximum federal SSI payments for an individual increase from $167.30 to $177.80 and for a couple from $251.80 to $266.70.

Billy ordered to clean up his act

- Billy Carter has been cited by the government because of scrap lying around his gasoline station, a Labor Dept. spokesman said Thursday. Inspectors from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration inspected the station after a local resident took photographs of Billy's station and complained about the debris. Billy has 15 days to contest the report. Meantime, President Carter discussed the influence of his mother-in-law, Allie Murray Smith. He said "If Mother Allie hadn't brought up Rosalynn the way she did, I would probably not be President." The statement came in an exclusive interview in the May McCall's. Mrs. Smith has the distinction of being one of the first residents of Plains, Ga., to get a parking ticket.
- Outgoing Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones found a note on the breakfast table at home Thursday morning from his wife, Jane, which read 'Dear Mr. Phenomenal: Please take out the garbage. Signed, the outgoing first lady of the village." The "love letter" was playing on a news analysis The Herald ran Thursday that described Jones' popularity and voter appeal as bordering on the phenomenal. Results of a private GOP poll have showed him with a 78 per cent approval rating.

- A horse-drawn hearse will carry the corpse of outlaw Elmer McCurdy to a pauper's grave today, 66 years after he was shot to death by a sheriff's possse. A five-foot slab of gray granite, chipped on its edges and peaked at the top, already marks McCurdy's final resting place, next to the grave of Bill Doolin, another early day Oklahoma bad man. The outlaw's body was embalmed with arsenic and sold to two carnivals, a wax museum and finally an amusement park funhouse in Long Beach, Calif. The body, coated with wax and sprayed a glowing pink, was used as a side show attraction and was to be used in a television film, when an arm fell off. Now that the corpse of McCurdy has been discovered, it's heading for a proper resting place.
- Henry Winkler plans to give up his role as "the Fonz" next year when his contract with the ABC smash hit "Happy Days" runs out. He plans to move on to more creative challenges, he said. He currently is in New York filming "Heroes," a movie in which Sally Fields co-stars.

Local races go in usual GOP style

by STEVE BROWN

A news analysis

The finale of the 1977 edition of spring election madness is history and the area has upheld its image of being one of the blandest political regions in the state.

While men like Waukegan Mayor Robert Sabonjian,, whose 20-year reign was compared to Richard J. Daley, were being thrown out of office and some Republicans were losing their last solid bastion of political strength — the township — the Northwest suburbs maintained the status quo.

Candidates spent thousands of dollars in local elections. However, only Des Plaines was able to attract enough voters to keep the election judges from nodding off during the day.

IN SCHAUMBURG, where residents were either so enraptured with their elected officials or didn't care, 500 persons went to the polls to vote for unopposed candidates.

Much has been made about the new gains by women politicians, but the hoopla places when all the results are checked. In Tuesday's elections there were as many female winners as losers.

Female incumbents did well, but only five women were elected to local village boards.

Carolyn Krause joins bellicose Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter as female chief executive, but two other female candidates for village president lost.

Mrs. Krause's victory is an accomplishment to be sure, but her tranquil campaign style set her apart from the two male trustees who ran what was perceived as a rough and tumble race.

THE MUCH PUBLICIZED Democratic effort to make some gains in the area fell predictably flat. In the township election, the hapless candidates were short of talent and money in Northwest suburbs.

That was not the case throughout the county, though, because Democrats won in Worth Township and made gains in Niles Township.

The closest any area Democratic group came was in Maine Township where Democrats got 40 per cent of the vote.

But Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase is the Democratic committeeman there and U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has cultivated the unincorporated areas of the township in his three congressional campaigns.

The incumbent village presidents who decided to seek reelection won. Those who didn't seek reelection did well in their efforts to help the campaigns of those they chose as their successors.

The best example was Palatine's Wendell E. Jones, who directed a campaign for winning fellow Republican Robert Guss that must have left some voters wondering if it was Guss or Jones who was running for office.

The campaign was designed that way because an early poll, the only known professional polling done for the local elections, showed Guss without a lead.

BUT THE ENTRENCHED Republican strength in Palatine did the job on election day.

Absentee endorsements, such as former Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel's backing of loser Charles Bolek, did not do the job. Of course, Behrel is living in Arizona.

The other successful but suspect endorsement came from outgoing Wheeling Village President Ted C. Scanlon, who dropped his proclaimed neutrality to support winner William Hein. Coincidentally, Scalon is employed by Hein's parents.

The Wheeling race offered some interesting notes for the future.

Hein made political honesty a big part of his campaign. Reformrs always get more attention after the election, and Hein's activities will be watched closely because of his campaign promises and the tarnished image of politics in Wheeling.

The local election produced no exciting trends and the crossed-fingers attitude by some professional politicians that large population gains in some communities might change the voter trends did not materialize.

It all suggests that new Northwest suburban residents, be they former Chicago Democrats or West Virginia Whigs, quickly become assimilated into the status quo and follow their neighbors to the polls, usually on the Republican side — if they go to the polls at all.

Marcy enters innocent plea

Paul Marcy, executive secretary of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, pleaded innocent in federal court Thursday to a charge of income tax evasion. Marcy, 62, who is charged with failing to report an alleged bribe of nearly $55,000 on his 1970 federal income tax, entered the plea during arraignment proceedings before U.S. District Judge Thomas R. McMillan. Marcy, 3725 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, is accused of failing to report the bribe he allegedly took from Chicago plumbing contractor William Adams for favorable zoning treatment on the Old Madrid apartment complex, built by Sellergren Inc., on Northwest Highway and Hicks Road, Palatine.

The alleged payoff scheme is the same one which government prosecutors tied to former Cook County Comr. Floyd T. Fulle, who was covicted i 1975 for acceptig bribes i the Sellergren project. A court date in Marcy's case has not been set. Marcy is being represented by Chicago attorney Louis Carbonaro.

Gas prices hit record high

Average gasoline prices have reached record highs, the Chicago Motor Club reported Thursday, with premium and unleaded gasoline costing nearly 80 cents a gallon in some Chicago stations. The weekly motor club price averages are based on a spot check of 40 stations in Chicago and 40 in the suburbs. In Chicago and Cook County, the average price of regular went up 1 cent from last week to 64.8 cents a gallon while premium and unleaded moved up .9 cent. Premium averaged 71.6 cents a gallon and unleaded averaged 69 cents. The motor club reported some stations were charging 79.9 cents for premium and unleaded.

Nazis deny grenade bombings

Frank Collin, Chicago leader of the American Nazi Party, denied Thursday his group was involved in a grenade bombing of three homes in the racially tense Marquette Park area. The homemade grenades exploded within a six-minute period early Wednesday in the front of two homes owned by black families and a third home which had been sold to a black family. No one was injured. "I don't know who did it," Collin said. "All I can tell you is we didn't do it."

Lightning blamed in store fire

Lightning was blamed Thursday for a fire which demolished Mays Drug Store in Crystal Lake and caused damages estimated at nearly a half million dollars, Fire Chief Harold Krecker said. Prompt action by employes cleared the store after the fire broke out about 4 p.m. Wednesday. There were no injuries. Krecker said four witnesses reported the fire started after lightning hit a transformer on the roof and spread through the store.

Illinois briefs

Death penalty bill passed by panel

The Illinois Senate Judiciary II Committee Thursday passed a bill which would authorize the death penalty as punishment for certain crimes. The bill has already passed the House and Gov. James R. Thompson has said he will sign it if it passes the Senate without amendment. There was very little discussion of the measure (H10), which already has been debated extensively in both houses. Any death penalty imposed would be automatically appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court, as required by the state constitution.

In other action Thursday:

- A 5 per cent "cost of living" benefit hike for welfare recipients passed the Illinois House Appropriations Committee Thursday without debate and without any testimony from the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid. The measure would cost about $42.3 million a year, according to its sponsor, Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago. Half would be state funds and the rest federal.
- The House Judiciary Committee approved the proposed Equal Rights Amendment by a 15-5 vote. Committee approval was expected but stiffer opposition is expected when the ratification resolution gets to the House floor. And even ERA supporters are pessimistic about the chances of Senate approval.
- The Senate defeated, 17 to 36, a bill which would have permitted candidates for governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team on the primary ballot. The measure (S219) was sponsored by Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago.

McCoy to head liquor panel

Gov. James R. Thompson Thursday appointed Albert D. McCoy, the mayor of Aurora for the past 12 years, chairman of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission. McCoy, 50, stepped down Tuesday as mayor of Aurora, a position he held since 1965. He chose not to run in this year's election. While mayor, McCoy also served on the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission and as a vice president of the Illinois Municipal league and chairman of the DuKane Valley Council of governments.

Life always greener in other park district for some

by NANCY GOTLER

Lorraine Berra and Marybeth Saigh would like to trade park districts.

"We feel like lost people out here," said Mrs. Berra, a Mount Prospect resident who lives in the Arlington Heights Park District.

"And we'd rather change, too," said Mrs. Saigh, who, living in the Village of Arlington Heights and the Mount Prospect Park District, is in an opposite, but similar situation.

IN EACH CASE about 50 families live in a different park district than the majority of residents in their village. And many of them are unhappy about the situation.

"We're just all a little disgusted about it," Mrs. Berra, 2101 Jody Ct., said. 'We probably would be better off if we weren't in either park district."

Many residents in the same situation say they receive no brochures or election information from their park districts.

"We don't get any information from them and feel we've been ignored," said Susan Dudek, 2100 Lawrence Ln., Mount Prospect. "I don't feel we get enough representation from the Arlington Heights Park District and we usually vote down their referendums because we feel we don't benefit from them but are forced to pay for them."

IN MOUNT PROSPECT, residents living on Lois and Jody courts, Lawrence and Connie lanes and parts of Meier Road, Prairie Avenue and Haven Street are in the Arlington Heights Park District.

And in Arlington Heights, residents living on parts of Kensington Road, Evanston and Donald avenues and Gregory Street are in the Mount Prospect Park District.

Mount Prospect Park Director Tom Taylor admits the boundaries often cause problems.

"A lot of residents, especially new ones, are confused about which park district they live in," he said. "But on the other hand, natural physical barriers such as undeveloped land, major roads and schools can make existing boundaries more advantageous."

THERE IS A cooperative agreement between the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect park districts for the use of swimming pools, he said.

And exceptions can be made for children who do not live within the park district to use facilities with their classmates who do, Taylor said.

Taylor said the park district has no plans to change its boundaries, despite requests from some residents that it do so.

Arlington Heights Park Director Thomas Thornton was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, residents like Mrs. Berra continue to complain. "All we're asking is to be part of the park district in the village where we live," she said.

Village to begin flushing hydrants

The Arlington Heights public works department will begin flushing water hydrants in the village at midnight Sunday.

Crews working 24 hours a day will begin in the central business district and simultaneously work north and south.

Supt. Donald Renner said flushing in the southern end of town should be completed by Friday or Saturday and work in the northern end by early the next week.

Renner asked residents who see open hydrants near their homes to check the color of the water before using it.

Running an outside faucet two to four hours will rid the water of discoloration caused by the flushing, he said. An iron-removing chemical may be obtained from the public works department.

"We know that we have to conserve water but we also have to clean out the water mains to prevent damage from sedimentation and this is the easiest and cheapest way to do it," Renner said.

Most hydrants need only 10 minutes of flushing to be cleaned, he said.

"We're really going to watch the flushing time this year and not use any more than is needed," he said. "We want residents to understand this is necessary to keep up the quality of the water."

Life always greener in other park district for some

by NANCY GOTLER

Lorraine Berra and Marybeth Saigh would like to trade park districts.

"We feel like lost people out here," said Mrs. Berra, a Mount Prospect resident who lives in the Arlington Heights Park District.

"And we'd rather change, too," said Mrs. Saigh, who, living in the Village of Arlington Heights and the Mount Prospect Park District, is in an opposite, but similar situation.

IN EACH CASE about 50 families live in a different park district than the majority of residents in their village. And many of them are unhappy about the situation.

"We're just all a little disgusted about it," Mrs. Berra, 2101 Jody Ct., said. 'We probably would be better off if we weren't in either park district."

Many residents in the same situation say they receive no brochures or election information from their park districts.

"We don't get any information from them and feel we've been ignored," said Susan Dudek, 2100 Lawrence Ln., Mount Prospect. "I don't feel we get enough representation from the Arlington Heights Park District and we usually vote down their referendums because we feel we don't benefit from them but are forced to pay for them."

IN MOUNT PROSPECT, residents living on Lois and Jody courts, Lawrence and Connie lanes and parts of Meier Road, Prairie Avenue and Haven Street are in the Arlington Heights Park District.

And in Arlington Heights, residents living on parts of Kensington Road, Evanston and Donald avenues and Gregory Street are in the Mount Prospect Park District.

Mount Prospect Park Director Tom Taylor admits the boundaries often cause problems.

"A lot of residents, especially new ones, are confused about which park district they live in," he said. "But on the other hand, natural physical barriers such as undeveloped land, major roads and schools can make existing boundaries more advantageous."

THERE IS A cooperative agreement between the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect park districts for the use of swimming pools, he said.

And exceptions can be made for children who do not live within the park district to use facilities with their classmates who do, Taylor said.

Taylor said the park district has no plans to change its boundaries, despite requests from some residents that it do so.

Arlington Heights Park Director Thomas Thornton was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, residents like Mrs. Berra continue to complain. "All we're asking is to be part of the park district in the village where we live," she said.

Village to begin flushing hydrants

The Arlington Heights public works department will begin flushing water hydrants in the village at midnight Sunday.

Crews working 24 hours a day will begin in the central business district and simultaneously work north and south.

Supt. Donald Renner said flushing in the southern end of town should be completed by Friday or Saturday and work in the northern end by early the next week.

Renner asked residents who see open hydrants near their homes to check the color of the water before using it.

Running an outside faucet two to four hours will rid the water of discoloration caused by the flushing, he said. An iron-removing chemical may be obtained from the public works department.

"We know that we have to conserve water but we also have to clean out the water mains to prevent damage from sedimentation and this is the easiest and cheapest way to do it," Renner said.

Most hydrants need only 10 minutes of flushing to be cleaned, he said.

"We're really going to watch the flushing time this year and not use any more than is needed," he said. "We want residents to understand this is necessary to keep up the quality of the water."

Hint court to nix Watergate appeals

The Supreme Court has voted in secret not to consider the Watergate cover-up convictions of Richard Nixon's three top advisers, National Public Radio reported Thursday. But a final decision on the appeals of John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman is being held up by Chief Justice Warren Burger, according to NPR reporter Nina Totenberg. She said the justices at the court's weekly secret conference Friday voted 5 to 3 against hearing the appeals. It takes four votes to grant Supreme Court review of a case.

She quoted court sources as saying the other justices were surprised that Burger had held up the decision. The sources said the chief justice hopes to sway John Paul Stevens and Byron White to change their votes and consider the appeals. Nixon's three top aides were sentenced two years ago to serve 2½ to eight year prison terms for obstruction of justice, perjury and conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up. Haldeman and Mitchell are free on bond pending their appeals, but on Oct. 28, at his own request, Ehrlichman entered federal prison at Safford, Ariz. Ms. Toitenberg quoted Supreme Court sources as saying the three justices who voted to review the cases all were Nixon appointees — Burger and Justices Harry Blackmun and Lewis Powell.

Florida panel OKs laetrile

A committee of the Florida House of Representatives Thursday approved legislation to legalize the controversial drug laetrile, stressing it was a "hope, not a cure for cancer." The action means the bill now goes to the House floor for a vote. Similar legislation is pending before the state Senate. Takers of the drug say it can relieve pain, restore a sense of well-being and reduce the size of tumors. The House Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee was unswayed by testimony from Food and Drug Administration official Robert Temple that laetrile was "worthless" in treating cancer. He also said legalizing it would encourage patients with curable cancer to take it instead of chemotherapy that might save their lives.

FDA probes diabetics' drug

The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it may ban a drug used by a quarter million diabetics and which a Ralph Nader research group contends may have caused hundreds of deaths. Dr. J. Richard Crout, director of the FDA's Bureau of Drugs, said the oral diabetic drug Phenformin does hve a "serious side effect," called lactic acidosis, which can cause death.

He said the problem has been "long been known to the FDA and to the medical profession" and steps have been taken to have doctors exercise caution. The latest precaution, he said, came two months ago when "the indications for use of the drug were further restricted." "The FDA continues to monitor the situation and is considering additional action including possible removal of the drug from the market," Crout said. "Patients on Phenformin should not abruptly discontinue therapy on the basis of unwarranted publicity about this drug." The drug is sold under the trade names of "DBI" and "Meltrol."

ERIN FLEMING, left, and Zeppo Marx, right, walk down corridor of Superior Court in Santa Monica, Calif. with unidentified aid. Groucho Marx' younger brother, Zeppo, said "it would kill" the famed comedian if his long-time companion, Erin Fleming, were taken away from him. "He loves her," Zeppo told reporters. Judge Edward Rafeedie will announce today his measures to protect the aging comedian.

Tour boat overturns in Israel

A crowded tour boat overturned in Israel Thursday, trapping dozens of Independence Day holidaymakers underwater in one of Israel's worst civilian maritme accidents. Reports said eight bodies were recovered but more losses from drowning were feared. Thirty-five persons were rescued, among them both Jews and Arabs. Survivors said the tiny vessel that chugged around the Crusaderera stone walls of Acre harbor was packed with 60 to 80 passengers. Police sources said there were 56 aboard.

Survivors said the crowed panicked at a rumor that water was coming through a bulkhead and ran to the other side, forcing the boat to overturn. Police and fishing boats rushed to the scene, but dozens of persons were trapped underwater.

Mobuto: Soviets 'enemy no. 1'

President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire Thursday branded the Soviet Union Zaire's "No. 1 enemy" and broke off Zaire's education exchange program with Moscow. A force of 300 Pygmy warriors armed with poisoned darts and bows and arrows was airlifted to the front. Diplomatic sources said the additional 300 Pygmy reinforcements passed through Kinshasa en route to the fighting against Shaba Province iinvaders. The sources said they were dressed in traditional bark skirts and ornate headdresses and toting bows and arrows, but no rifles.

The four-fot-tall Pygmies, who have become folk heroes in Zaire since it was announced they had joined Zaire and Moroccan troops in their Shaba Province counteroffensive, have thrown fear into the superstitious rebel forces, diplomatic sources said. "Militarily and psychologically it was a master stroke by Mobutu to introduce the Pygmies into the fighting," one diplomat said.

Bill on unit district vote mounts

In opposing the unit district proposal, the Dist. 214 Board of Education paid the law firm of Fawell, James and Brooks $72,991 to handle the case and spent $1,500 to print legal briefs needed for the district's lawsuits, William Warner, assistant superintendent, said.

Consultant fees have cost Dist. 214 taxpayers $3,368, he said. Payments were made to Fred Raubinger, professor at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana; Robert A. Burnham, professor at Illinois State University in Normal; and Benjamin Hubbard, research director for the Illinois Schools Problem Commission.

"Had the referendum been successful, Dist. 214 would've immediately lost $2½ million a year so $79,000 isn't that much to spend," Warner said. "What's regrettable is that we were put into the position of having to spend that kind of money to save money."

Guy and Leah Cummins, both members of the committee of 10, said some money had to be spent to bring the trict had been kicked around in Dist. they object to the money spent because of Dist. 214's lawsuits aimed at unit district question to a vote, but "preventing" the issue from going to the people.

"THE IDEA OF a unit school dis- 59 for 12 to 15 years and the only way to decide the issue was to put it to a vote," Guy said. "It was something that had to be done."

Neither Elk Grove Village nor the country should stop looking toward the future just because it costs money to do so, he said.

"You can't go through the process of trying to form a unit district without having outside consultants and lawyers, but the money spent afterward in court is a terrible thing," Mrs. Cummins said.

Warner said most of the legal fees were incurred for duties other than those relating to the court cases.

In any case, Mrs. Cummins said, "It's heartbreaking to see this amount of money spent with the people coming to the wrong conclusion because of the shameful campaign launched by the opposition."

The unit district would have combined 21 Dist. 59 elementary and junior high schools, Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village and Forest View High School in Arlington Heights under one school board and administration.

Columbo lawyers seek delay; publicity cited

Defense attorneys for Patricia Columbo Thursday asked for a four-week delay before jury selection begins for her trial, contending prejudicial pretrial publicity could jeopardize her right to a fair trial.

Cook County public defender Laurence Acker said the request was prompted by feature articles that appeared recently in two Chicago newspapers.

Acker said if granted, the continuance would begin after Cook County Circuit Court Judge R. Eugene Pincham rules on pretrail motions.

JURY SELECTION is expected to begin after Pincham rules on a motion to suppress statements made by Miss Columbo, 20, and Frank DeLuca, 39, on a motion for separate trials for the defendants.

A continuance would delay jury selection for four weeks.

Miss Columbo and DeLuca are charged in the May 4, 1976 slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo and her brother, Michael, 13, of 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Miss Columbo returned to the witness stand Thursday during a pretrial hearing on a motion to suppress statements she gave to police after her arrest May 15, 1976.

She testified that when she gave police a written statement May 15, 'My whole purpose was to get Frank released that day. This is what they (police) wanted and this is what I gave them. I didn't care about me."

Miss Columbo testified that later the same day she gave a written second statement to police because in that statement "I wanted to be able to tell it my way."

AFTER MISS COLUMBO gave the statement, police charged her in the slayings and released DeLuca. Police arrested DeLuca and charged him with the murders July 17, 1976.

Miss Columbo also said she did not know she was under arrest until she was being admitted to the Cook County Jail, Chicago, late May 15.

Miss Columbo and DeLuca were taken into custody, May 15 at an apartment they shared in west suburban Lombard. Miss Columbo has testified police failed to inform her of her Constitutional rights and used her concern for DeLuca to obtain the statements.

She also has said police promised her they would release DeLuca if she cooperated with them.

Convention this weekend

NOW to form new plan of attack to pass ERA

DETROIT (UPI)—"You can bet we're angry," Kathy Hartman, coordinator of this weekend's National Organization of Women convention, said Thursday. "We're mad, we're very mad and people are going to know it."

Two thousand NOW delegates, recognizing their effort to win ratification of the Equal Rights amendment has reached the critical stage, hope to begin reversing the anti-ERA momentum feuled by recent setbacks in Florida and Nevada with just 11 months remaining in the campaign.

"We are in real trouble," Ms. Hartman said. "We are at the crisis stage and frankly, we're worried."

THIRTY-FIVE states have ratified ERA since 1972. But approval is needed from three more states by next March for the amendment to become part of the U.S. Constitution.

ERA rejection in Florida last week and Nevada earlier this year shocked NOW leaders, Ms. Hartman said.

"People in those states welched on their promises," she said. "Unfortunately, not until 1978 can we show them what happens to people who welch on their promises."

In 1976, NOW concentrated on "key states," including Florida and Nevada, to work for the election of pro-ERA candidates. But once those candidates were in office, Ms. Hartman said, they forgot their campaign promises.

"Candidates who have the backing of the United Auto Workers union would never cross the UAW after they were elected," she said. "We don't have that kind of power yet, but we hope to."

NOW, FOUNDED in 1966, is the largest feminist organization in the world, with 55,000 members.

Most of the 35 states ratified the amendment shortly after it was introduced in 1972 and "people took for granted it would pass because it was so easy then," Ms. Hartman said.

The three-day convention gets under way with an ERA rally today. Aside from adopting rules and electing officers, nearly 100 workshops are slated during the weekend, with such topics as female entrepreneurs and feminist owned businesses, sexual harassment on the job and the economics and politics of wife abuse.

The Republicans are coming!

The way we see it

A need for Dem reform

State Comptroller Michael Bakalis has come up with a sensible proposal to rejuvenate the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Bakalis has called for a special state party convention this summer to discuss ways to involve more people in the decision making process, reform slatemaking and provide a full-time state party staff.

Bakalis is well aware that the party, nearly all-powerful in Chicago and Cook County, does not have statewide dominance. He is also aware that the Downstate image of Democrats who dance to the tune of Chicago political power brokers has severely damaged the party's candidates in statewide races.

The tag "machine puppet" did much to sink the gubernatorial campaign of former Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett last fall. And the situation will not get better unless the state party can break away from being identified almost totally with Chicago interests.

In 1978, Bakalis and Sec. of State Alan Dixon can be expected to head the Democratic ticket against Gov. James R. Thompson, Atty. Gen. William Scott and Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal. U.S. Sen. Charles Percy probably will head the GOP ticket.

To prepare for that race, the state Democratic Party will have to heed Bakalis's call for internal reform. And there may never be a better time to make the needed changes.

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne, who has succeeded the late Richard J. Daley as county party chairman, has already taken steps to broaden the decision making base of the county party.

If Dunne and Bakalis can band together along with other concerned party leaders, they may well be able to make the kinds of reforms that will restore democracy — with a small "d" — to the Illinois Democratic Party.

That action will help ensure a dynamic two-party system in Illinois. In that event, all voters will win.

Close loopholes in disclosure order

Gov. James R. Thompson, who recently proposed laws requiring nearly total financial disclosure for elected officials, has partly backed away from that stand when it comes to his appointees.

It may be that Thompson's apparent double standard is a realistic answer to a problem with total disclosure. But until the governor can provide specific proof of that, the public has the right to view his latest action with skepticism.

Former Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order at the beginning of his term requiring all his appointees to make full financial disclosure, right down to their tax returns.

Thompson's order will require that kind of disclosure of state policy makers but will relieve those named to advisory boards and commissions of much of the disclosure requirement.

Thompson has justified his action by saying good people are shying away from government service, particularly on unpaid appointed boards and commissions, because of stringent disclosure requirements.

That may be the case. However, Thompson has not demonstrated specific incidents where disclosure requirements have kept people out of government. He should document his claim if he expects voters to take it seriously.

The governor has also left a loophole in his rule barring his cabinet member and other state officials from raising political funds from state employes.

Under Thompson's rule, department directors have been barred from soliciting funds from their own employes or those who do business with the state. They can, however, try to raise money from employes outside their department.

Thompson has pledged himself to improve governmental ethics and to set the tone for an open administration. In his proposals for ethics laws, he did a good job on that score. However, the loopholes in his recent executive order should be closed to maintain Thompson's good record.

Repayment for service

Many persons dedicated to civic affairs pass through the Northwest suburbs, making their marks through community groups or in elected or appointed office.

Seldom do their neighbors have the opportunity to recognize their contributions.

Lloyd Demel, a former member of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education, was one of those dedicated to helping his community. His friends and neighbors are now honoring him.

Mr. Demel died earlier this month of cancer at age 46. His neighbors have set up a special fund to help his family, which includes four children, to pay the medical bills that were accumulated in the last year of his life.

Mr. Demel served with distinction on the Dist. 26 board from 1972 until last November. He was a Cub Scout master, a YMCA instructor and was active in homeowners groups.

His contributions were appreciated. Now, through The Lloyd Demel Fund, residents of Prospect Heights have found a way to recognize his contributions by helping his family.

Contributions to the fund may be made to The Lloyd Demel Fund, First National Bank of Mount Prospect, Account No. 1279866.

Who can get a 57-1 shot?

Beware of the hunches

Jim Bishop

Camden, New Jersey, sits on the doorstep of Philadelphia. It is famous for R.C.A., Campbell's Soup, Jersey Joe Walcott and Thomas M. Roberts. In that order. Tommy is an old friend, and you are advised to look with suspicion upon anything I write.

His father was an Italian cabinetmaker who sickened of hard labor. So, after emigrating to America, he bought a lot of houses and personal loan companies. He could, if he chose, doze all day long and count his money all night.

Tommy was unlike his dad. Young Roberts is called a scrambler. A mover. He grabbed a diploma from Woodrow Wilson High School and ran downtown to tell the manager of radio station WCAM that he was now available as a disc jockey.

HE SPUN RECORDS for $23.50 a week. It kept him off welfare. What Tommy had to offer wasn't much — a dark handsome kisser, wavy hair, good teeth, a sense of humor and a voice which women found exciting.

The networks pretended that Roberts didn't exist. So he went to war in Korea. When he began to envy raw fish and seaweed, the U.S. Army sent Tommy back to Camden with a Commendation Ribbon. It wasn't the Congressional Medal of Honor, but Mayor George Brunner thought it was.

The mayor was a big Democratic wheel. Tommy's father knew that his son couldn't open a cabinet, much less make one, but Brunner tossed a heavy arm around the young man's shoulder and growled, "You're a hero."

BRUNNER GOT the young man a job at Garden State Race Track. "The state," he said, "gets 13 cents out of every buck bet. You can add, can't you? And subtract? New Jersey will give you a pencil."

Tommy wasn't happy. He was in an office under the deck and never saw a race. He was well paid, but he heard only crowd noises. What he wanted, with intense passion, was a microphone. If he couldn't make it big on radio, maybe he could announce a horse race.

They tried him out at the Atlantic City track. He sat in a high booth with binoculars and racing program and called the getaway, the first turn, the backstretch, the far turn, and the stretch run. It's as easy as identifying germ cultures under a dirty microscope.

IN THE FIRST race there was a rank outsider named Mesembryanthemum. The trainer couldn't pronounce it. He called the horse "Messy." With Roberts' luck going, Mesembryanthemum took the lead. Worse, he set the pace.

Tommy tried saying it three times. In the stretch call, the crowd fell apart laughing when Tommy intoned, "That horse is still leading." Two years later, NBC hired Roberts to announce all network stakes races.

This was a big step up. Tommy wore an ear piece so he could hear the director. He was about to call the Palm Beach Handicap when he said, "Ladies and gentlemen, here we are at beautiful Hialeah race course in living color." He fell down laughing when the director said. "Okay. Cue the flamingos." The peach-colored birds were supposed to fly.

WE MET AT Hialeah. Sometimes, in the paddock, I was Roberts' guest. I did it once too often. Kelly and I were coming into the track when Tommy waved. He needed a guest. I nodded and walked to his side.

A big camera on stilts stared myopically. "Well," Tommy said after a polite introduction, "who do you like in the Seminole Handicap?" My heart hesitated. My head didn't. I realized that I didn't know one horse in the race. I hadn't even opened a program.

We were on a coast-to-coast broadcast. I swallowed. "I don't like the favorite," I said weakly. His brown eyes popped. "You don't like Admiral Vic?" (I now knew one horse.) "No. This isn't his kind of track."

I DIDN'T KNOW what kind of track it was. "Who do you like? "'The outsider." "What outsider, Jim?" "The far outsider." "Ah, you think Top Gallant stands a chance?" I nodded and tapped perspiration. "Jim, he's going off to 57-1." "I don't care," I mumbled, "that's my baby."

Top Gallant finished in a dead heat with Admiral Vic. Many horse players thought I knew what I was talking about. I put $4 on Top Gallant as penance and took home $232.60 for being a dunce.

The remarkable feature of our friendship is that Tommy survived me. He met a builder, John J. Brunetti, who loved Hialeah Race Track and bought it. The race course, one of the most beautiful in the world, was almost broke.

Brunetti talked Roberts into becoming vice president and general manager. They make a sentimental team. Realizing the precarious position they were in, both decided not to invite me to the races . . .

Fence post

letters to the editor

Letters must be signed, and no letters will be published anonymously. Letters are subject to condensation, and a maximum length of 300 words is recommended. Direct your mail to the Fence post, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

This letter is being written to express my concern regarding the recent endorsements your staff made in the Elk Grove Twp. District 59 elections. I do not question your rights to issue endorsements nor am I angry you did not choose to endorse my candidacy.

However, I do wish to take exception with your "stated" reasons for not endorsing me. Your editorial said my lack of endorsement was due to having "talked about fiscal responsibility in this campaign but having done little on the board to support it."

Here are some facts for your review. Since being appointed to the board a short four months ago, I was able to get two key financial changes incorporated into the district financial accounting system.

1. The monthly financial statements now include a column which projects the current year-end estimates for both expenditures and revenue. Pretty basic information, but not part of the financial statements until I joined the board four months ago and insisted on it.

2. The monthly trust account reports now include a description of what each expenditure is for. This too was "obviously" needed in order to intelligently review these expenditures.

In addition to the above I wish to point out that the "early purchase" recommendation I made for the special education van is estimated to have saved the district additional thousands of dollars this year. I was the only board member who voted against entering into a costly legal dispute which our own administration told us we had at best a 30 per cent chance of winning. I would remind you that I was the only board member who did not vote for increasing the early retirement provisions of our district major medical insurance. I thought it was a discussion item for negotiations and giving it away prior to then was ridiculous. Seems to me I've done more than just talk financial responsibility.

There are probably some other issues which we may have genuine disagreement on. Had your editorial staff opposed my election on any of these I would have understood and accepted it much easier.

Since your endorsement of District 59 candidates was purposely delayed until you could run it along with an editorial opposing the unit district, I was not at all surprised that you endorsed all four anti-unit district candidates. I'd have felt much better if you had simply run a "throw the rascals out" editorial endorsement instead of misrepresenting my service to the district and community.

IN THIS DAY and age of high prices, poor service and poor quality, Pedian Rug Co. in Arlington Heights is an exception.

I had an Armstrong Solarian floor installed by them. Although perfectly installed, weeks later it developed a snapping sound in several spots.

When the manager came out to inspect the floor, he realized there was no way of remedying the situation short of replacing the floor.

This meant ripping up the Solarian and the masonite, ordering all new material and tying up an installer for two more days of work, all at the company's expense.

Not only did they incure these additional costs, but everyone I dealt with was so nice and anxious to make things right.

'Day care need'

The League of Women Voters of Des Plaines has been following the work of the Citizen's Advisory Committee to District 62 with great interest. We are deeply indebted for all the time and devotion these people have given to our school district.

The league is especially interested in the proposal suggested to the school board by Mrs. McCarthy to provide before and after school care on a fee-paid basis for children whose parents both work. League has long studied the problem of the "latch key child." Right now in Des Plaines there are few if any solutions to this problem. Our school buildings seem the logical place for such programs if indeed they are needed. League has been impressed with programs of this type which are being run in neighborhood districts such as the one recently opened in District 59 and the one in Wheeling.

If the school administration does not see a need for such a program neither time nor money will be spent to see if such a program is feasible. If citizens residing in District 62 are interested in before and after school care they must let the administration know. We urge you to inform the district so that the idea will not die because of "lack of interest."

A need for Dem reform

State Comptroller Michael Bakalis has come up with a sensible proposal to rejuvenate the Democratic Party in Illinois.

Bakalis has called for a special state party convention this summer to discuss ways to involve more people in the decision making process, reform slatemaking and provide a full-time state party staff.

Bakalis is well aware that the party, nearly all-powerful in Chicago and Cook County, does not have statewide dominance. He is also aware that the Downstate image of Democrats who dance to the tune of Chicago political power brokers has severely damaged the party's candidates in statewide races.

The tag "machine puppet" did much to sink the gubernatorial campaign of former Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett last fall. And the situation will not get better unless the state party can break away from being identified almost totally with Chicago interests.

In 1978, Bakalis and Sec. of State Alan Dixon can be expected to head the Democratic ticket against Gov. James R. Thompson, Atty. Gen. William Scott and Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal. U.S. Sen. Charles Percy probably will head the GOP ticket.

To prepare for that race, the state Democratic Party will have to heed Bakalis's call for internal reform. And there may never be a better time to make the needed changes.

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne, who has succeeded the late Richard J. Daley as county party chairman, has already taken steps to broaden the decision making base of the county party.

If Dunne and Bakalis can band together along with other concerned party leaders, they may well be able to make the kinds of reforms that will restore democracy — with a small "d" — to the Illinois Democratic Party.

That action will help ensure a dynamic two-party system in Illinois. In that event, all voters will win.

Close loopholes in disclosure order

Gov. James R. Thompson, who recently proposed laws requiring nearly total financial disclosure for elected officials, has partly backed away from that stand when it comes to his appointees.

It may be that Thompson's apparent double standard is a realistic answer to a problem with total disclosure. But until the governor can provide specific proof of that, the public has the right to view his latest action with skepticism.

Former Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order at the beginning of his term requiring all his appointees to make full financial disclosure, right down to their tax returns.

Thompson's order will require that kind of disclosure of state policy makers but will relieve those named to advisory boards and commissions of much of the disclosure requirement.

Thompson has justified his action by saying good people are shying away from government service, particularly on unpaid appointed boards and commissions, because of stringent disclosure requirements.

That may be the case. However, Thompson has not demonstrated specific incidents where disclosure requirements have kept people out of government. He should document his claim if he expects voters to take it seriously.

The governor has also left a loophole in his rule barring his cabinet member and other state officials from raising political funds from state employes.

Under Thompson's rule, department directors have been barred from soliciting funds from their own employes or those who do business with the state. They can, however, try to raise money from employes outside their department.

Thompson has pledged himself to improve governmental ethics and to set the tone for an open administration. In his proposals for ethics laws, he did a good job on that score. However, the loopholes in his recent executive order should be closed to maintain Thompson's good record.

Repayment for service

Many persons dedicated to civic affairs pass through the Northwest suburbs, making their marks through community groups or in elected or appointed office.

Seldom do their neighbors have the opportunity to recognize their contributions.

Lloyd Demel, a former member of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education, was one of those dedicated to helping his community. His friends and neighbors are now honoring him.

Mr. Demel died earlier this month of cancer at age 46. His neighbors have set up a special fund to help his family, which includes four children, to pay the medical bills that were accumulated in the last year of his life.

Mr. Demel served with distinction on the Dist. 26 board from 1972 until last November. He was a Cub Scout master, a YMCA instructor and was active in homeowners groups.

His contributions were appreciated. Now, through The Lloyd Demel Fund, residents of Prospect Heights have found a way to recognize his contributions by helping his family.

Contributions to the fund may be made to The Lloyd Demel Fund, First National Bank of Mount Prospect, Account No. 1279866.

Beware of the hunches

Camden, New Jersey, sits on the doorstep of Philadelphia. It is famous for R.C.A., Campbell's Soup, Jersey Joe Walcott and Thomas M. Roberts. In that order. Tommy is an old friend, and you are advised to look with suspicion upon anything I write.

His father was an Italian cabinetmaker who sickened of hard labor. So, after emigrating to America, he bought a lot of houses and personal loan companies. He could, if he chose, doze all day long and count his money all night.

Tommy was unlike his dad. Young Roberts is called a scrambler. A mover. He grabbed a diploma from Woodrow Wilson High School and ran downtown to tell the manager of radio station WCAM that he was now available as a disc jockey.

HE SPUN RECORDS for $23.50 a week. It kept him off welfare. What Tommy had to offer wasn't much — a dark handsome kisser, wavy hair, good teeth, a sense of humor and a voice which women found exciting.

The networks pretended that Roberts didn't exist. So he went to war in Korea. When he began to envy raw fish and seaweed, the U.S. Army sent Tommy back to Camden with a Commendation Ribbon. It wasn't the Congressional Medal of Honor, but Mayor George Brunner thought it was.

The mayor was a big Democratic wheel. Tommy's father knew that his son couldn't open a cabinet, much less make one, but Brunner tossed a heavy arm around the young man's shoulder and growled, "You're a hero."

BRUNNER GOT the young man a job at Garden State Race Track. "The state," he said, "gets 13 cents out of every buck bet. You can add, can't you? And subtract? New Jersey will give you a pencil."

Tommy wasn't happy. He was in an office under the deck and never saw a race. He was well paid, but he heard only crowd noises. What he wanted, with intense passion, was a microphone. If he couldn't make it big on radio, maybe he could announce a horse race.

They tried him out at the Atlantic City track. He sat in a high booth with binoculars and racing program and called the getaway, the first turn, the backstretch, the far turn, and the stretch run. It's as easy as identifying germ cultures under a dirty microscope.

IN THE FIRST race there was a rank outsider named Mesembryanthemum. The trainer couldn't pronounce it. He called the horse "Messy." With Roberts' luck going, Mesembryanthemum took the lead. Worse, he set the pace.

Tommy tried saying it three times. In the stretch call, the crowd fell apart laughing when Tommy intoned, "That horse is still leading." Two years later, NBC hired Roberts to announce all network stakes races.

This was a big step up. Tommy wore an ear piece so he could hear the director. He was about to call the Palm Beach Handicap when he said, "Ladies and gentlemen, here we are at beautiful Hialeah race course in living color." He fell down laughing when the director said. "Okay. Cue the flamingos." The peach-colored birds were supposed to fly.

WE MET AT Hialeah. Sometimes, in the paddock, I was Roberts' guest. I did it once too often. Kelly and I were coming into the track when Tommy waved. He needed a guest. I nodded and walked to his side.

A big camera on stilts stared myopically. "Well," Tommy said after a polite introduction, "who do you like in the Seminole Handicap?" My heart hesitated. My head didn't. I realized that I didn't know one horse in the race. I hadn't even opened a program.

We were on a coast-to-coast broadcast. I swallowed. "I don't like the favorite," I said weakly. His brown eyes popped. "You don't like Admiral Vic?" (I now knew one horse.) "No. This isn't his kind of track."

I DIDN'T KNOW what kind of track it was. "Who do you like? ""The outsider." "What outsider, Jim?" "The far outsider." "Ah, you think Top Gallant stands a chance?" I nodded and tapped perspiration. "Jim, he's going off to 57-1." "I don't care," I mumbled, "that's my baby."

Top Gallant finished in a dead heat with Admiral Vic. Many horse players thought I knew what I was talking about. I put $4 on Top Gallant as penance and took home $232.60 for being a dunce.

The remarkable feature of our friendship is that Tommy survived me. He met a builder, John J. Brunetti, who loved Hialeah Race Track and bought it. The race course, one of the most beautiful in the world, was almost broke.

Brunetti talked Roberts into becoming vice president and general manager. They make a sentimental team. Realizing the precarious position they were in, both decided not to invite me to the races . . .

Post-election comments by candidates

This letter is being written to express my concern regarding the recent endorsements your staff made in the Elk Grove Twp. District 59 elections. I do not question your rights to issue endorsements nor am I angry you did not choose to endorse my candidacy.

However, I do wish to take exception with your "stated" reasons for not endorsing me. Your editorial said my lack of endorsement was due to having "talked about fiscal responsibility in this campaign but having done little on the board to support it."

Here are some facts for your review. Since being appointed to the board a short four months ago, I was able to get two key financial changes incorporated into the district financial accounting system.

1. The monthly financial statements now include a column which projects the current year-end estimates for both expenditures and revenue. Pretty basic information, but not part of the financial statements until I joined the board four months ago and insisted on it.

2. The monthly trust account reports now include a description of what each expenditure is for. This too was "obviously" needed in order to intelligently review these expenditures.

In addition to the above I wish to point out that the "early purchase" recommendation I made for the special education van is estimated to have saved the district additional thousands of dollars this year. I was the only board member who voted against entering into a costly legal dispute which our own administration told us we had at best a 30 per cent chance of winning. I would remind you that I was the only board member who did not vote for increasing the early retirement provisions of our district major medical insurance. I thought it was a discussion item for negotiations and giving it away prior to then was ridiculous. Seems to me I've done more than just talk financial responsibility.

There are probably some other issues which we may have genuine disagreement on. Had your editorial staff opposed my election on any of these I would have understood and accepted it much easier.

Since your endorsement of District 59 candidates was purposely delayed until you could run it along with an editorial opposing the unit district, I was not at all surprised that you endorsed all four anti-unit district candidates. Carter economic program won't crimp lifestyle, Galbraith says

JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

President Carter's prescription for America's energy woes will have little impact on inflation or the suburban lifestyle, noted economist John Kenneth Galbraith told an audience Thursday night at Harper College in Palatine.

Galbraith said that although Carter's energy program could boost the level of consumer prices, it would have little impact on inflation compared to the higher prices for oil that could result without an energy conservation program.

In a press conference earlier, Galbraith said higher prices for gasoline and taxes on gas guzzling cars proposed in Carter's energy plan are really minor inconveniences rather than hardships. He said energy conservation programs will be good for the country in the long run.

THE LANKY Galbraith, a head taller than other persons standing near him, said it is nonsense for some people to say they need a big car. He said he has been driving a small car for years and feels no pain.

Auto makers may not like the changes in taxes and fuel costs proposed by Carter, Galbraith said. But the public will react with good sense, he said.

In his Wednesday night energy message, Carter called for standby authority to impose a federal gasoline tax if consumption nationwide does not decrease; taxes on gas guzzling cars and rebates on sales of small cars starting in the 1978 model year and tax rebates for homeowners who install insulation and storm windows.

The administration's conservation-oriented plan would tip the price balance away from oil to alternative resources such as solar energy and coal, a result Galbraith describes as 'a very sensible one.'

GALBRAITH SAID he would have liked President Carter's energy proposals better if there had been some mention of mass transportation.

Although Carter's proposal could boost the level of consumer prices, Galbraith said, "I would very strongly minimize the inflationary impact. Most of Carter's proposals are for one-time change," he said.

Galbraith, a professor of economics emeritus at Harvard University, is a former ambassador to India during the Kennedy administration. Among the many books he has authoried are "The Affluent Society," and "Economics and the Public Purpose."

The Massachusetts economist said there is a need "to take hold of the wage-price spiral" in the U.S. Galbraith said he puts little stock in presidential pressure for controlling prices.

HE DESCRIBED Carter's recent anti-inflation proposals as "effective as WIN (Whip Inflation Now) buttons" used in former President Ford's ill-fated drive to stem inflation. Galbraith said sanctions should be imposed if price and wage increases are not kept within reasonable limits.

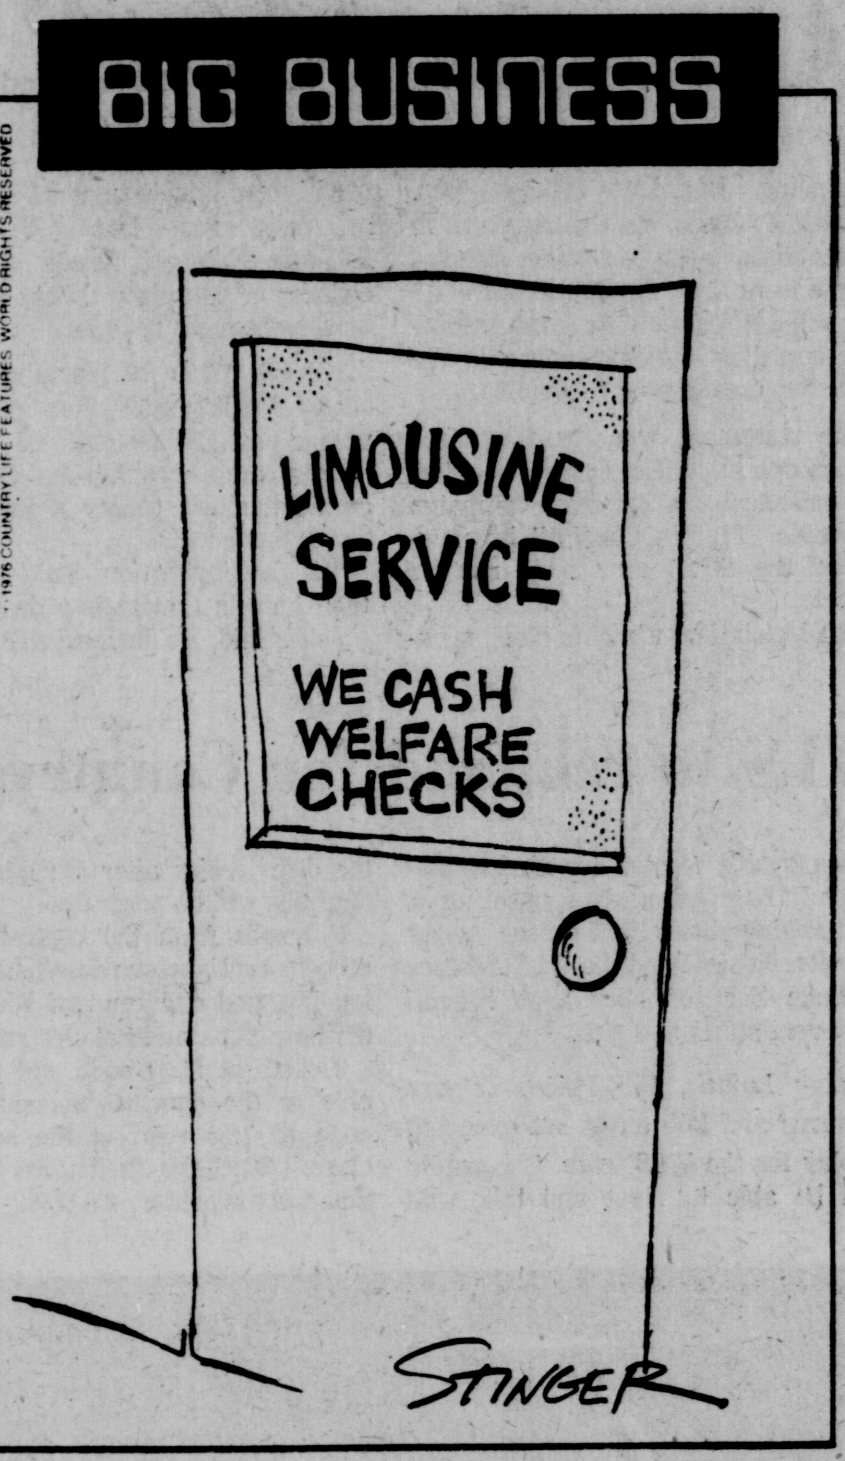
Most of Galbraith's talk centered on a description of capitalism, corporate and consumer power.

Galbraith said there is a "double, or by-modal economic system in the United States. He said half the system includes the concentration of retail, transportation, electric power, banking, communication and other large corporations. Many small manufacturers and retailers make up the rest of the economic society, he said.

Galbraith said large corporations can diffuse economic and purchasing power throughout the population.

Galbraith was elected in 1970 a fellow of Trinity College at the University of Cambridge. He has served as deputy administrator in the Office of Price Administration and he organized a war-time office of price control which he headed until 1943. He also was director of the U.S. Strategic Army Survey.

Galbraith was a member of the campaign staff of Adlai Stevenson in 1952 and 1956, chairman of the Economic Advisory Committee of the Economic Advisory council from 1956 to 1960.



Business briefs

Cut in business tax incentive killed

The Senate Thursday rejected President Carter's request to drop $2.4 billion in business tax incentives from a pending tax bill. Two days after routinely killing a $50 per person individual tax rebate, as Carter had asked, the Senate voted 74 to 20 against a motion by Senators Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to accede to the second half of Carter's request and delete the business tax cuts. These provisions would give businesses a choice between an extra 2 per cent investment tax credit or tax credits of up to $1,050 each for every new employe hired above last year's employment levels. The next major battle facing the Senate is a Republican move to add $7.5 billion a year in individual tax cuts to the $6 billion per year cut already in the bill.

House panel OKs 'lifeline' bill

The Illinois House Public Utilities Committee Thursday approved, 11 to 7, a so-called "lifeline" bill (H83) that would give home electricity users a break on spiraling utility costs. The controversial measure, attacked by opponents as an unnecessary welfare program that would only worsen the state's business climate, is sponsored by Rep. William Marovitz, D-Chicago. It now goes to the full House. Marovitz, who cut the bill's impact in half to gain enough support to get it out of committee, said, "This is a beginning. Now we have to educate the entire House, a process which took months for the committee." Marovitz said his bill would mean an average 11 per cent electricity bill saving on the first 500 kilowatt hours. "There will be further savings through 1,821 kilowatt hours monthly or, in the case of homes heated with electricity, through 3,100 kilowatt hours," he said. Originally, Marovitz said, H83 would have cost commercial and industrial users $165 million. To help blunt opposition from utilities, Marovitz changed his lifeline formula so the impact on industry now would be $82.5 million.

Truckers sue firm, Teamsters

Truckers fired by a Chicago-based transportation firm have sued Fisher Foods, Inc., Bedford Heights, Ohio, and Teamsters Local 407 for $40 million and also have filed an unfair labor practice charge with the National Labor Relations Board. Rentar Drivers Service, according to the suit filed in federal court, fired about 40 Fisher Foods workers who participated in an unauthorized walkout that began April 7. "We contend that Fisher violated the contract by transferring the work to Rentar," said attorney Robert T. Rosenfeid, who represents the truckers. "The contract with Local 407 did not permit this." Union leaders, according to Rowenfeld, breached their contract with members by failing to fight the Rentar takeover. He also accused Local 407 leaders of failing to honor the picket lines now up at the supermarket chain's warehouse.

Workmen's comp reform urged

Palmer App, central division president of the Kemper Insurance Companies in Long Grove, Thursday called for reform of Illinois' workmen's compensation laws. Speaking before the Labor and Commerce Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives, App urged passage of HB721, which would set new guidelines in determining a workers' disability. App also supported HB722, which would limit attorneys fees. The present workmen's compensation system costs too much for what it delivers to injured workers, App said.

Trading heavy but Dow falls 6.79

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, showing little enthusiasm for President Carter's energy program and worried about the economy's long-term outlook, lost ground Thursday in fairly active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

While most investors applauded Carter for focusing public attention on the nation's growing energy crisis, virtually every interest group in the nation complained about aspects of the five-part program.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.79 points to 935.80. It had been ahead more than three at the outset following Wednesday's 3.82-point advance.

The NYSE common stock index fell 0.36 to 54.34 and the average price of a common share decreased by 21 cents.

Declines topped advances, 883 to 555, among the 1,869 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 22,740,000 shares, down from the 25,090,000 traded Wednesday.

Higher prices up cost of living .6%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for transportation, housing, fresh fruit and coffee boosted the cost of living .6 per cent in March, the Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

Based on the first three months of this year, the Consumer Price Index shot up at a nearly 10 per cent annual rate, compared to the 4.2 per cent rate for the final quarter of 1976.

Meanwhile, increasing food costs helped raise Chicago area consumer prices in March by .7 per cent over the previous month, the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said Thursday. William R. Fischer, deputy regional commissioner for the bureau, said two-fifths of the over-all increase was due to higher food costs. Clothing, health and recreational price increases added another one-fifth.

THE SURGING nationwide inflation along with tax increases cut the average worker's spendable earnings .1 per cent from March a year ago. In terms of 1967 dollars, the average worker last month earned $90.84 a week, 8 cents less than in March, 1976.

But there was some good news.

Food prices moderated slightly from the fast increases when extreme cold weather destroyed crops in January and February. The slowing rate of increase helped to hold the CPI below the 1 per cent of February and .8 per cent of January.

But the .6 per cent rise was still high by traditional standards — including 1976 when the CPI rose by .5 per cent or less every month except May.

Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal and other administration economic advisers have predicted inflation will remain relatively high until late summer.

THE CONSUMER Price Index stood at 178.2 in March from the 1967 base of 100. This means consumers paid $17.82 in March for goods costing $10 only a decade ago.

The U. S. Labor Dept. said transportation services increased because of higher prices for auto insurance and repairs and fares for taxis, airplanes and railroads.

Household services cost more because of higher rents, mortgage interest and rates for cooking gas and electricity.

Galbraith, a professor of economics emeritus at Harvard University, is a former ambassador to India during the Kennedy administration. Among the many books he has authoried are "The Affluent Society," and "Economics and the Public Purpose."

The Massachusetts economist said there is a need "to take hold of the wage-price spiral" in the U.S. Galbraith said he puts little stock in presidential pressure for controlling prices.

HE DESCRIBED Carter's recent anti-inflation proposals as "effective as WIN (Whip Inflation Now) buttons" used in former President Ford's ill-fated drive to stem inflation. Galbraith said sanctions should be imposed if price and wage increases are not kept within reasonable limits.

Most of Galbraith's talk centered on a description of capitalism, corporate and consumer power.

Galbraith said there is a "double, or by-modal economic system in the United States. He said half the system includes the concentration of retail, transportation, electric power, banking, communication and other large corporations. Many small manufacturers and retailers make up the rest of the economic society, he said.

Galbraith said large corporations can diffuse economic and purchasing power throughout the population.

Galbraith was elected in 1970 a fellow of Trinity College at the University of Cambridge. He has served as deputy administrator in the Office of Price Administration and he organized a war-time office of price control which he headed until 1943. He also was director of the U.S. Strategic Army Survey.

Galbraith was a member of the campaign staff of Adlai Stevenson in 1952 and 1956, chairman of the Economic Advisory Committee of the Economic Advisory council from 1956 to 1960.

Cut in business tax incentive killed

The Senate Thursday rejected President Carter's request to drop $2.4 billion in business tax incentives from a pending tax bill. Two days after routinely killing a $50 per person individual tax rebate, as Carter had asked, the Senate voted 74 to 20 against a motion by Senators Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to accede to the second half of Carter's request and delete the business tax cuts. These provisions would give businesses a choice between an extra 2 per cent investment tax credit or tax credits of up to $1,050 each for every new employe hired above last year's employment levels. The next major battle facing the Senate is a Republican move to add $7.5 billion a year in individual tax cuts to the $6 billion per year cut already in the bill.

House panel OKs 'lifeline' bill

The Illinois House Public Utilities Committee Thursday approved, 11 to 7, a so-called "lifeline" bill (H83) that would give home electricity users a break on spiraling utility costs. The controversial measure, attacked by opponents as an unnecessary welfare program that would only worsen the state's business climate, is sponsored by Rep. William Marovitz, D-Chicago. It now goes to the full House. Marovitz, who cut the bill's impact in half to gain enough support to get it out of committee, said, "This is a beginning. Now we have to educate the entire House, a process which took months for the committee." Marovitz said his bill would mean an average 11 per cent electricity bill saving on the first 500 kilowatt hours. "There will be further savings through 1,821 kilowatt hours monthly or, in the case of homes heated with electricity, through 3,100 kilowatt hours," he said. Originally, Marovitz said, H83 would have cost commercial and industrial users $165 million. To help blunt opposition from utilities, Marovitz changed his lifeline formula so the impact on industry now would be $82.5 million.

Truckers sue firm, Teamsters

Truckers fired by a Chicago-based transportation firm have sued Fisher Foods, Inc., Bedford Heights, Ohio, and Teamsters Local 407 for $40 million and also have filed an unfair labor practice charge with the National Labor Relations Board. Rentar Drivers Service, according to the suit filed in federal court, fired about 40 Fisher Foods workers who participated in an unauthorized walkout that began April 7. "We contend that Fisher violated the contract by transferring the work to Rentar," said attorney Robert T. Rosenfeid, who represents the truckers. "The contract with Local 407 did not permit this." Union leaders, according to Rowenfeld, breached their contract with members by failing to fight the Rentar takeover. He also accused Local 407 leaders of failing to honor the picket lines now up at the supermarket chain's warehouse.

Workmen's comp reform urged

Palmer App, central division president of the Kemper Insurance Companies in Long Grove, Thursday called for reform of Illinois' workmen's compensation laws. Speaking before the Labor and Commerce Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives, App urged passage of HB721, which would set new guidelines in determining a workers' disability. App also supported HB722, which would limit attorneys fees. The present workmen's compensation system costs too much for what it delivers to injured workers, App said.

Higher prices up cost of living .6%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for transportation, housing, fresh fruit and coffee boosted the cost of living .6 per cent in March, the Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

Based on the first three months of this year, the Consumer Price Index shot up at a nearly 10 per cent annual rate, compared to the 4.2 per cent rate for the final quarter of 1976.

Meanwhile, increasing food costs helped raise Chicago area consumer prices in March by .7 per cent over the previous month, the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said Thursday. William R. Fischer, deputy regional commissioner for the bureau, said two-fifths of the over-all increase was due to higher food costs. Clothing, health and recreational price increases added another one-fifth.

THE SURGING nationwide inflation along with tax increases cut the average worker's spendable earnings .1 per cent from March a year ago. In terms of 1967 dollars, the average worker last month earned $90.84 a week, 8 cents less than in March, 1976.

But there was some good news.

Food prices moderated slightly from the fast increases when extreme cold weather destroyed crops in January and February. The slowing rate of increase helped to hold the CPI below the 1 per cent of February and .8 per cent of January.

But the .6 per cent rise was still high by traditional standards — including 1976 when the CPI rose by .5 per cent or less every month except May.

Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal and other administration economic advisers have predicted inflation will remain relatively high until late summer.

THE CONSUMER Price Index stood at 178.2 in March from the 1967 base of 100. This means consumers paid $17.82 in March for goods costing $10 only a decade ago.

The U. S. Labor Dept. said transportation services increased because of higher prices for auto insurance and repairs and fares for taxis, airplanes and railroads.

Household services cost more because of higher rents, mortgage interest and rates for cooking gas and electricity.

Trading heavy but Dow falls 6.79

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, showing little enthusiasm for President Carter's energy program and worried about the economy's long-term outlook, lost ground Thursday in fairly active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

While most investors applauded Carter for focusing public attention on the nation's growing energy crisis, virtually every interest group in the nation complained about aspects of the five-part program.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.79 points to 935.80. It had been ahead more than three at the outset following Wednesday's 3.82-point advance.

The NYSE common stock index fell 0.36 to 54.34 and the average price of a common share decreased by 21 cents.

Declines topped advances, 883 to 555, among the 1,869 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 22,740,000 shares, down from the 25,090,000 traded Wednesday.

Wendell Jones says

County 'dead' unless bills OKd

Outgoing Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, the driving force in efforts to have the Northwest suburbs secede from Cook County, says the effort will be "dead" unless the legislature approves major changes in the laws for creating new counties.

The statement was the first time the energetic public figure, who has run practically a one-man campaign to create "Lincoln County," has suggested the effort may have run its course.

The legislation, which is being sponsored in the Illinois General Assembly by State Sen. David J. Regner R-Mount Prospect, would make the chances of passing a county secession movement more realistic.

JONES, WHO IS planning to stay out of the limelight after leaving his village post this month, said he would be chairman of a full-scale effort to create the new county if the legislation is passed.

"If the legislation isn't approved then Lincoln County is a dead duck," Jones said. He declined to forecast the fate of the bills.

Jones' proposal calls for the formation of the state's 103rd county by having Barrington, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Hanover townships secede from Cook County.

State law now requires a majority of voters in all of Cook County to approve such a move. Regner's legislation would allow the move if a majority of the voters in the affected area vote to approve.

One minor bill in the package has reached the Illinois Senate floor, but all three bills must be acted on by early May in order to make a self-imposed deadline for action.

THE LINCOLN COUNTY push was expected to face an uphill fight even if the bills got through the legislature.

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne has said he will not attempt to block the effort and will aid the creation of the county if the proposal gets voter approval. However, he has publicly questioned the need for the creation of the new county.

Jones has asked the Northwest Municipal Conference to support the move, but conference officials want an economic feasibility study of the proposals.

The local government group has asked both the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission to prepare the study. The DLGA has turned down the request and NIPA is continuing to study it.

WLS to rebound for Countryside

Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Barrington, is sponsoring a fund-raising basketball game today between its staff and the WLS Allstars at Lake Zurich Junior High School. The event starts at 8 p.m.

Larry Lujack, Bill Price, Tommy Edwards and Bob Sirott are expected to play for the WLS team. The public will be able to meet and talk with the disc jockies after the game. Photographs will be permitted.

Proceeds from the contest will be used to continue providing services to handicapped children and adults from northern Cook and Lake counties.

Tickets at $1.50 each will be available at the door. Gymnasium doors open at 7:30 p.m. at the school, 66 Church St., Lake Zurich. For information call the center, 438-8855.

Clarification

The photographs of Mount Prospect mayor-elect Carolyn H. Krause and Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter appearing in Thursday's Herald were incorrectly identified. The identifications were reversed. The Herald regrets the error.

JESSE VINT AND Karen Carlson star together in "Black Oak Conspiracy" opening today in the Chicago suburbs. It's Jesse's first attempt at producing.

Good guy Vint low-key hero in 'Black Oak'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Jesse Vint admits he'd rather drive a motorcycle through a wall of fire than appear on a talk show.

He leaves the extemporaneous speeches up to his co-star and girlfriend, Karen Carlson, because "she's pretty good at that." Take the time in Tulsa, Okla., Vint's hometown, when Karen ended one such occasion with an honest-to-goodness hog call. Jesse was really proud of her.

Vint was in Chicago last week with Karen to promote his new film, "Black Oak Conspiracy." He was scheduled to do a talk show — his first.

Vint was nervous just thinking about being interviewed live, but whether he knew it or not, his apprehension served as a reassuring, honest endorsement of his plain-folk character.

"BLACK OAK Conspiracy" opens today with little fanfare. It is not the overnight success story of "Rocky" though the chance factor was the same, and the script pleases like a sip of fresh lemonade to cut the bitter aftertaste of too much screen disaster and rampant violence. It's an upbeat, leisurely paced soap, so subtle and detailed, however, it's downright appealing.

Vint didn't actually write the screenplay as Sylvester Stallone did in creating "Rocky." Rather, Vint purchased the script from Hugh Smith. But he did do extensive rewriting, then starred in the film and produced it.

What's more, Vint also managed to keep "Black Oak Conspiracy" under budget, an unusually low $400,000 which Vint said "represents a lot of value for the money." It was shot in four weeks.

Vint, whose last big credit was a starring role in "Macon County Line," plays a Hollywood stuntman, Jingles Johnson, who is summoned to return to Black Oak because his mother is dying of a strange, undiagnosed blood disease. She lies in a deep coma at the town's only nursing home. Her house is gone — sold to a mining company that is busy buying up much of the land around Black Oak.

JINGLES' CHARACTER is more in line with Peck's bad boy. Trouble unwittingly follows him, though he's a likable, sincere fellow seemingly rebuffed unfairly by the townspeople and his girlfriend, Karen Carlson, who is still embittered by his leaving town previously without her.

In tracing the cause of his mother's sudden illness, Jingles uncovers a huge land fraud involving most of the solid citizenry of Black Oak, including the sheriff.

The movie is low key and methodical—like Vint himself. But back in Tulsa, Vint was truly Peck's bad boy—expelled three times from high school. He loaded his gear onto a Greyhound bus one day and left for New York, where he took up acting. Sticking potatoes in the exhaust pipes of cars to stall out the engine does work. Vint knows. He used to do it himself as a practical joke.

Karen Likens Vint's easygoing, self-assured manner to a Clint Eastwood kind of charisma. And Vint smiles, "If 'im going to be compared to any actor, I sure don't mind Eastwood."

KAREN CARLSON was cast as Lucy by a "unanimous decision," according to Vint, who hardly knew Karen at the time but wasn't put off that she hadn't memorized her lines for the audition.

"Little by little working together, we developed a relationship. We've been together now a year," said Karen. "It was a great part for me, but one I never would have normally chosen."

That's because Lucy is more unspoiled and down-to-earth than the sophisticated lady usually opted by Karen who, for instance, played Robert Redford's wife in "The Candidate."

Vint and Carlson are a study in contrasts — Vint dressed for the interview in white T-shirt and jeans, Carlson in silk shirt, pants tucked in high-fashion boots. But the beer they both ordered says something of the crossover. So does Karen's hog call.

"As a relationship, this movie is a key to our future," continued Karen. "If the film does well financially, Vint will be able to go on to the next project. I'll have some form of involvement, I'm sure."

VINT'S IDEAL is a film production company in which he could write, direct and produce, though he draws the line at directing himself in a film.

"For an actor to direct himself is very difficult. You almost need a third eye. I can't think of anything while I'm acting except what's happening in the situation."

And having previous directing experience is not crucial, according to Karen, who would much prefer someone like Vint — for more than one reason — over a director who came up the ranks "so technically oriented, everything is sacrificed for convenience and time."

It's one reason Vint preferred an independent film company, New World Pictures, to release "Black Oak Conspiracy." He didn't want to be bullied by a larger studio.

Vint was in complete charge — supervising the editing of the film, casting, hiring the director and even conferring on the theme

Prints comprise a varied exhibit

Countryside Art Center's current print show is not only aesthetically pleasing, it provides an educational service to those visiting the gallery at 407 N. Vail, Arlington Heights.

Print is an all-encompassing term, and just how extensive the medium is shows up in the gallery's treatment of woodcuts, etchings, serigraphs and lithographs. The printing process may appear the same — even look the same — though slightly different procedures result in technically different impressions.

The show incorporates the work of Chicago artists Mildred Armato, Robin Freedenfeld, Thelma Haagstadt, Ben Mahmoud, Meg McDonald and Donna Reed.

John Doyle, former art instructor at Forest View High School who currently resides in Colorado, is exhibiting a grouping of western-influenced lithographs while the more whimsical caricature of David Driesback — "light my way through meatballs" — contrasts with those pieces surrealistic in nature.

Talent is exceedingly varied and sometimes unusual, making for an extremely diversified, interesting exhibit. The nice thing about prints is, more than one can be run off the same plate.

Consequently, prints are usually a bit more affordable, though in limited editions, prints still represent a worthy art investment.

In case you're not sure what distinguishes an etching from a serigraph, and most people don't, Countryside has provided material to define each printing process. It's a nice touch to the show that continues through May 20. The gallery is open Tuesday through Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

THE HERALD medley

Friday, April 22, 1977 Section 2

JESSE VINT AND Karen Carlson star together in "Black Oak Conspiracy" opening today in the Chicago suburbs. It's Jesse's first attempt at producing.

Good guy Vint low-key hero in 'Black Oak'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Jesse Vint admits he'd rather drive a motorcycle through a wall of fire than appear on a talk show.

He leaves the extemporaneous speeches up to his co-star and girlfriend, Karen Carlson, because "she's pretty good at that." Take the time in Tulsa, Okla., Vint's hometown, when Karen ended one such occasion with an honest-to-goodness hog call. Jesse was really proud of her.

Vint was in Chicago last week with Karen to promote his new film, "Black Oak Conspiracy." He was scheduled to do a talk show — his first.

Vint was nervous just thinking about being interviewed live, but whether he knew it or not, his apprehension served as a reassuring, honest endorsement of his plain-folk character.

"BLACK OAK Conspiracy" opens today with little fanfare. It is not the overnight success story of "Rocky" though the chance factor was the same, and the script pleases like a sip of fresh lemonade to cut the bitter aftertaste of too much screen disaster and rampant violence. It's an upbeat, leisurely paced soap, so subtle and detailed, however, it's downright appealing.

Vint didn't actually write the screenplay as Sylvester Stallone did in creating "Rocky." Rather, Vint purchased the script from Hugh Smith. But he did do extensive rewriting, then starred in the film and produced it.

What's more, Vint also managed to keep "Black Oak Conspiracy" under budget, an unusually low $400,000 which Vint said "represents a lot of value for the money." It was shot in four weeks.

Vint, whose last big credit was a starring role in "Macon County Line," plays a Hollywood stuntman, Jingles Johnson, who is summoned to return to Black Oak because his mother is dying of a strange, undiagnosed blood disease. She lies in a deep coma at the town's only nursing home. Her house is gone — sold to a mining company that is busy buying up much of the land around Black Oak.

JINGLES' CHARACTER is more in line with Peck's bad boy. Trouble unwittingly follows him, though he's a likable, sincere fellow seemingly rebuffed unfairly by the townspeople and his girlfriend, Karen Carlson, who is still embittered by his leaving town previously without her.

In tracing the cause of his mother's sudden illness, Jingles uncovers a huge land fraud involving most of the solid citizenry of Black Oak, including the sheriff.

song, "Jingles' Song," woven through the entire film. It was written by Phil Everly and Don Peake and sung by Phil Everly.

"Black Oak Conspiracy" is one of those films that won't take first, but will place well at the finish. The fact that it's Vint's first time at bat is even more significant.

THERE ARE tremendous location shots — better even than Vint expected — and good supporting performers including Albert Salmi and Seymour Cassel. There are humor and tragedy and one tastefully filmed love scene that, according to Karen, was humorous in itself.

"It took six hours to get Vint to even take his robe off," said Karen, laughing as she described how the two learned the hard way — swollen eyes and all-night sneezing — not to roll around in the hay.

Did it look good, she wanted to know, because it was cold shooting the scene. The temperature was 30 degrees.

"The irony is, I wasn't even attracted to Vint at first."

What did it? "That devil-may-care charm of his," she confirms.

"I find this very exciting. I never even thought I'd feel this way about anyone again."

CARLSON AND VINT both have been married and each has a son, but in answer to getting married Vint doesn't hesitate, "Yes, I think so."

Only both say they want to be sure. I think both of them already are. They're buying a pygmy goat together when they return to California.

A meeting room for the captains of industry can also be a luncheon room for the ladies' auxiliary.

"Black Oak Conspiracy" is one of those films that won't take first, but will place well at the finish. The fact that it's Vint's first time at bat is even more significant.

THERE ARE tremendous location shots — better even than Vint expected — and good supporting performers including Albert Salmi and Seymour Cassel. There are humor and tragedy and one tastefully filmed love scene that, according to Karen, was humorous in itself.

"It took six hours to get Vint to even take his robe off," said Karen, laughing as she described how the two learned the hard way — swollen eyes and all-night sneezing — not to roll around in the hay.

Did it look good, she wanted to know, because it was cold shooting the scene. The temperature was 30 degrees.

"The irony is, I wasn't even attracted to Vint at first."

What did it? "That devil-may-care charm of his," she confirms.

"I find this very exciting. I never even thought I'd feel this way about anyone again."

CARLSON AND VINT both have been married and each has a son, but in answer to getting married Vint doesn't hesitate, "Yes, I think so."

Only both say they want to be sure. I think both of them already are. They're buying a pygmy goat together when they return to California.

A meeting room for the captains of industry can also be a luncheon room for the ladies' auxiliary.

Our penthouse Board of Trade Room makes any event for up to 20 very luxurious and very special.

Complete with a 36th-floor view, it features a fireplace, wet bar, library, and private bath. Plus the availability of a concierge, a limousine, and meals prepared by gourmet chefs.

We also offer a choice of 24 other private function rooms. Indoor parking. Three fine restaurants, including the award-winning Truffles. And guest rooms with a view.

All of it, to start your special occasion off in the right direction.

'Mr. Billion' just a joy ride

Don't take this film seriously

Review

"Mr. Billion" doesn't try to be anything it's not, and for that very reason, it will sneak by as more than an acceptable picture:

Besides, with its PG rating and simplified good-overcomes-evil philosophy, "Mr. Billion" is another picture to consider for the kids. There are safe ones without a Walt Disney signature. And this one released by 20th Century-Fox is one.

Anthony Falcone, head of Falcon Finance Company, is killed instantly when his own falcon statue falls off the building and hits him. Anthony's nephew Guido Falcone (Terence Hill)l a car mechanic in Mandello, Italy, becomes the sole, surviving inheritor.

GUIDO IS nicknamed Mr. Billion. However, there is one stipulation. He is required to appear in San Francisco within 20 days of the reading of the will, or control of the company remains in the hands of John Cutler (Jackie Gleason), Falcone's right-hand man and designated villian in this film.

Cutler plots Guido's demise by hiring the beautiful Rosie (Valerie Perrine) to beguile him into giving up his inheritance. And as a backup, he sends three kidnappers to dispose of Guido as he travels across country by rail.

The rest of the film unfolds like the "Perils of Pauline" as Guido and Rosie encounter one misadventure after another. If I failed to mention it before, Rosie and Guido fall in love.

THERE ARE CAR chases, harrowing helicopter escapes and barroom brawls — old-fashioned ones where the only visible splinters come from broken tables.

Not a drop of blood is shed.

For this, his first American-made film, Terence Hill plays an endearing sort of chap who relies on the mercy of complete strangers to get him out of a pinch or two.

That's the first indication that "Mr. Billion" is not for real. It would be nice, of course, but who is going to let someone drive off in your car with only the promise — "I'm Mr. Billion. I'll repay you as soon as I get to San Francisco. Trust me."

Yet Jonathan Kaplan keeps the action fast and furious among picturesque scenes, particularly of the Grand Canyon.

THERE ARE amusing sequences in "Mr. Billion" — police cars getting caught up in a demolition derby, and a host of slick car tricks, the likes we haven't seen since "The Getaway."

But that's the premise behind "Mr. Billion." Guido learned to speak English from watching John Wayne films and to drive from Steve McQueen. He is simply enacting one fantasy after another.

Slim Pickins makes a great sidekick, and Gleason turns in his usual fine, though very underplayed, performance. Valerine Perrine, however, has little to do except go along for the ride.

The movie is only an hour and a half long and that helps too. Because just when you get tired of watching, it's over.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Black Sunday" — A pyschotically disgruntled Vietnam veteran (Bruce Dern) and a beautiful but dangerous Palestinian terrorist (Marthe Keller), match wits with Israeli agent Robert Shaw as they conspire toobliterate 80,000 innocent spectators at a Super Bowl game in John Frankenheimer's well-paced suspenseful thriller. (R).

"Airport '77" — Another plane in peril, this one owned by multi-millionnaire James Stewart and populated by hijacking art thieves along with a traditionally "all-star" cast. The plane sinks into the Bermuda Triangle and is eventually retrieved by a crackerjack Naval operation. (PG).

"Slap Shot" — Paul Newman plays the aging player-coach of a third-rate local hockey team in George Roy Hill's vulgar, violent and exuberantly funny look at the casual brutality that characterizes the sport. Obscene language and bone-crunching action may offend many, but it's all played for liberating laughs (R).

"A Star Is Born" — The perpetual presence of Barbara Streisand looms large over this lavish remake of the twice-told Hollywood classic, updated to the rock music scene of the 1970s with Kris Kristofferson as the falling star she romances and finally eclipses. Streisand's very good and so's the music, but the story — and potential emotional involvement — have been badly diluted by the imbalance of her excesses. (R).

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way.(PG).

'Flowers' cast keeps 'em laughing

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Review

Not every cast can take an outdated domestic comedy, milk the lines for all they're worth, and turn out two and a half hours of continuous laughter, but the actors in "Send Me No Flowers" do just that.

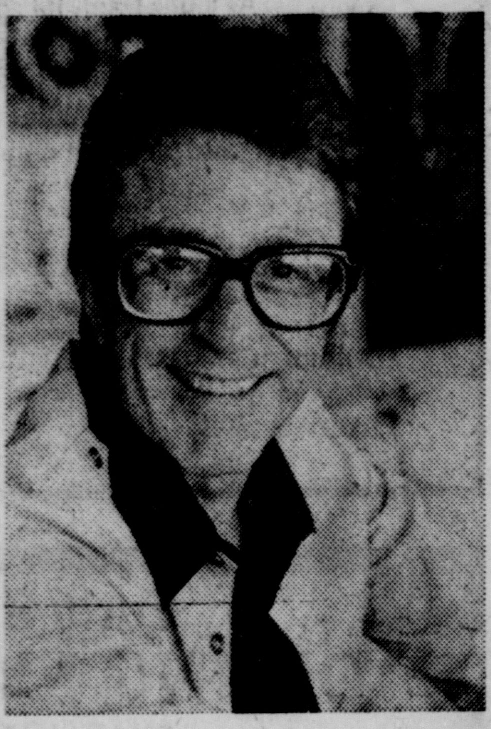
From Bill Bixby's energetic lead to Dennis F. Kennedy's small but hilarious role as an offbeat cemetery salesman, the cast uses perfect gestures and timing to disguise what in lesser hands could be a decidedly average evening of theater.

The 1960 comedy, currently at Drury Lane North in Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, features Bixby as George Kimball, a hypochondriac who makes an annoying habit of annual checkups (his last one was two weeks ago). Continually coughing, sneezing or fighting chest pains, the would-be invalid calls in his doctor for one more reassurance.

He's informed that his health is perfect — but when he overhears his doctor's telephone conversation about another patient with an incurable heart condition, he panics.

ASSUMING THAT HE is the doomed patient, George dejectedly sends his doctor off on a fishing trip and prepares for the worst. First on the agenda is Judy, his cute young wife who has been consistently unsympathetic to his complaints. But while she has enough savvy to read through her husband, mundane details like writing checks and figuring insurance costs baffle her.

Convinced his death would doom her to a life as a helpless, pencil peddler in front of Carnegie Hall, George sets up a romance between his wife and her old college boyfriend (a handsome and well-heeled bachelor who happens to be visiting for the weekend).



Bill Bixby

Judy gets suspicious and thinks there's another woman — but you get the idea. It all works out eventually, and the laughs are so frequent it's easy to ignore the play's anachronisms.

Bill Bixby has handled everything from the dramatic lead in "Steambath'' to a directing stint on "Charlie's Angels," and that versatility comes through in "Send Me No Flowers." He bowls the audience over whether he's mooning over his hapless fate or frantically trying to convince his wife that he really hasn't cheated on her.

WHILE BIXBY'S energy and animation set the pace, his wife Brenda Benet's quiet, understated delivery is effective on its own. She leaves the sweeping gestures and agonized expressions to him and the result is two performances that click perfectly.

Brett Hadley as the Kimballs' sympathetic neighbor is a delight. He reaches for the Scotch as soon as George breaks the news, and his drunken attempt at a eulogy is a high point in the play.

Equally strong is George Brengel as Dr. Morrissey, the easygoing M. D. who complains on his way to a fishing trip that he should be a specialist so he can make more money and take life easy.

DESPITE THE outdated characterigations and '60s morality, there are plenty of good lines in "Send Me No Flowers." We can still chuckle at a salesman's description of Eternal Gardens, the Levittown of the hereafter. And George's observation on medical care that "one of the most expensive things you can do these days is linger" still rings true.

"Send Me No Flowers" is on stage at Marriott's Lincolnshire through May 8.

Directs area high school troupe

J. J. Stamm of Palatine, is director of the Chicagoland High School Theatrical Troupe production of "Guys and Dolls" on stage at Whitney Young Performing Arts Center, 1400 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Stamm has been director of musicals at St. Viator High School for more than 10 years. He is also chairman of the choral department at Taft High School, Chicago.

'Flowers' cast keeps 'em laughing

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Review

Not every cast can take an outdated domestic comedy, milk the lines for all they're worth, and turn out two and a half hours of continuous laughter, but the actors in "Send Me No Flowers" do just that.

From Bill Bixby's energetic lead to Dennis F. Kennedy's small but hilarious role as an offbeat cemetery salesman, the cast uses perfect gestures and timing to disguise what in lesser hands could be a decidedly average evening of theater.

The 1960 comedy, currently at Drury Lane North in Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort, features Bixby as George Kimball, a hypochondriac who makes an annoying habit of annual checkups (his last one was two weeks ago). Blondie may save New York rock

by BRUCE MEYER

DISCovering rock

Nearly every big city in the country can lay claim to having advanced the art and commerce of rock 'n' roll — all, that is, except one.

New York City has the worst track record in the country when you measure by the number of bands that have "made it" nationally.

The only New York band currently on the list is Kiss. About the only other New York names that come readily to mind are Lou Reed and Patti Smith — and even they remain largely cult figures.

The current wave of "punk-rock" bands shows all the timetested signs of turning into a well-hyped fiasco. Grim powerbands like the Ramones, Television and the Talking Heads already appear to be edging down the glitter-strewn path formerly taken by the New York Dolls.

But now there's Blondie — and there may be hope for the Big Apple after all.

BLONDIE PRESENTS the world with a novel combination: 1970s electric firepower, 1960s teen viewpoint, and a welcome dose of pure 1950s Hollywood sexkitten glamour.

Standing at the focal point of all this and playing title role — in mini-dress and thigh-high boots and bleached blonde hair — is Deborah Harry, singer and sometime Marilyn Monroe look-alike.

A Miami native, Debbie has been knocking around the New York street scene for at least 10 years, occasionally finding a band in need of a vocalist, more often just staying alive with whatever work was available.

Finally another down-and-out musician, Chris Stein, wandered into a storefront dive and saw Debbie singing with a loser group called the Stilletoes. It was love, of a sort, at first sight.

"They were playing in this little crummy bar on 24th street," recalls Stein. "They had a board on a pool table for a stage. I was really smitten with Debbie, but I didn't talk to her, I just watched the show — it was more cabaret than rock. Later I asked my girlfriend, who I was with that night, who she was."

STEIN AND HARRY soon joined forces on both the personal and business level, moving in together and forming Blondie with musicians gleaned from the growing punk-rock scene.

At first they seemed to be little more than one more entry in the boogie sweepstakes at CBGB's, the Bowery club that has spawned nearly all the better-known New York bands of late. But Blondie's stylish blend of teen-age passion, hardedged guitars and simple, early '60s arrangements was something fresh — and Debbie gave the band a visual appeal few competitors could hope to match.

The first album, "Blondie" (Private Stock PS-2023), is a good introduction to the band's music, though the rather subdued instrumentals and clean mix fail to convey the frantic pace of their stage show. The opening track, "X Offender," (changed from the original "Sex Offender" to avoid offending radio program directors) is an instant rock classic.

Even with its flaws, the LP is one of the best-ever debuts by a New York band — certainly the best since Patti Smith's first collection, and a good deal more in tune with musical tastes west of the Hudson.

So here's hoping Blondie makes it. New York can use those export dollars.

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyotas than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyotas still on the road.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a car you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable cars. For example, you can't buy a new Toyota that doesn't have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting. And there are 27 different Toyota models to choose from.

Value. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold its value. Toyotas have traditionally high resale value. A Toyota is like money in the bank.

*These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

YOU ASKED FOR IT. YOU GOT IT.

SR-5 Sport Truck
with 5-speed overdrive transmission.

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyotas than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyotas still on the road.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a car you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable cars. For example, you can't buy a new Toyota that doesn't have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting. And there are 27 different Toyota models to choose from.

Value. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold its value. Toyotas have traditionally high resale value. A Toyota is like money in the bank.

*These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

YOU ASKED FOR IT. YOU GOT IT.

Elegant dining in rural setting

Step into the Greenery Restaurant of Barrington and you are surrounded by an aura of country charm. Soft candlelight and white walls and tablecloths give the restaurant an intimate but airy atmosphere. Dining at the Greenery, formerly a wing of a schoolhouse built in 1883, is more like dining in the home of your country cousins than in a Northwest suburban restaurant.

Featuring:

The Greenery

Since we were the first diners on an early Tuesday evening, our waiter was attentive and friendly about answering our many questions. However, the service lagged slightly after other diners arrived, but our waiter appeared to be the only one working that night.

The atmosphere may be rural, but the menu is elegant. For an appetizer I tried the quiche Loraine, $1.75, which was tasty. My friend was pleased with her choice of soup du jour, 75 cents, which was Coney Island clam chowder, a combination of New England and Manhattan clam chowder served hot, thick and slightly spicy. Oysters, snails and French onion soup complete the appetizer list.

THE GREENERY OFFERS entree specials that change daily. I chose the chicken cacciatore special, $7.25, served in a delicious tomato sauce over noodles. Wild rice and zucchini were included. My friend ordered the boned trout a la Greenery, $7.95, stuffed with crabmeat chunks, which she said was good but a little bland. Sliced potatoes with a cheese and butter crust accompanied the trout, as did the wild rice and zucchini.

Bill o' fare

Only eight entrees, priced from $7.95 to $10.95, are listed on the regular menu, including steak, filet, Alaskan king crab legs, Veal scaloppini and roast Long Island duckling. Dinners include rolls, which were dry and cold, and a house salad with a tasty and unusual oil and herb dressing. Roquefort dressing is $1 extra. Wine is available.

FOR DESSERT WE split a baked Alsska, $2.50, which my friend said was inferior to others she had tried. The serving was small, the shortcake was hard and it could have used more meringue. Topped as it was with only a small flaming sugar cube, it looked less than impressive. Other gourmet desserts cost $1.50.

The Greenery Restaurant, 117 North Ave., 381-9000, is open for lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Dinner reservations are accepted for 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The Greenery will be open Sundays during the summer.

Arledge cleared in boxing scandal

In the wake of expected indictments and the snowballing controversy over the "U. S. Boxing Championships," ABC has exonerated its sports chief Roone Arledge from the scandal to keep the way clear for his anticipated promotion.

Frederick S. Pierce, president of ABC Television, Thursday issued a statement saying the seemingly crooked television boxing tournaments will have no bearing on the future of Arledge, who has been rumored for months to be on the verge of assuming additional network duties as chief of ABC news and documentaries.

Pierce stressed Arledge's role in investigating the scandals and ABC sports' "unusual precautions to ensure the integrity of this tournament."

MEANWHILE, A FEDERAL grand jury investigation of the "U. S. Boxing Championships" is expected to result in the announcement today of findings and indictments.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore has been hearing testimony on alleged bribes and fixes in connection with the boxing tournament. The investigation was initiated when heavyweight fighter Scott LeDoux alleged corruption after he lost a decision to Johnny Boudreaux in one of the early "U. S. Boxing Championships" bouts in February.

ABC has launched its own investigation into the matter and has hired Michael Armstrong, former chief counsel of the Knapp Commission, to head the inquiry.

The network has suspended the fights, leaving nine out of the 16 "U. S. Boxing Championships" planned untelevized. The suspension decision was made at dawn last Saturday, three hours before the scheduled broadcast of three boxing tournament semifinal bouts from Miami.

IT WOULD BE SMART of ABC, with its No. 1 ratings and golden reputation in sports broadcasting, to cancel what remains of the "U. S. Boxing Championships" early in what could be a long and highly publicized mess.

The situation is a snarled ball of unanswered questions that is resulting in bad press for everyone involved.

As to be expected, everyone involved with the tournament is claiming innocence — promoter Don King, New York State Athletic Commission Chairman James A. Farley, Ring Magazine ratings author John Ort and all of King's aides.

When ABC offered $1.5 million for the "U. S. Boxing Championships," King said he would round up only the best contenders.

King used the annual "World Ratings" published in Ring Magazine to justify participation of the fighters. It since has been learned that some of the fighter's won-lost records have been falsified.

Some fighters have said they have had to make kickbacks in order to participate in the tourney, while some managers have contended they have lost their fighting clients to some of King's staff members.

ALTHOUGH NEW YORK state law forbids members of its athletic commission to become involved in outside boxing organizations, Farley reportedly took an active interst in King's tournament.

"It wasn't that we were taking a naive attitude about the whole thing. There have always been suspicions about boxing," said Irv Brodsky, manager of ABC sports information.

"We just felt there was no reason to check something like Ring Magazine which has always been the gospel of boxing ratings or someone like Jim Farley who was hired by King to serve on the tournament committee," he said.

"It has put ABC in an embarrassing situation," he admitted. Both Brodsky and Pierce, in his statement, insisted the network has been looking into wrong-doing connected with the tournament ever since the first allegations were levied in February.

"We went back to the scene in Maryland live after the second fight was over when LeDoux was charging that he lost because the fight was fixed. We wanted to know about it too," he said.

SOON AFTERWARDS, ABC asked managers, fighters and others involved with the championships to sign affidavits, admitting that they had not been forced into or voluntarily done anything wrong.

That step already has turned up one fighter, Kenny Weldon of Houston, who said he paid $2,300 in kickbacks to an associate of the boxing tournament promoter Don King so that he could fight in the tourney.

ROONE ARLEDGE

If ABC sports finds out about additional incidents of wrong doing, it probably will cancel the remainder of the boxing events, which Brodsky said were devised to offer "U. S. Boxing Championships" for the first time, revive television boxing and give fighters in lesser ranks a chance to compete on the small screen.

"If we have to cancel the rest of these tournaments, I don't think it will destroy the chances of bringing boxing back to the small screen on a regular basis," he said.

"ABC has been involved in televised boxing for many years and I think we're sold on this concept. The tournament had high ratings, the public responded to it very well and I think we would just try to find another way of presenting the same thing some time in the future," Brodsky said.

BUT MANY IN THE sports and television worlds are watching to see how prize fighting will survive this explosive and confused scandal. Boxing has been absent from the small screen on a regular basis for so long that this stormy comeback may prove too big an obstacle to overcome.

Friday night fights and gloved heroes such as Holly Mims and Chuck Davey are gone for good. Today's television boxing offers only a Muhammed Ali or a Ken Norton and their contempories.

ABC has a fight scheduled for May 16 between Muhammad Ali and Alfredo Evangelista which King also is promoting.

Arledge cleared in boxing scandal

In the wake of expected indictments and the snowballing controversy over the "U. S. Boxing Championships," ABC has exonerated its sports chief Roone Arledge from the scandal to keep the way clear for his anticipated promotion.

Frederick S. Pierce, president of ABC Television, Thursday issued a statement saying the seemingly crooked television boxing tournaments will have no bearing on the future of Arledge, who has been rumored for months to be on the verge of assuming additional network duties as chief of ABC news and documentaries.

Pierce stressed Arledge's role in investigating the scandals and ABC sports' "unusual precautions to ensure the integrity of this tournament."

ROONE ARLEDGE

MEANWHILE, A FEDERAL grand jury investigation of the "U. S. Boxing Championships" is expected to result in the announcement today of findings and indictments.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore has been hearing testimony on alleged bribes and fixes in connection with the boxing tournament. The investigation was initiated when heavyweight fighter Scott LeDoux alleged corruption after he lost a decision to Johnny Boudreaux in one of the early "U. S. Boxing Championships" bouts in February.

ABC has launched its own investigation into the matter and has hired Michael Armstrong, former chief counsel of the Knapp Commission, to head the inquiry.

The network has suspended the fights, leaving nine out of the 16 "U. S. Boxing Championships" planned untelevized. The suspension decision was made at dawn last Saturday, three hours before the scheduled broadcast of three boxing tournament semifinal bouts from Miami.

IT WOULD BE SMART of ABC, with its No. 1 ratings and golden reputation in sports broadcasting, to cancel what remains of the "U. S. Boxing Championships" early in what could be a long and highly publicized mess.

The situation is a snarled ball of unanswered questions that is resulting in bad press for everyone involved.

As to be expected, everyone involved with the tournament is claiming innocence — promoter Don King, New York State Athletic Commission Chairman James A. Farley, Ring Magazine ratings author John Ort and all of King's aides.

When ABC offered $1.5 million for the "U. S. Boxing Championships," King said he would round up only the best contenders.

King used the annual "World Ratings" published in Ring Magazine to justify participation of the fighters. It since has been learned that some of the fighter's won-lost records have been falsified.

Some fighters have said they have had to make kickbacks in order to participate in the tourney, while some managers have contended they have lost their fighting clients to some of King's staff members.

ALTHOUGH NEW YORK state law forbids members of its athletic commission to become involved in outside boxing organizations, Farley reportedly took an active interst in King's tournament.

"It wasn't that we were taking a naive attitude about the whole thing. There have always been suspicions about boxing," said Irv Brodsky, manager of ABC sports information.

"We just felt there was no reason to check something like Ring Magazine which has always been the gospel of boxing ratings or someone like Jim Farley who was hired by King to serve on the tournament committee," he said.

"It has put ABC in an embarrassing situation," he admitted. Both Brodsky and Pierce, in his statement, insisted the network has been looking into wrong-doing connected with the tournament ever since the first allegations were levied in February.

"We went back to the scene in Maryland live after the second fight was over when LeDoux was charging that he lost because the fight was fixed. We wanted to know about it too," he said.

SOON AFTERWARDS, ABC asked managers, fighters and others involved with the championships to sign affidavits, admitting that they had not been forced into or voluntarily done anything wrong.

That step already has turned up one fighter, Kenny Weldon of Houston, who said he paid $2,300 in kickbacks to an associate of the boxing tournament promoter Don King so that he could fight in the tourney.

If ABC sports finds out about additional incidents of wrong doing, it probably will cancel the remainder of the boxing events, which Brodsky said were devised to offer "U. S. Boxing Championships" for the first time, revive television boxing and give fighters in lesser ranks a chance to compete on the small screen.

"If we have to cancel the rest of these tournaments, I don't think it will destroy the chances of bringing boxing back to the small screen on a regular basis," he said.

"ABC has been involved in televised boxing for many years and I think we're sold on this concept. The tournament had high ratings, the public responded to it very well and I think we would just try to find another way of presenting the same thing some time in the future," Brodsky said.

BUT MANY IN THE sports and television worlds are watching to see how prize fighting will survive this explosive and confused scandal. Boxing has been absent from the small screen on a regular basis for so long that this stormy comeback may prove too big an obstacle to overcome.

Friday night fights and gloved heroes such as Holly Mims and Chuck Davey are gone for good. Today's television boxing offers only a Muhammed Ali or a Ken Norton and their contempories.

ABC has a fight scheduled for May 16 between Muhammad Ali and Alfredo Evangelista which King also is promoting.

The doctor says

Pregnancy possible in women over 50

I am 51 years old and still menstruating, although at age 45 I started missing a period now and then. The last one was seven months ago and now another one.

I have read that a women can still get pregnant for as long as two years after the last menstrual period. Wouldn't this apply to a woman younger than 51 years old? My doctor has me on Premarin. Would this act as a birth control pill?

Many of those mid-life babies are in women who thought they could not get pregnant and threw caution to the wind. A good rule of thumb is to assume you can get pregnant until two years after your last period after your menopause unless your doctor specifically tells you otherwise.

I usually say that the oldest woman on record to have a child is 56 years of age. A few of my readers have called my attention to some women who were past 57 so I may have to raise that a couple of notches, but it is exceptionally rare for a woman to ever get pregnant after her mid-50s.

Female hormones such as contained in Premarin may act as a birth control pill and birth control pills may act as a source of female hormones—delaying or obscuring menopause.

I have learned from readers that many women on birth control pills or hormones that are stopped once a month to induce an artificial menstruation, have the mistaken idea that they can still get pregnant. Such withdrawal artificial menstruations are unrelated to ovulation. The lining of the uterus still grows from hormone stimulation — but the stimulation comes from the pills. When the pills are stopped once a month, the lining of the uterus sheds because there is not enough female hormones in the body to maintain those over-grown cells. An artificial menstruation occurs even though the ovaries may have been inactive for 10 years or more.

INCIDENTALLY this is an important point about the hot debate over the role of female hormones in causing cancer of the lining of the uterus. In most of the reports available the female hormones have been given continuously. That means the overgrown cells lining the uterus are maintained and there is never a shedding of these cells. Gynecologists have known for years that these overgrown cells could be a nest for cancer changes. That is why they have always followed their patients on female hormones who still have a uterus with great care.

By stopping the medicine once a month and allowing these cells to be shed the increased danger of cancer — small as it may turn out to be — is greatly diminished or may even be completely obviated. The stories you have read and the reports available do not take into account the effects of the artificial menstruation that may protect women and the role of the level of the dosage. Different estrogens, different dosages and inducing artificial menstruation may result in women not having any real problems from taking female hormones after the menopause. It is too early to jump to conclusions yet.

You will need to talk to your doctor about your status. I don't know from your letter if your period was induced by stopping Premarin or if it occurred naturally. If you have not completed the menopause you are certainly not too old to get pregnant.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, for more information.Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dorothy: I've been serving broccoli in ways that may be unique and simply want to check with you. As a salad, the tough skin is peeled off the stems, which are then thinly sliced and served on lettuce. We find them tasty and spring-like. And for a green vegetable, the thinly sliced, peeled broccoli stems are cooked until tender and seasoned with salt, pepper and butter. How do you react? —Mrs. Ralph A. Loring

I've heard of cauliflower stems being used this way in a salad, but I've never heard of it your way, or seen it in a cookbook. It sounds like a wonderful idea.

Dear Dorothy: Walked in on a friend who was transplanting some plants. She was breaking up a couple of old clay pots to use as a base for the new plants. The pots were dingy and had white deposits on them. Can something be done with such pots so they won't transmit mold and so forth? —"Too-Polite-To-Ask"

All one has to do to disinfect any old caay pot is to soak it in a solution of three-fourths cup chlorine bleach to a gallon of warm water. Five minutes is enough; then rinse. The pots then can be used for "crocking" (the prkjjj'ocedure your friend was using) or replanting.

Moment the touch-up was done, the cover got well greased. —Tim McCann

Family has problems, yet endures

by BARBARA LADD

Despite the "obituaries" for marriage and families, most adults continue to find both a worthwhile venture and desire to preserve and protect them, according to Beatrice Bagby, University of Illinois Extension specialist in family life.

"The public image of the family is tarnished," admitted Mrs. Bagby, "and the family has changed over the years. But most people need a family. It gives them the feeling of having a secure place to belong."

She also described the family as "the one stabilizing anchor in a very transient society."

Mrs. Bagby was speaking at St. Stephen's School in Des Plaines Monday night on "Changing Trends and Situations in the Family." Her trip from Champaign-Urbana was sponsored jointly by the Cooperative Extension Service and St. Stephen's Church.

"THERE IS EVIDENCE of problems with the institution of the family," Mrs. Bagby said. "The high divorce rate is just one aspect."

Teenage drug abuse, suicide, illegitimate births and runaways are more prevalent than in the past, she said. In marriage, conflicts arise from changing roles and loneliness, especially for suburban women whose husbands are away 10 to 12 hours a day.

Women are more dissatisfied with

Family has problems, yet endures

by BARBARA LADD

Despite the "obituaries" for marriage and families, most adults continue to find both a worthwhile venture and desire to preserve and protect them, according to Beatrice Bagby, University of Illinois Extension specialist in family life.

"The public image of the family is tarnished," admitted Mrs. Bagby, "and the family has changed over the years. But most people need a family. It gives them the feeling of having a secure place to belong."

She also described the family as "the one stabilizing anchor in a very transient society."

Mrs. Bagby was speaking at St. Stephen's School in Des Plaines Monday night on "Changing Trends and Situations in the Family." Her trip from Champaign-Urbana was sponsored jointly by the Cooperative Extension Service and St. Stephen's Church.

"THERE IS EVIDENCE of problems with the institution of the family," Mrs. Bagby said. "The high divorce rate is just one aspect."

Teenage drug abuse, suicide, illegitimate births and runaways are more prevalent than in the past, she said. In marriage, conflicts arise from changing roles and loneliness, especially for suburban women whose husbands are away 10 to 12 hours a day.

Women are more dissatisfied with staying home as opposed to joining the work force and there seems to be less value placed on motherhood, continued Mrs. Bagby.

"At the wedding the 'family' is romanticized," said Mrs. Bagby. "We learn the hard way that life in a family is not as simple as in the movies. It's not perfect, not idyllic. It can seem exasperating."

FOR SOME PERSONS the family means conflicts of differing values, frustration of individual wants and an invasion of privacy, she added.

So various alternatives are being explored by various segments of society, and they include communes and unmarried couples living together. Most research, however, shows these alternatives are "highly unstable," said Mrs. Bagby.

The family is an institution that has survived through the centuries in nearly every culture, she said.

She cited a 1975 study by General Mills which indicates that 92 per cent of the people surveyed regard "family" as their most important value. Twenty per cent considered "not enough time with the family" to be a problem, but 27 per cent felt they had improved in having time with their families during the previous year, said Mrs Bagby.

AND WHILE THE divorce rate may be high, 66 per cent of the marriages last "until death do them part," said Mrs. Bagby. "Today that means the faithful ones are living together longer because people don't die as early as years past."

And concerning children and the increased numbers of working mothers, she said, "There's no evidence that yesterday's mothers who labored dawn to dusk cooking and washing clothes devoted more time to childrearing than today's working mother."

For the family to survive, couples need commitment to each other, communication, love, personal identity and a feeling of importance in the family, said Mrs. Bagby.

"Today I think people realize it takes more than being in love for a family to succeed," she said. "The day of taking advantage of the family is nearly over."

Libraries caught in cost squeeze

By RICHARD J. CATTANI

American libraries, long a quiet stronghold for those who want to improve themselves intellectually or economically, are under attack.

Higher costs and shrinking local, state and federal support are forcing library closings. And pressure groups continue efforts to censor library holdings.

The library picture is not universally bleak, says Robert Wedgeworth, executive director of the American Library Assn. Voters in Youngstown, Ohio; Emporia, Kan.; and Huntington, W. Va., recently boosted tax support of their libraries. And Atlanta voters turned down street, sewer and park improvements in favor of spending $19 million on libraries.

BUT, AS THE country observes National Library Week April 17 to 23, cutbacks are more evident than expansion in library programs.

"Millions of unemployed Americans or Americans subsisting on fixed or inflation-ravaged incomes have come to depend on the library to fill such basic needs as free recreation and education as well as to help in job hunting, resume writing, filling out tax returns," Wedgeworth says. "When funding cuts require that services be cut off or cut back, people suffer."

Buffalo, N. Y. has dismissed more than 200 library workers and keeps branches open only two or three days a week, the ALA reports. The Detroit Public Library has closed four branches and has cut its book-buying budget in half. Jersey City and Newark, N.J., library systems came close to closing recently when state funding was reduced by 44 per cent. Denver; Washington, D.C.; Minneapolis, Minn.; and New York City libraries also are in trouble.

Rising book and periodical prices are part of the difficulty. Publishers Weekly reports that book prices rose almost 15 per cent in each of the last two years. According to Library Journal, periodical prices similarly rose 13 per cent in each year.

LIBRARIES HAVE tried to respond by trimming purchases. But they are doing so against the current of rising demand. Library usage climbed 8 per cent last year, the ALA reports. Book circulation has increased 40 per cent since 1968.

"The dramatic increase in demand has led to the disappearance of more materials," Wedgeworth says. The Chicago Public Library is so concerned about the cost of replacing delinquent or damaged materials it has asked the City Council to raise last-resort fines from the current $10 maximum to $1,000 — and to change the legal status of malicious injury to materials to a criminal offense.

Since 80 per cent of library funds comes from the local community, libraries tend to do well or not so well according to the individual community's financial shape, Wedgeworth says.

"The last five years have been the toughest period for American libraries since World War II," he adds. The Nixon-Ford administrations had "no interest in libraries and recommended cutting federal aid in half," he says. Congress kept federal library programs alive, but at a lowered level.

IN CONTRAST, the Carter administration has been far more encouraging in its commitment to American libraries, Wedgeworth says. A new provision for the Library Services and Construction Act, now up for renewal in Congress, would focus spending on urban areas, much as the act in the past has focused on services for the disadvantaged, the house-bound, and elderly.

In the censorship area, pressure to curtail access to books has concentrated largely on school libraries in recent years. "Eighty-nine per cent of the censorship cases reported to us recently are for schools," Wedgeworth says.

Violence, explicit sexual stereotyping, irreligion and anti-Americanism were among charges raised in recent months against library and class-reading materials in Dyer Brook, Me.; Kent, Wash.; Bloomington, Minn.; Rockville, Md.; and Rootstown, Ohio.

Libraries caught in cost squeeze

By RICHARD J. CATTANI

American libraries, long a quiet stronghold for those who want to improve themselves intellectually or economically, are under attack.

Higher costs and shrinking local, state and federal support are forcing library closings. And pressure groups continue efforts to censor library holdings.

The library picture is not universally bleak, says Robert Wedgeworth, executive director of the American Library Assn. Voters in Youngstown, Ohio; Emporia, Kan.; and Huntington, W. Va., recently boosted tax support of their libraries. And Atlanta voters turned down street, sewer and park improvements in favor of spending $19 million on libraries.

BUT, AS THE country observes National Library Week April 17 to 23, cutbacks are more evident than expansion in library programs.

"Millions of unemployed Americans or Americans subsisting on fixed or inflation-ravaged incomes have come to depend on the library to fill such basic needs as free recreation and education as well as to help in job hunting, resume writing, filling out tax returns," Wedgeworth says. "When funding cuts require that services be cut off or cut back, people suffer."

Buffalo, N. Y. has dismissed more than 200 library workers and keeps branches open only two or three days a week, the ALA reports. The Detroit Public Library has closed four branches and has cut its book-buying budget in half. Jersey City and Newark, N.J., library systems came close to closing recently when state funding was reduced by 44 per cent. Denver; Washington, D.C.; Minneapolis, Minn.; and New York City libraries also are in trouble.

Rising book and periodical prices are part of the difficulty. Publishers Weekly reports that book prices rose almost 15 per cent in each of the last two years. According to Library Journal, periodical prices similarly rose 13 per cent in each year.

LIBRARIES HAVE tried to respond by trimming purchases. But they are doing so against the current of rising demand. Library usage climbed 8 per cent last year, the ALA reports. Book circulation has increased 40 per cent since 1968.

"The dramatic increase in demand has led to the disappearance of more materials," Wedgeworth says. The Chicago Public Library is so concerned about the cost of replacing delinquent or damaged materials it has asked the City Council to raise last-resort fines from the current $10 maximum to $1,000 — and to change the legal status of malicious injury to materials to a criminal offense.

Since 80 per cent of library funds comes from the local community, libraries tend to do well or not so well according to the individual community's financial shape, Wedgeworth says.

"The last five years have been the toughest period for American libraries since World War II," he adds. The Nixon-Ford administrations had "no interest in libraries and recommended cutting federal aid in half," he says. Congress kept federal library programs alive, but at a lowered level.

IN CONTRAST, the Carter administration has been far more encouraging in its commitment to American libraries, Wedgeworth says. A new provision for the Library Services and Construction Act, now up for renewal in Congress, would focus spending on urban areas, much as the act in the past has focused on services for the disadvantaged, the house-bound, and elderly.

In the censorship area, pressure to curtail access to books has concentrated largely on school libraries in recent years. "Eighty-nine per cent of the censorship cases reported to us recently are for schools," Wedgeworth says.

Violence, explicit sexual stereotyping, irreligion and anti-Americanism were among charges raised in recent months against library and class-reading materials in Dyer Brook, Me.; Kent, Wash.; Bloomington, Minn.; Rockville, Md.; and Rootstown, Ohio.

Angels stop Sox; turn down lights

AL baseball

ANAHEIM — Rain, sleet, snow and hail may not stop the mail from going through.

But darkness will halt a baseball game every time.

And Thursday the Chicago White Sox and California Angels were sufficiently in the dark to have their game called after just one out in the top of the first inning.

A TRANSFORMER had blown out earlier in the evening, darkening one bank of stadium lights. Managers from both teams gathered with the umpires at home plate and conducted a lengthy debate over the merits of carrying on despite the partial darkness.

After just one player — Ralph Garr — had batted, the officials decided to suspend the game until Sept. 8 when it will be resumed as an almost doubleheader.

For the time being it will go into the books as called on account of a power failure. Very shocking.

Elsewhere around the American circuit, there was no power failure in New York where Chris Chambliss, batting just .195 prior to the game, drove in five runs with two doubles and a homer, while defending American League home run champ Graig Nettles belted his first to vault the Yankees to an 8-6 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

YANKEE STARTER Ken Holtzman earned his first win of the season with relief help from Dick Tidrow, who quelled an eighth inning Blue Jay rally, and finally Sparky Lyle. Chuck Hartenstein was the loser for Toronto.

With the game tied 3-3 in the seventh, the Yankees scored four runs, the last three coming on Chambliss' homer into the third deck in right field, his second of the season. Nettles, who hit 32 homers a year ago, provided an insurance run with his first 1977 homer, a solo shot after one out in the eighth.

Ex-Yankee Otto Vtlez contributed three hits for Toronto including a two-run homer in the fourth. The homer was Velez' third of the year and second in this four-game series in which he rapped Yankee pitching for nine hits in 15-at bats and eight RBI.

ROOKIE RIGHT hander Dave Rozema threw a four-hitter for his first major league win and Jason Thompson drove home four runs Thursday in boosting the Detroit Tigers to an 8-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The 20-year-old Rozema, making the jump from AA ball, struck out four batters and walked no one in his third start while not allowing a runner past second.

Thompson rocketed his third homer of the season, a solo drive into the center-field bleachers in the fourth inning. He singled in another run in the sixth and drove in two more runs with a single in the seventh.

Rookie left fielder Steve Kemp drove in the first and winning run in the second inning with a single to center after Ben Oglivie had singled.

Mickey Stanley added a two-run homer in the seventh inning which knocked out loser Reggie Cleveland, now 1-1, and Aurelio Rodriguez added a solo homer in the eighth for the Tigers.

LYMAN BOSTOCK and Mike Cubbage each drove in four runs and Minnesota roughed up aging Gaylord Perry Thursday night when the Twins clubbed the Texas Rangers 11-4.

Geoff Zahn won his third game without a loss for the Twins, but needed relief help from Ron Schueller.

Perry, 38, gave up 10 hits in 5-1/3 innings and was nailed for Minnesota's first eight runs. The first three were unearned, however, with an error by first baseman Mike Hargrove in the third prolonging the inning and setting up a one-run double by Bostock and a two-run double by Cubbage.

A double by Willie Norwood to lead off the fourth and a Bob Gorinsky single accounted for another run, and Minnesota scored twice in the fifth on a single by Rod Carew, a triple by Bostock and a sacrifice fly by Cubbage. Perry, 1-2, was driven from the mound in the sixth after Rob Winfong doubled and Rich Chiles walked.

Reliever Mike Wallace walked Roy Smalley to load the bases and walked Carew to force in a run. Paul Lindblad relieved Wallace, giving up a two-run single to Bostock and an RBI groundout to Cubbage.

SHARON ORFANDES looks around for the rest of the two-milers during dual meet won by Wheeling. Orfandes of Buffalo Grove took first place in the distance event, running 12:45.3.

Cubs take on cellar-bound world champs

The Cincinnati Reds, champions of all the world, come to Wrigley Field today at 1:30 to try to get out of the basement.

The Reds, led by the highly paid Pete Rose, were too much for the New York Yankees in the 1976 World Series but this season, so far anyway, the 4-8 Red Machine sits at the bottom of the National League West.

Sparky Anderson will send Pat Zachry, 1-1, against Cub righthander Bill Bonham, also 1-1, as the Cubs, too, try to break out of the doldrums. Herman Franks' team has lost four games in a row and is just a half-game from last place in the N.L. East.

FRANKS HOPES to be able to insert first baseman Bill Buckner into his lineup for the first time today. Buckner, still nursing his sore ankle, came off the injured list this week and celebrated with a base hit his first time up as a pinch-hitter Tuesday.

Ray Burris is due to go Saturday against veteran Woody Fryman, and either Mike Krukow or Willie Hernandez will face Santo Alcala on Sunday.

State play at New Trier West

Girls bid for badminton laurels

by KEITH REINHARD

Once again, the Mid-Suburban League is being treated like a step sister.

The Illinois High School Association is preparing to unveil its very first state championship badminton tournament this weekend and three MSL schools among the 16 team qualifiers are being all but ignored on the premeet favorites list.

The tourney will get underway at New Trier West this morning at 9 a.m. and continue with rounds at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Saturday the quarterfinals, semifinals and championship rounds will kickoff at the same corresponding times. Arlington, Elk Grove and Prospect all captured district titles last Saturday and will be represented today by full six-girl contingents.

PUBLICITY information coming out of IHSA headquarters in Bloomington rates Barrington, Oak Lawn and Riverside-Brookfield along with New Trier East and the host Cowboy team as the strongest contenders to take home the brand new championship trophy.

Others in the race for team honors are DeKalb, Homewood-Flossmoor, Highland Park, Normal, Oak Park, Carl Sandburg, Wheaton North and Springfield's Sacred Heart.

Barrington, Oak Lawn and RB all picked up a maximum 16 points in dominating their districts. The Cardinals were one point shy of perfect in capturing their own meet and will be represented at the state gathering by Janet Haberkorn-Karen Zobel and Lisa Pugsley-Kris Richey doubles teams along with Leslie Grabitz and Jody Lyon in singles.

ELK GROVE, also a district champ at home last weekend, will field doubles twosomes of Nancy McCabe-Wendy Salkin and Diane Quinn-Sue Gans and Kathy Gulliksen and Priscilla Olsen in singles.

Prospect, triumphant at the Maine South district, has Karen Kurka-Leanne Mache and Julie Reiter-Holly Williams entering doubles play and Lisa Young and Jean Rezny in singles.

In addition to these area teams, Rolling Meadows will have Libby Iturralde entered on an individual basis in the singles competition after finishing runnerup at the Arlington district.

Iturralde, Grabitz and Young were all seeded into a 5-8 group Thursday and two of them will take opening round byes while Grabitz faces off initially against Claudia Friederici of Highland Park.

LYON WAS ALSO seeded in the 9-12 group and opens against Kathy Carroll of Sacred Heart. Olsen gets a first round bye while Gulliksen opens against Kathy Skiera of Waukegan East. Rezny meets Jana Pope of Barrington.

In doubles the Haberkorn-Zobel tandem was awarded the top seed while Richey-Pugsley were placed in the 9-12 grouping. The Mache-Kurka and Salkin-McCabe duos along with Haberkorn-Zobel picked up first round byes.

Pugsley-Richey meanwhile faces off against a Highland Park unit, Williams-Reiter takes on a Sacred Heart entry and Quinn-Gans meets up with a doubles duo from New Trier East.

There's a 'Storm' coming to area

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

Hey, can anybody out there play shortstop?

Frank Mariani has a left arm he'd like to send your way. Free.

Mariani is the general manager of the new Chicago Storm professional softball team, and he's been searching the state for a shortstop.

"Heck, I'd give my left arm for a shortstop if we could find one," Mariani, a Rolling Meadows resident, said this week.

SHORTSTOP isn't the only hole right now for the Storm, but the position is so vital that it carries a "high priority" label for the outfit that will play 12-inch slow pitch.

"We've already signed six players and have some others in mind, but no, we're not set by any means," said Mariani. "We're looking at everyone. We'll carry 15 on the roster, possibly 17."

The search for that shortstop and other players continues Sunday when the Storm, coached by former major league pitcher Milt Pappas, brings its road show to Kimball Hill School in Rolling Meadows at 10 a.m.

The area stop will be the seventh in a series of tryout sessions designed to put together a formidable entry by opening day May 29.

"WE'LL LOOK at everyone Sunday," said Mariani. "It's a matter of checking out the whole works — hitting, running, throwing, defense. We'll also break down into teams and play a few innings.

"After the games if we like anyone that much we'll get them back in the afternoon for another look. We've signed players from ages 22 to 28, but if they can do the job, that's not a factor."

The Storm, a member of the American Professional Slo-Pitch League, will play its home games on weekends in suburban Bridgeview but has spread the practice sessions around the state to (1) get a good look at all the eager, talented players in Illinois and (2) obtain as much media exposure as possible.

"We've been very happy with the turnouts and the interest," said Mariani, a former football and baseball coach at St. Viator High School. "We've been averaging around 100 per tryout although it was smaller last weekend in Rockford. However, we were able to sign a fine player in our Rockford trip."

CLANCY HORN of Rockford, most valuable player in the Class B World Tournament last year and a lifetime (are you ready?) .600-plus hitter, has signed with the Storm for "more than the minimum league salary."

"The boy knows what the top dollar is going to be and he's going to get the top dollar," said Mariani. "He's that good. Of all the kids I've seen so far, he's the most complete player."

The signing of Horn helped ease the disappointment over a touted shortstop prospect in Rockford. Storm management even brought Cubs' Hall of Famer Ernie Banks along to take a look, but the shortstop search continues.

It's estimated Storm players will receive between $800 and $1,500 for the 56-game season. A player is able to maintain his full-time job and still perform on the weekends, traveling and living first-class in a division that includes road trips to Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Baltimore, Louisville, Detroit, Cleveland and New York.

THE STORM'S state-wide tour for talent has turned up some gems, including several stars from 16-inch softball competition, but Mariani admits there have been some frustrating developments.

"The guy who plays baseball most of the time seems to have no trouble in the field but has problems with the bat in our game," he said. "Then again, the 16-inch softball player can hit the heck out of the ball but can't field that well because he's used to playing without a glove."

Maybe that perfect combination is out there. Maybe he'll show up Sunday in Rolling Meadows.

If you're a baseball player, softball player and shortstop all rolled into one talented package, you've got it made.

Remember, Frank Mariani is ready to give up an arm for a prospect like that.

TRIVIA OCCUPIED this space last week with 10 questions. How did you do? Here are the answers:

1. Whom did Cookie Lavagetto bat for when he broke up Bill Bevens' bid for a no-hitter in the 1947 World Series? EDDIE STANKY.

2. Who was the catcher for the famous 1934 St. Louis Cardinals' Gas House Gang? BILL DELANCEY.

3. In 1950 the American League season leader in stolen bases had just 15, the fewest in major league history. Who was it? DOM DIMAGGIO.

4. When the Braves played the Yankees in the 1957 World Series, there was an incident involving a Milwaukee pinch batter. He claimed he was hit by a pitched ball and he even produced a ball with shoe polish as evidence. Name that batter. NIPPY JONES.

5. Spell the last name of the man who completed an unassisted triple play in the 1920 World Series. BILL WAMBSGANSS.

6. Only one man in modern major league history ever stole six bases in one game, and he did it twice in less than two weeks. Who was he? EDDIE COLLINS.

7. The two men directly involved in the final out of Johnny VanderMeer's second straight no-hitter both became major league managers. Who hit the ball for that final out and who caught it. LEO DUROCHER hit the ball to HARRY CRAFT.

8. What major league baseball pitcher wore the name of his hometown on the back of his uniform? There are conflicting reports on this one, but most sources give BILL VOISELLE'S official hometown as Ninety Six, S.C.

9. Who broke Dizzy Dean's toe with a line drive in 1937 All-Star game? EARL AVERILL.

10. Which toe? BIG TOE. Which foot? LEFT.

MILOCH EXPRESS. Wheeling's Gail Miloch is all alone, as usual, at the end of the 880 run at Hersey High School. Miloch ran 2:20 for the victory and also won the mile to lead team to win.

ROOKIE RIGHT hander Dave Rozema threw a four-hitter for his first major league win and Jason Thompson drove home four runs Thursday in boosting the Detroit Tigers to an 8-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The 20-year-old Rozema, making the jump from AA ball, struck out four batters and walked no one in his third start while not allowing a runner past second.

Thompson rocketed his third homer of the season, a solo drive into the center-field bleachers in the fourth inning. He singled in another run in the sixth and drove in two more runs with a single in the seventh.

Rookie left fielder Steve Kemp drove in the first and winning run in the second inning with a single to center after Ben Oglivie had singled.

Mickey Stanley added a two-run homer in the seventh inning which knocked out loser Reggie Cleveland, now 1-1, and Aurelio Rodriguez added a solo homer in the eighth for the Tigers.

LYMAN BOSTOCK and Mike Cubbage each drove in four runs and Minnesota roughed up aging Gaylord Perry Thursday night when the Twins clubbed the Texas Rangers 11-4.

Geoff Zahn won his third game without a loss for the Twins, but needed relief help from Ron Schueler.

Perry, 38, gave up 10 hits in 5-1/3 innings and was nailed for Minnesota's first eight runs. The first three were unearned, however, with an error by first baseman Mike Hargrove in the third prolonging the inning and setting up a one-run double by Bostock and a two-run double by Cubbage.

A double by Willie Norwood to lead off the fourth and a Bob Gorinsky single accounted for another run, and Minnesota scored twice in the fifth on a single by Rod Carew, a triple by Bostock and a sacrifice fly by Cubbage. Perry, 1-2, was driven from the mound in the sixth after Rob Winfong doubled and Rich Chiles walked.

Reliever Mike Wallace walked Roy Smalley to load the bases and walked Carew to force in a run. Paul Lindblad relieved Wallace, giving up a two-run single to Bostock and an RBI groundout to Cubbage.

SHARON ORFANDES looks around for the rest of the two-milers during dual meet won by Wheeling. Orfandes of Buffalo Grove took first place in the distance event, running 12:45.3.

Cubs take on cellar-bound world champs

The Cincinnati Reds, champions of all the world, come to Wrigley Field today at 1:30 to try to get out of the basement.

The Reds, led by the highly paid Pete Rose, were too much for the New York Yankees in the 1976 World Series but this season, so far anyway, the 4-8 Red Machine sits at the bottom of the National League West.

Sparky Anderson will send Pat Zachry, 1-1, against Cub righthander Bill Bonham, also 1-1, as the Cubs, too, try to break out of the doldrums. Herman Franks' team has lost four games in a row and is just a half-game from last place in the N.L. East.

FRANKS HOPES to be able to insert first baseman Bill Buckner into his lineup for the first time today. Buckner, still nursing his sore ankle, came off the injured list this week and celebrated with a base hit his first time up as a pinch-hitter Tuesday.

Ray Burris is due to go Saturday against veteran Woody Fryman, and either Mike Krukow or Willie Hernandez will face Santo Alcala on Sunday.

State play at New Trier West

Girls bid for badminton laurels

by KEITH REINHARD

Once again, the Mid-Suburban League is being treated like a step sister.

The Illinois High School Association is preparing to unveil its very first state championship badminton tournament this weekend and three MSL schools among the 16 team qualifiers are being all but ignored on the premeet favorites list.

The tourney will get underway at New Trier West this morning at 9 a.m. and continue with rounds at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Saturday the quarterfinals, semifinals and championship rounds will kickoff at the same corresponding times. Arlington, Elk Grove and Prospect all captured district titles last Saturday and will be represented today by full six-girl contingents.

PUBLICITY information coming out of IHSA headquarters in Bloomington rates Barrington, Oak Lawn and Riverside-Brookfield along with New Trier East and the host Cowboy team as the strongest contenders to take home the brand new championship trophy.

Others in the race for team honors are DeKalb, Homewood-Flossmoor, Highland Park, Normal, Oak Park, Carl Sandburg, Wheaton North and Springfield's Sacred Heart.

Barrington, Oak Lawn and RB all picked up a maximum 16 points in dominating their districts. The Cardinals were one point shy of perfect in capturing their own meet and will be represented at the state gathering by Janet Haberkorn-Karen Zobel and Lisa Pugsley-Kris Richey doubles teams along with Leslie Grabitz and Jody Lyon in singles.

ELK GROVE, also a district champ at home last weekend, will field doubles twosomes of Nancy McCabe-Wendy Salkin and Diane Quinn-Sue Gans and Kathy Gulliksen and Priscilla Olsen in singles.

Prospect, triumphant at the Maine South district, has Karen Kurka-Leanne Mache and Julie Reiter-Holly Williams entering doubles play and Lisa Young and Jean Rezny in singles.

In addition to these area teams, Rolling Meadows will have Libby Iturralde entered on an individual basis in the singles competition after finishing runnerup at the Arlington district.

Iturralde, Grabitz and Young were all seeded into a 5-8 group Thursday and two of them will take opening round byes while Grabitz faces off initially against Claudia Friederici of Highland Park.

LYON WAS ALSO seeded in the 9-12 group and opens against Kathy Carroll of Sacred Heart. Olsen gets a first round bye while Gulliksen opens against Kathy Skiera of Waukegan East. Rezny meets Jana Pope of Barrington.

In doubles the Haberkorn-Zobel tandem was awarded the top seed while Richey-Pugsley were placed in the 9-12 grouping. The Mache-Kurka and Salkin-McCabe duos along with Haberkorn-Zobel picked up first round byes.

Pugsley-Richey meanwhile faces off against a Highland Park unit, Williams-Reiter takes on a Sacred Heart entry and Quinn-Gans meets up with a doubles duo from New Trier East.

There's a 'Storm' coming to area

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

Hey, can anybody out there play shortstop?

Frank Mariani has a left arm he'd like to send your way. Free.

Mariani is the general manager of the new Chicago Storm professional softball team, and he's been searching the state for a shortstop.

"Heck, I'd give my left arm for a shortstop if we could find one," Mariani, a Rolling Meadows resident, said this week.

SHORTSTOP isn't the only hole right now for the Storm, but the position is so vital that it carries a "high priority" label for the outfit that will play 12-inch slow pitch.

"We've already signed six players and have some others in mind, but no, we're not set by any means," said Mariani. "We're looking at everyone. We'll carry 15 on the roster, possibly 17."

The search for that shortstop and other players continues Sunday when the Storm, coached by former major league pitcher Milt Pappas, brings its road show to Kimball Hill School in Rolling Meadows at 10 a.m.

The area stop will be the seventh in a series of tryout sessions designed to put together a formidable entry by opening day May 29.

"WE'LL LOOK at everyone Sunday," said Mariani. "It's a matter of checking out the whole works — hitting, running, throwing, defense. We'll also break down into teams and play a few innings.

"After the games if we like anyone that much we'll get them back in the afternoon for another look. We've signed players from ages 22 to 28, but if they can do the job, that's not a factor."

The Storm, a member of the American Professional Slo-Pitch League, will play its home games on weekends in suburban Bridgeview but has spread the practice sessions around the state to (1) get a good look at all the eager, talented players in Illinois and (2) obtain as much media exposure as possible.

"We've been very happy with the turnouts and the interest," said Mariani, a former football and baseball coach at St. Viator High School. "We've been averaging around 100 per tryout although it was smaller last weekend in Rockford. However, we were able to sign a fine player in our Rockford trip."

CLANCY HORN of Rockford, most valuable player in the Class B World Tournament last year and a lifetime (are you ready?) .600-plus hitter, has signed with the Storm for "more than the minimum league salary."

"The boy knows what the top dollar is going to be and he's going to get the top dollar," said Mariani. "He's that good. Of all the kids I've seen so far, he's the most complete player."

The signing of Horn helped ease the disappointment over a touted shortstop prospect in Rockford. Storm management even brought Cubs' Hall of Famer Ernie Banks along to take a look, but the shortstop search continues.

It's estimated Storm players will receive between $800 and $1,500 for the 56-game season. A player is able to maintain his full-time job and still perform on the weekends, traveling and living first-class in a division that includes road trips to Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Baltimore, Louisville, Detroit, Cleveland and New York.

THE STORM'S state-wide tour for talent has turned up some gems, including several stars from 16-inch softball competition, but Mariani admits there have been some frustrating developments.

"The guy who plays baseball most of the time seems to have no trouble in the field but has problems with the bat in our game," he said. "Then again, the 16-inch softball player can hit the heck out of the ball but can't field that well because he's used to playing without a glove."

Maybe that perfect combination is out there. Maybe he'll show up Sunday in Rolling Meadows.

If you're a baseball player, softball player and shortstop all rolled into one talented package, you've got it made.

Remember, Frank Mariani is ready to give up an arm for a prospect like that.

TRIVIA OCCUPIED this space last week with 10 questions. How did you do? Here are the answers:

1. Whom did Cookie Lavagetto bat for when he broke up Bill Bevens' bid for a no-hitter in the 1947 World Series? EDDIE STANKY.
2. Who was the catcher for the famous 1934 St. Louis Cardinals' Gas House Gang? BILL DELANCEY.
3. In 1950 the American League season leader in stolen bases had just 15, the fewest in major league history. Who was it? DOM DIMAGGIO.
4. When the Braves played the Yankees in the 1957 World Series, there was an incident involving a Milwaukee pinch batter. He claimed he was hit by a pitched ball and he even produced a ball with shoe polish as evidence. Name that batter. NIPPY JONES.
5. Spell the last name of the man who completed an unassisted triple play in the 1920 World Series. BILL WAMBSGANSS.
6. Only one man in modern major league history ever stole six bases in one game, and he did it twice in less than two weeks. Who was he? EDDIE COLLINS.
7. The two men directly involved in the final out of Johnny VanderMeer's second straight no-hitter both became major league managers. Who hit the ball for that final out and who caught it. LEO DUROCHER hit the ball to HARRY CRAFT.
8. What major league baseball pitcher wore the name of his hometown on the back of his uniform? There are conflicting reports on this one, but most sources give BILL VOISELLE'S official hometown as Ninety Six, S.C.
9. Who broke Dizzy Dean's toe with a line drive in 1937 All-Star game? EARL AVERILL.
10. Which toe? BIG TOE. Which foot? LEFT.

Please, no sudden moves bees invade sports scene

Byline report

Charlie Dickinson

The robin has been replaced as the first sign of spring.

On April 13, the United Press International wire carried this item:

"FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—A high school baseball game here was called on account of bees."

AH, THE FIRST bee-out of the season. A sure harbinger that warmer days are here to stay.

The story continued, "Bees swarmed the field right after the first pitch was thrown."

How like the bees, marvels of organization and timing, to wait until the game was officially under way.

There will be other bee-outs this season. Candlestick Park, home of the San Francisco Giants, was visited by a swarm last year.

THERE IS ALSO certain to be at least one news photo of a man with his face encrusted with bees. He will say, "There's no danger if you don't make any sudden moves."

The ultimate social creature, bees have been teaching man quite a bit lately.

As the population of the world increases, more and more people will be forced to live in buildings that look like beehives; identical little apartments stacked one on top of the other to conserve space.

Perhaps there will be a satellite photograph one day of the earth, encrusted with people, and a caption, reading "There's no danger if you don't make any sudden moves."

BEE BYPRODUCTS have become the of natural food aficionados.

Honey has long been appreciated for its healthful benefits. It is stirred into hot cups of tea, spread on toast and eaten straight from the hive by masochistic bears.

Now, it is bee pollen that has captured the country's fancy.

"The people around here are just starting to get into bee pollen," said the proprietor of a health food store/restaurant in Schaumburg.

BEE POLLEN as an energy source became popular after the Montreal Olympics, when tracksters and swimmers gobbled it as a training aid.

"Athletes take it for stamina, energy, endurance," said one health food buff. "A lot of kids involved in endurance type sports take them."

The majority of bee pollen, whether in pods or granulated form, comes from Europe.

Bee Pollen from England, Ltd., is the current big seller, priced at roughly $10 for 90 pods.

WHY IS THE price so high? Think of the problems with labor. They could not pay me enough to hold bees down while someone scraped the pollen off their little legs.

(Just a joke, folks. Actually, the pollen is scraped off the inside of the hives, no easy task in itself.)

The ingredients in one pod of pollen from English bees include: bee-collected pollen, beet sugar, natural bone meal, starch, lactose, mannitol, cottonseed oil and caramel.

The result is a yellow pod about half the size of an M&M that tastes dry, slightly sweet and very healthful.

THERE IS another brand that, if price can be used to judge quality, is of lesser potency than Bee Pollen from England.

This particular brand comes out of France under the handle, "Les Ruchers de La Cote D'Azur." (The Hives of The Blue Coast.) It sells at $4.95 per 100 tablets.

A local health food expert said, "The price differences can be attributed to the differences in packaging and processing. Some are more synthetic than others.

"All bee pollen contains about 25 essential human elements."

Perhaps that explains the sudden popularity of bee pollen, as well as the bee-outs.

Thousands of peole desire the best characteristics of bees: energy, stamina and the ability to work in large groups toward a common goal.

The bees then, perhaps, sense a bit of themselves in people and begin to swarm, being naturally gregarious. But the people become frightened and run away.

So the bees gather on the backstop or in the dugout. You can almost hear them buzzing, "There's no danger if you don't make any sudden moves."

Pirate Kennedy emerges as versatile performer

Last year at this time Palatine track coach Jeff Teach was discovering a new quartermiler in his stable of runners. This year Teach has found a new half-miler.

In both instances the runner in question was Dave Kennedy.

Kennedy, a sprinter by trade, was a key man in three of Palatine's relay teams in 1976. As a freshman, Kennedy helped the Pirates win district titles in the 440, 880 and mile relays. He also placed fourth in the Mid-Suburban League 440-yard dash.

ALREADY THIS season Kennedy has run a 10.1 in the 100 and a 22.7 in the 220. Teach had practically made up his mind that the sophomore's best event was the 220 — until Wednesday.

That's when Kennedy, just goofing around, reeled off an 880 in 2:00.0 in a dual meet against Arlington.

"He didn't know what he was doing," said Teach, who took the opportunity to run several of his trackmen in events other than the ones they were accustomed to. "At the finish he wasn't even tired. He really looked tough. And he came back and ran a 22.8 in the 220."

Kennedy, who has run the open quarter in 49.9 this season, clocked even :60 splits in his first attempt at the 880.

NOW TEACH HAS the enjoyable task of deciding where to use Kennedy in conference and district meets.

"I may want to use him in the two-mile relay, but probably not in the district," said the Pirate coach. "Maybe in the Palatine Relays, though."

Kennedy, a basketball player during the indoor track season, will likely stick to the 220 and the 440 in the MSL outdoor finals, but now at least Teach can plan for the future with his eyes open to the possibilities.

Palatine beat Arlington, 73-68, as high jumper Kevin Chartier (6-2) and miler Kevin Koy (4:35.2) turned in personal bests and Bob Barnes won the long jump and triple jump.

ARLINGTON'S Jay Lenahan took victories in the shot put (53-2) and the discus (138-4) while the Cardinals' two-mile relay team nipped Palatine by two-tenths of a second in 8:19.7.

'Racquetball Now' opens May 9 at area facilities

The Arlington Heights and Schaumburg Court Houses are among the five clubs in Chicago and suburbs offering "Racquetball Now," a special three-week lesson program designed to meet the needs of the growing number of people, especially women, who want to learn this popular new racquet sport.

"One of the nicest things about racquetball is that it's an easy game to learn," said Phil Klintworth, head pro at The Arlington Heights Court House.

"You can achieve a great deal of success with just a little bit of work," he said.

MOST OF THE people who play racquetball say it is a great way to combine sports and recreation with exercise. Now everyone has a unique opportunity to learn this popular game with the proven, guaranteed program being offered by The Court House.

"Racquetball Now" begins May 9. Each of the six classes in the three-week program will be 90 minutes long.

The cost of $35 includes membership in The Court House until Jan. 1, 1978, and a videotape review in one of the lessons.

"I tape the students from a lot of different angles," Klintworth remarked. "Then when we review the tape, a lot of the students are surprised. They really hadn't been able to visualize what they were doing wrong. But, once they see it they have a lot better understanding and there is usually quite a bit of improvement."

CLASSES WILL be limited in size and all equipment is provided. The player need bring only sneakers (and wear comfortable clothes, of course). Participants will be entitled to practice at specially reserved hours between lessons.

One feature of "Racquetball Now" is the free attended nursery for preschool children, an attraction that enables young mothers to get out, meet people and enjoy some fun and exercise.

The pros and staffs of the Court Houses, 106 E. College Drive in Arlington Heights and 1450 Payne Road in Schaumburg, will be teaching the sessions which meet twice a week. There are eight different times to choose from, including mornings, afternoons and evenings.

To sign up and reserve a place in the session of your choice, call the Arlington Heights Court House at 398-4656 or the Schaumburg Court House at 882-4636.

Cubs made a mistake

The Cubs made a mistake, I think, when they put Mike Krukow in their starting rotation after just seeing him pitch a few innings in spring training. Granted, there was a big hole in the rotation what with the injury to Ken Frailing, and the team seemed to be adamant about not trading for a capable starter. But Mike Krukow, as he has demonstrated, is not ready to pitch full time in the major leagues. Instead, who don't the Cubs just look down to the bullpen where a very capable pitcher is just wasting away. Steve Renko, the Cubs' forgotten man, can still pitch in the majors and he should be given a chance to start before Krukow pitches another inning.

Fans' forum

I am amused by the predictions of sportswriters around the country, and including those at the Herald, who are picking the California Angels and the New York Yankees to win their respective division titles. It is easy, I suppose, to see why they made those selections, especially in the case of the Yankees. After all, the Yankees are the defending A.L. champions and they do have the most fantastic array of talent ever assembled on one baseball. But nobody stoppped to take into account the effect of all those big, fat contracts, several of which will sit most of the season on the bench. And no one has considered what will happen when the always volatile Billy Martin explodes — which happens almost every day.

In the case of the Angels, every predictor figured that with all those free agents the team couldn't lose. But no one stopped to ask how good those free agents are. Don Baylor, for instance, is not exactly Ty Cobb.

HOLD THAT TIGER. Detroit Tigers' Jason Thompson slides into third base after advancing from first on Milt May's single in the sixth inning at Fenway Park Thursday. Bosox third baseman Butch Hobson bobbles the throw, which came too late anyway. The Tigers won 8-0.

VIP's pay tribute at Wrigley service

Baseball's top brass, led by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, attended a memorial service Thursday for the late Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs baseball team and millionaire head of the Wrigley chewing gum empire. Wrigley died April 12 at age 82. National League President Charles S. Feeney and American League President Leland MacPhail also attended the service at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

Norman Ross, vice president of public affairs for the First National Bank of Chicago, gave the eulogy and called Wrigley "a man of few words, but a man of his word." He said Wrigley's early support of broadcasting baseball games showed he was an "inventor and an innovator. He always voted for what was best for baseball as a sport even if to the temporary disadvantage to the Cubs."

Ross called Wrigley "both a gentleman and a gentle man, a good neighbor to the homes around Wrigley Field." The reference was to the fact that Wrigley, alone of the major league owners, shunned night baseball because he thought it would not be good for the Wrigley Field neighborhood. He quoted Wrigley as saying once, "I have only made two speeches in my life. In one I said thank you and in the other I said thank you very much."

Stadler shines, sun doesn't at Open

NEW ORLEANS — Former U.S. Amateur champion Craig Stadler birdied four of the first six holes Thursday, then let the wind and showers take care of his competitors to grab a two-stroke lead in the rain-abbreviated first round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open. The 23-year-old Stadler, winner of only $23,000 since joining the pro tour in 1975, had a six-under-par 66, one stroke off the tournament's opening round record.

He posted his score early before an afternoon rainstorm forced suspension of play at 3:22 p.m. CST. More than two hours later tournament officials decided to stop play altogether, but allowed the scores posted by the 81 players who had completed play to stand.

The rest of the field will complete their rounds today, and the second round will not be played until Saturday. The final 36 holes will be played Sunday.

Philadelphia eliminates Leafs again

TORONTO — Defenseman Jim Watson scored his first 1977 Stanley Cup playoff goal at 17:22 of the third period Thursday night to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 4-3 victory which eliminated the Toronto Maple Leafs from post-season play for the third straight year. The victory gave the Flyers their fourth successive win in the best-of-seven quarter-final series after dropping the first two games in Philadelphia. The Flyers eliminated the Maple Leafs in the quarter-final round in seven games last season and in four straight in the 1975 quarers.

Philadelphia battled back from three one-goal deficits before assuming its first lead of the game on Watson's rebound shot. The Flyers, winners of the Stanley Cup in two of the past three years, have now advanced as far as the semifinal round for five straight seasons.

Berlin rolls to Firestone leadership

AKRON, Ohio — Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, moving along at a 220 average for the first four rounds of 32 games, holds a 128-pin lead in the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions. In Thursday night's eight-game match play session, Berlin averaged 232 and won seven of his eight games. In the runnerup position was the 1972 champ, Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls. Following Durbin were 1966 titlist Wayne Zahn of Tempe, Ariz., Sam Flanagan of Parkersburg, W. Va. and Larry Laub of San Francisco.

Berlin, 33, a first-time starter in the Firestone, showed little fear of the big names in the field. He came out of the box quickly with games of 243, 238, 241 and 256. After dropping to 194, he finished strongly with 236, 238 and 211. Named pro bowling's Rookie of the Year last year, Berlin is no stranger to the big money. In his freshman year as a pro he won more than $20,000 and this year, part-time activity has earned him close to $10,000.

Houston evens series with Bullets

HOUSTON—Rudy Tomjanovich, Mike Newlin and Calvin Murphy each connected on long-range jumpers in overtime Thursday night to help the Houston Rockets defeat the Washington Bullets 124-118 and even their best-of-seven NBA quarter-final playoff series at one game apiece. Elvin Hayes' six points led the Bullets to a furious comeback in the final four minutes which earned them a 108-108 tie at the end of regulation.

With five seconds left in regulation, Tom Henderson missed a difficult driving layup which would have sent the Bullets home for the next two games in the series with a two-game lead. The Rockets, who trailed by as much as 12 points in the first half, played near flawless offensive basketball in the fourth quarter as Moses Malone scored 12 points and swept the defensive boards. But Washington's Phil Chenier scored 13 of his 37 points to keep the Bullets close until Hayes and Mitch Kupchak closed the margin in the final minute.

HOLD THAT TIGER. Detroit Tigers' Jason Thompson slides into third base after advancing from first on Milt May's single in the sixth inning at Fenway Park Thursday. Bosox third baseman Butch Hobson bobbles the throw, which came too late anyway. The Tigers won 8-0.

VIP's pay tribute at Wrigley service

Baseball's top brass, led by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, attended a memorial service Thursday for the late Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs baseball team and millionaire head of the Wrigley chewing gum empire. Wrigley died April 12 at age 82. National League President Charles S. Feeney and American League President Leland MacPhail also attended the service at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

Norman Ross, vice president of public affairs for the First National Bank of Chicago, gave the eulogy and called Wrigley "a man of few words, but a man of his word." He said Wrigley's early support of broadcasting baseball games showed he was an "inventor and an innovator. He always voted for what was best for baseball as a sport even if to the temporary disadvantage to the Cubs."

Ross called Wrigley "both a gentleman and a gentle man, a good neighbor to the homes around Wrigley Field." The reference was to the fact that Wrigley, alone of the major league owners, shunned night baseball because he thought it would not be good for the Wrigley Field neighborhood. He quoted Wrigley as saying once, "I have only made two speeches in my life. In one I said thank you and in the other I said thank you very much."

Stadler shines, sun doesn't at Open

NEW ORLEANS — Former U.S. Amateur champion Craig Stadler birdied four of the first six holes Thursday, then let the wind and showers take care of his competitors to grab a two-stroke lead in the rain-abbreviated first round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open. The 23-year-old Stadler, winner of only $23,000 since joining the pro tour in 1975, had a six-under-par 66, one stroke off the tournament's opening round record.

He posted his score early before an afternoon rainstorm forced suspension of play at 3:22 p.m. CST. More than two hours later tournament officials decided to stop play altogether, but allowed the scores posted by the 81 players who had completed play to stand.

The rest of the field will complete their rounds today, and the second round will not be played until Saturday. The final 36 holes will be played Sunday.

Philadelphia eliminates Leafs again

TORONTO — Defenseman Jim Watson scored his first 1977 Stanley Cup playoff goal at 17:22 of the third period Thursday night to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 4-3 victory which eliminated the Toronto Maple Leafs from post-season play for the third straight year. The victory gave the Flyers their fourth successive win in the best-of-seven quarter-final series after dropping the first two games in Philadelphia. The Flyers eliminated the Maple Leafs in the quarter-final round in seven games last season and in four straight in the 1975 quarers.

Philadelphia battled back from three one-goal deficits before assuming its first lead of the game on Watson's rebound shot. The Flyers, winners of the Stanley Cup in two of the past three years, have now advanced as far as the semifinal round for five straight seasons.

Berlin rolls to Firestone leadership

AKRON, Ohio — Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, moving along at a 220 average for the first four rounds of 32 games, holds a 128-pin lead in the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions. In Thursday night's eight-game match play session, Berlin averaged 232 and won seven of his eight games. In the runnerup position was the 1972 champ, Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls. Following Durbin were 1966 titlist Wayne Zahn of Tempe, Ariz., Sam Flanagan of Parkersburg, W. Va. and Larry Laub of San Francisco.

Berlin, 33, a first-time starter in the Firestone, showed little fear of the big names in the field. He came out of the box quickly with games of 243, 238, 241 and 256. After dropping to 194, he finished strongly with 236, 238 and 211. Named pro bowling's Rookie of the Year last year, Berlin is no stranger to the big money. In his freshman year as a pro he won more than $20,000 and this year, part-time activity has earned him close to $10,000.

Houston evens series with Bullets

HOUSTON—Rudy Tomjanovich, Mike Newlin and Calvin Murphy each connected on long-range jumpers in overtime Thursday night to help the Houston Rockets defeat the Washington Bullets 124-118 and even their best-of-seven NBA quarter-final playoff series at one game apiece. Elvin Hayes' six points led the Bullets to a furious comeback in the final four minutes which earned them a 108-108 tie at the end of regulation.

With five seconds left in regulation, Tom Henderson missed a difficult driving layup which would have sent the Bullets home for the next two games in the series with a two-game lead. The Rockets, who trailed by as much as 12 points in the first half, played near flawless offensive basketball in the fourth quarter as Moses Malone scored 12 points and swept the defensive boards. But Washington's Phil Chenier scored 13 of his 37 points to keep the Bullets close until Hayes and Mitch Kupchak closed the margin in the final minute.

Rocking chair arrives; Murcer feels 'at home'

Byline report

Jeff Nordlund

Bobby Murcer is at home now in Chicago.

He has to be. His famous rocking chair has been shipped from San Francisco and installed in the Cubs' locker room. He's free to rock to his heart's content.

"I'm an avid rocker," admitted Murcer this week, and he wasn't talking about music either. "Some guy gave me the chair when I was still in New York. Now it's shipped everywhere I go."

IT SOUNDS silly for a guy who will make a million dollars playing baseball the next five years to be worried about a rocking chair. But now that Murcer's got his contract and sawed-off chair he's content.

And that's good new for Cub fans.

"There's no pressure on me," he siad "When I first came up there was a little. I didn't know what the press was doing. I had an idea — but when I finally found out, it didn't matter any more."

Murcer knows about other persons' expectations of his performance. As a rookie for the Yankees in 1965, he was supposed to be New York's new Mickey Mantle. When that didn't work out, he was sent to the Giants in 1975 where it never worked out very well either.

"I'm happy to be in Chicago," he said. "I'm glad to be leaving San Francisco. It wasn't the town that bothered me, but the ball park. We never got along too well together."

THOUGH MURCER may not feel it, Cub fans are sizing him up with a suspicious eye. It was Murcer who the Cubs received along with starter Steve Ontiveros for Bill Madlock, probably the best hitter in the major leagues, last winter.

The 31-year-old left-handed hitter won't likely equal Madlock's last two seasons' batting averages of .354 and .339, both National League bests. But he may provide the Cubs with some of the power they've missed since the days of Billy Williams and Ron Santo.

Murcer, who has already slugged three home runs in his first nine games this season, is coming off one of his best seasons. He had 23 homers and 90 RBIs last year. But he's only hit 30 or more home runs once, in 1972 when he has 33.

"If I was a young ball player coming into a new town, there would be pressure on me," Murcer said. "But now if I have a couple bad games, I don't get too excited. They know what I can do.

"IF I GET too much on my mind, I can't perform well. Sure, little things bother me now and then. When I played Monday (against Philadelphia), I knew I wasn't going to do well, because I had things on my mind.

"Afterall, you usually get just one in three pitches to hit. You've got to be ready. If that concentration isn't there, you'll miss your pitch and it's over."

Murcer has been ready enough so far this season to carry a .333 average into this weekend's series with Cincinnati. That's nearly 50 points higher than his career average.

Returning to the subject of his rocking chair, Murcer explained just how it came to be only a few inches off the ground.

"THE LEGS WERE cut off once as a prank, so I just had the rockers nailed to the seat. It's probably the shortest rocker in the world now," he said smiling.

"But I'm feeling good about being here at Wrigley Field," he added. "I know I'm going to enjoy this summer."

Here's to hoping everyone else in Chicago enjoys his stay just as much.

Ground breaking ceremony

Chip Carter pledges President's support for Winter Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — Pledging his father's total support for the games, Chip Carter Thursday broke the first ground for the 1980 Winter Olympics in this tiny Adirondack Mountain village.

Carter, at the controls of a backhoe, ripped up a large chunk of sod on the site of a speed-skating rink for the games.

"We offer you all the support you desire," the President's son said. He pledged to "do everything you want me to do to help you achieve your goal."

HELEN CAREY, 17-year-old daughter of Gov. Hugh Carey, also spoke briefly at the ceremonies marking the return of the Olympic competition to the village which was host to the 1932 games.

A half dozen high school bands, hundreds of local residents and school children, politicians and local Olympic leaders circled Carter as the machine ripped up the earth.

Ronald MacKenzie, local Olympic committee president, told the crowd the construction would "provide the United States the finest winter sports training facilities in the world and will bring a brighter economic future to this region."

CAREY, WHO had a speaking engagement in Ireland, sent prepared remarks pledging "to do everything possible to help in the preparation for the Olympic games."

The construction means more to the tiny village than a return to the glory of 1932, however, for the depressed region will benefit greatly from the estimated 450 jobs the Olympic construction will provide at its peak.

Bids already have been let for about $2 million of the $58 million in federally funded construction and officials expect the first actual work to begin by May 1. Other bids will be let within a month, they said.

THE MAJOR construction will consist of a new field house adjacent to the arena built for the 1932 games, a speed skating oval, a 90-meter ski jump and athletes housing in nearby Ray Brook.

The field house is expected to be completed by April 1979, the skating oval by next January and the ski jump by October 1978.

In addition, about $12 million in state construction is planned, including a new luge run, refrigeration of the current bobsled run and improvements to downhill and cross-country ski trails on nearby state-owned mountains.

LOCAL OLYMPIC officials have repeatedly stressed that their plans for a "scaled-down" Olympics will not leave any unsalble "white elephants" after the games end.

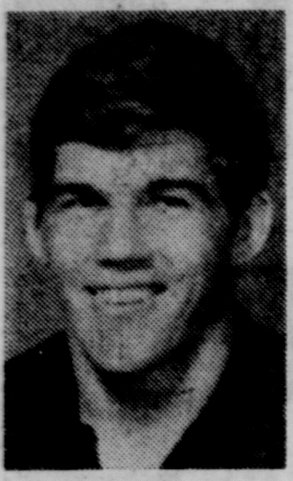
Peterson to wrestle at Conant rally



Ben Peterson

Olympic Gold Medalist in 1972 Ben Peterson will be featureed in an exhibition wrestling match against Conant High School head wrestling coach Grant Grubaugh Saturday night at Conant.

The 7:30 p.m. match is part of a Youth Rally sponsored by Bethel Baptist Church of Schaumburg. Wrestlers from Conant, Schaumburg, and Rolling Meadows high schools will be participating too.

Peterson, now head wrestling coach and architectural instructor at Marantha Baptist Bible College (Wis.), has a distinguished athletic career. He was a 1976 Olympics Silver medalist, a three-time Big Eight champion, a two-time NCAA champion, and a 1975 Pan American titlist.

Ben, an Iowa State University graduate, comes from a wrestling family. His brother, John, won an Olympic Gold Medal a year ago, and a Silver Medal four years ago.

As a high school student in Comstock, Wis., Ben finished second in the Wisconsin State High School Wrestling Tournament.

Windy City softball to be aired on radio

Softball has taken another giant step forward in its continuing growth in the Chicagoland area. League officials recently announced the completion of arrangements to broadcast a portion of the 1977 Windy City League action on WLNR/FM (106.3).

The Windy City League which plays its complete schedule at the popular Windy City Stadium in Bridgeview begins its second season May 16. The initial phase of radio broadcast includes more than 20 games throughout the 1977 season.

Tom Bonen, general manager of the Windy City Stadium, has announced that Henry Murillo of the Suburban Economist Newspapers will head the broadcast team for the Windy City game programs. His responsibilities will include the play-by-play announcing as well as the production of each broadcast.

Color commentators will include other sports journalists in the Chicagoland area as well as softball celebrities. The nightly broadcast will include a 10-minute pre-game show during the 90-minute program.

Elk Grove holds softball tryouts

All girls who have registered in the Elk Grove Village Athletic Association Girls Softball program are asked to attend tryouts.

On Saturday, April 23, at 10:00 a.m., tryouts will be held for girls 12 years of age and older at Disney Park. Saturday, April 30, all girls 8-10 years old should meet at Bartram Park at 10:00 a.m.

It is important that all girls enrolled in the program attend, so that teams can be formed and equalized according to different skills and ability.

Defending North Division champs face Toronto

Improved Sting buzz into Soldier Field for opener

The Chicago Sting hopes the old saying about "there's no place like home" is true Saturday, when they play their home, North American Soccer League opener against the Toronto Metros. Game time is 2 p.m. at Soldier Field.

The Sting were stung badly in their season opener at Tampa Bay as the Rowdies lived up to their nickname by routing the Chicagoans, 4-0.

However, Chicago head coach Bill Foulkes thinks his team, the defending North Division champion, will do well this season. "I really do believe we have an excellent chance to win it all this year," he said.

"ALL OF OUR leading players from last season are back and the youngsters have improved considerably," Foulkes said. "We have added three world class lads from Europe and two of our draft choices, Paul Pringle and David Flashcen, have great potential and give us added depth."

Those newcomers include forward Willie Morgan, former captain of Manchester United; defender Conrad Baiger, a 10-time Polish National star; and midfielder Jim McCalliog,a top notch playmaker. All are in their 30s.

Joining these newcomers are veterans John Kowalik and John Lowey. Last season an injury-plagued Kowalik produced 21 points while Lowey scored 17.

Kowalik also holds the league's single season scoring record. That mark was set in 1968 when he tallied 69 points for the now defunct Chicago Mustangs.

CALLING LOWEY a veteran might be a misnomer. He's only 19-years-old.

A Sting victory would be sweet revenge. A ytar ago, Toronto knocked the Sting out of the league playoffs.

Even though Toronto lost two top players, Eusebio and Wolfgang Sunnholz to the Las Vegas Quicksilvers, Foulkes thinks they'll be tough again. "Toronto has connections in Yugoslavia that no one else in the league has," said Bill. "They'll come up with a good team again this year."

The Sting has also announced that Saturday's game as "Youth Soccer Day." All youngsters wearing a soccer uniform will be admitted to the game free.

Although held in conjunction with the Illinois Youth Soccer Assn. suburban Indiana and Wisconsin soccer plays are invited also.

"THE YOUNGSTERS in uniform will take part in a huge pre-game parade,'' said Sting Vice-President George Fishwick.

"The youth team players and two coaches or supervisors will be admitted free. We're expecting hundreds of teams to show up, not only in uniform, but with whatever team flags or banners they can bring."

While the Sting hope a lot of young soccer players will attend, they are obviously hoping for more paid admissions. Attendance has been a Sting problem spot the fwo years the team's been playing.

Last year, the Sting drew more than 10,000 people at home only once. That was in Chicago's 4-1 victory over the New York Cosmos and the legendary Pele.

CHICAGO CAN only hope and dream of achieving a crowd like it did against Tampa Bay. Then, 33,484 saw the battle, the league's largest home opener ever.

All the success on the field won't help Sting owner Lte Stern unless there are more paid admissions. Another poor attendance year might be too big a "sting" for Stern to absorb.

Olson no household name despite high jump exploits

Byline report

Art Mugalian

Poor Gail Olson — he has no identity of his own.

His Sycamore High School teammates call him "Sloan." His sister is the only one in the family with a state title. And to hear his track coach talk, you'd think he was Dwight Stones, not Gail Olson.

Some people even think he's a girl.

GAIL IS JUST a 16-year-old farmer's son who can high jump 7-2 with his sweatpants on in a little ol' dual meet with Waubonsie Valley.

"We just a bunch of country boys out here," said Olson's high jump coach, Gary Dinges, not trying a bit to disguise his Western Illinois drawl.

"We've had some pretty good 6-4 and 6-6 jumpers out here who didn't get any attention at all," Dinges pointed out. "That's okay — high jumpers are kinda strange. We don't need attention."

But since last year, when Olson shocked even his own coach by going 7-0 as a 15-year-old soph, the world has come to Gail. Nothing about his sudden rise to prominence has changed the 6-foor-4, 160-pounder.

"EVERYTHING IS track with Gail," said Dinges. "Last year, well, he was just a sophomore going 7-0 so he was still hauling in the pits and picking up the towels after practice.

"He goes to practice, goes home, eats, does his weightlifting, goes to bed, gets up and goes to school," said the coach. "He's a mild kid, quiet, but we have a lot of fun."

Dinges likes to compare his junior high jumper to world record-holder Stones, whom Olson met last fall.

"You put Gail and Dwight up next to each other and they're almost identical," said Dinges. "They're just about the same height, but Stones weighs about 10 or 15 pounds more.

"O' course, Gail doesn't have Stones' personality — yet," the coach added.

THE SIMILARITY doesn't end with physical appearances. Both jumpers, of course, are Fosbury Floppers. Gail uses Dwight's training program. And Stones, like Olson, had to settle for third-best in the biggest meet of all. For Stones, it was Montreal; for Olson, it was Charleston.

Gail didn't intimidate the competition at last year's IHSA Class AA finals. Instead he cleared just 6-8 and took third place. "He looked good in the prelims," Dinges recalled.

"We're not downgrading the Illinois State," the coach cautioned. "We look at it like Stones looks at the Olympic Gold. Stones asks who is the best high jumper in the world? Stones. And who won the Olympic Gold Medal? Well, I just don't know.

"Realistically, the Illinois State Meet is just a measure of your ability on one given day," the coach said. "Primarily, our goal is to eventually be a world class high jumper."

OLSON IS WELL on his way. His 7-2 effort cannot be recognized as a national high school record because it came in a dual meet. But the mark exceeded the existing standard of 7-1 1/3.

"I really believe Gail will get 7-4 this spring," Dinges offered. "His third try at 7-4 against Waubonsie was really close — he just kicked the bar with his calf.

"And he still had his sweats on," Dinges noted. "He jumped 7-2 in his sweats and I guess I'm so used to seeing him jump with his sweats on and he's so used to jumping in them that he just forgot to take them off."

Olson had already reached 7-2, in an AAU meet last summer, and also won at the AAU Junior Olympics in a jump-off with two other Floppers. "That's when we found out that Gail is no choker," said Dinges.

SYCAMORE FOUND OUT that Olson was a high jumper a year after Gail's sister won the girls' state title in the high jump.

"He really learned to jump from his sister," said Dinges. "He went 6-3½ as a freshman — that's when we were working with his technique. Then he went to 7-0 as a soph."

It was that incredible performance that drew out the newspaper reporters and helped locate Sycamore on the map — a few miles north of DeKalb. "Sycamore's almost up to 8,000 now," said Dinges.

One big-city writer incorrectly called him Sloan, and a nickname was born.

"You go 5-10, you get a nickname here," said Dinges.

Whatever they call him, you know who he is.

CAR CORNER

with George Orth & Roger Nick

When you reassemble parts for your automobile, you should not have to use much force, since the components should fit together smoothly. If they do not, double check to see that you are placing the correct part in the correct slot. In this phase of the job, do not use more force in tightening a fastener than you would in firmly securing the lid of a jar, unless the service manual calls for the application of a specific amount of force with a torque wrench. Old parts such as burned out bulbs and cracked hoses can be thrown out.

Have your GM car tuned for warm weather driving by expert technicians at RAY OLDSMOBILE, 501 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge! We have the largest GM service department in the area along with a most extensive parts department. Our goal is one of total commitment to our customers! Stop in and discuss your car's problems with Service Managers Roger Nick or George Orth; they are here to make sure you are completely satisfied with any work done. Call us at 696-3200 to schedule your car for service. We are open daily from 7 A.M. until 6 P.M., (closed Saturdays and Sundays).

AUTO TIP:

Take crankcase oil and transmission fluid to your local gas station, they will dispose of it for you.

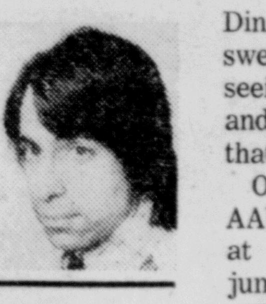
Olson no household name despite high jump exploits



Byline report

Art Mugalian

Poor Gail Olson — he has no identity of his own.

His Sycamore High School teammates call him "Sloan." His sister is the only one in the family with a state title. And to hear his track coach talk, you'd think he was Dwight Stones, not Gail Olson.

Some people even think he's a girl.

GAIL IS JUST a 16-year-old farmer's son who can high jump 7-2 with his sweatpants on in a little ol' dual meet with Waubonsie Valley.

"We just a bunch of country boys out here," said Olson's high jump coach, Gary Dinges, not trying a bit to disguise his Western Illinois drawl.

"We've had some pretty good 6-4 and 6-6 jumpers out here who didn't get any attention at all," Dinges pointed out. "That's okay — high jumpers are kinda strange. We don't need attention."

But since last year, when Olson shocked even his own coach by going 7-0 as a 15-year-old soph, the world has come to Gail. Nothing about his sudden rise to prominence has changed the 6-foor-4, 160-pounder.

"EVERYTHING IS track with Gail," said Dinges. "Last year, well, he was just a sophomore going 7-0 so he was still hauling in the pits and picking up the towels after practice.

"He goes to practice, goes home, eats, does his weightlifting, goes to bed, gets up and goes to school," said the coach. "He's a mild kid, quiet, but we have a lot of fun."

Dinges likes to compare his junior high jumper to world record-holder Stones, whom Olson met last fall.

"You put Gail and Dwight up next to each other and they're almost identical," said Dinges. "They're just about the same height, but Stones weighs about 10 or 15 pounds more.

"O' course, Gail doesn't have Stones' personality — yet," the coach added.

THE SIMILARITY doesn't end with physical appearances. Both jumpers, of course, are Fosbury Floppers. Gail uses Dwight's training program. And Stones, like Olson, had to settle for third-best in the biggest meet of all. For Stones, it was Montreal; for Olson, it was Charleston.

Gail didn't intimidate the competition at last year's IHSA Class AA finals. Instead he cleared just 6-8 and took third place. "He looked good in the prelims," Dinges recalled.

"We're not downgrading the Illinois State," the coach cautioned. "We look at it like Stones looks at the Olympic Gold. Stones asks who is the best high jumper in the world? Stones. And who won the Olympic Gold Medal? Well, I just don't know.

"Realistically, the Illinois State Meet is just a measure of your ability on one given day," the coach said. "Primarily, our goal is to eventually be a world class high jumper."

OLSON IS WELL on his way. His 7-2 effort cannot be recognized as a national high school record because it came in a dual meet. But the mark exceeded the existing standard of 7-1 1/3.

"I really believe Gail will get 7-4 this spring," Dinges offered. "His third try at 7-4 against Waubonsie was really close — he just kicked the bar with his calf.

"And he still had his sweats on," Dinges noted. "He jumped 7-2 in his sweats and I guess I'm so used to seeing him jump with his sweats on and he's so used to jumping in them that he just forgot to take them off."

Olson had already reached 7-2, in an AAU meet last summer, and also won at the AAU Junior Olympics in a jump-off with two other Floppers. "That's when we found out that Gail is no choker," said Dinges.

SYCAMORE FOUND OUT that Olson was a high jumper a year after Gail's sister won the girls' state title in the high jump.

"He really learned to jump from his sister," said Dinges. "He went 6-3½ as a freshman — that's when we were working with his technique. Then he went to 7-0 as a soph."

It was that incredible performance that drew out the newspaper reporters and helped locate Sycamore on the map — a few miles north of DeKalb. "Sycamore's almost up to 8,000 now," said Dinges.

One big-city writer incorrectly called him Sloan, and a nickname was born.

"You go 5-10, you get a nickname here," said Dinges.

Whatever they call him, you know who he is.

Steger is having fun again as Illinois quarterback

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—The encouraging aspect of spring football practice is that the home forces never lose.

That's important when you look back on a weekend in which the Illini varsity golfers finished 15th in the Kepler at Ohio State, an already disgruntled UI tennis squad dropped to 1-3 in the Big 10 with a 5-4 loss at Indiana, the conference indoor champion track squad was dismantled by Southern Illinois 98-65 in a dual meet, the young Illini baseball team lost three of four home games to Northwestern and Wisconsin, and the basketball recruiters missed connections with Mundelein's Greg Boyle (he chose Iowa).

So the gridders, bumping heads night after night in secret, continue to occupy the campus spotlight, as well they should. They are, remember, paying the bills for all the spring activities. Their progress is vital to all.

AND ACCORDING to key man Kurt Steger, the prospects are bright, if for no other reason than he's having fun playing quarterback again.

Kurt doesn't mince words. He had problems with departed coach Bob Blackman, much of it stemming from a "misunderstanding" about him playing baseball during 1976 spring drills. It evolved into a case of two people talking and neither listening.

"The change (in coaches) was a tremendous break for me," said the dark-haired Lake Park product. "Football is fun again. I'm down between 200 and 205 pounds and I feel better than I have in a long time. I know when I weighed 220, I couldn't dunk a basketball. When I got down to 205, it was no trouble. I just feel lighter on my feet.

"THERE'S NO doubt that if coach Blackman had stayed I would still be about 220 and playing baseball. But when coach Moeller came in I really wanted to play football. He didn't have to talk me into it. I have always had a dream of playing professional football and I am working toward that end.

"I'm just sorry I only have one year to play under this staff."

This is a different Steger. He played some outstanding football as a junior, passing for 1,243 yards and 10 TDs but throwing 13 interceptions with a mediocre .465 percentage.

"I'm working on stepping up into the pocket and throwing with my body," he said, "and coach (Gary) Moeller has a thing about throwing into a crowd, so I'm working harder on reading defenses to avoid interceptions. He makes you feel more alert."

THERE IS ANOTHER major change in the offensive backfield. Wright Anderson, former East Carolina offensive coordinator, takes a vigorously active part in the coaching as Moeller deals with all aspects of the team. Blackman, by contrast, worked almost exclusively with the offensive backfield, and last year's aide in that area, Elroy Morand, operated under his direction.

"Our previous backfield coaches didn't really participate that much," informed Steger.

"But Wright Anderson is in there with us. Sometimes I think he reads my mind. The big thing with this staff is execution. We have fewer plays and we try to carry each one to its fullest."

Steger conceded that missing spring practice last year hurt him in the fall. He said:

"It's hard to pick up everything in just three weeks. I knew I couldn't do it this year with a new system."

ONE OF THE necessities is becoming accustomed to new center Randy Taylor, a converted guard from LaSalle-Peru. Also breaking in are rookie tight end Mike Sherrod and competing fullbacks Charles Weber (Elgin-Larkin) and Mike Collins (Rantoul). The offense is otherwise experienced, with veteran James Coleman performing so well this month that Steger said:

"Coleman has been running super. I'd pick him for All-Big 10 at this stage. In fact, I'm pleased with the way the entire offense is looking, although I know we have some depth problems.

"But the main thing is the desire on the field. All these coaches have to do is snap their fingers. And I can't wait to hear Moeller's pre-game speech. I respect Blackman and I feel I'm still on good terms with him, but I've got to be honest. It was pretty dead in our locker room before the games. I don't think it will be that way anymore."

Steger is having fun again as Illinois quarterback

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—The encouraging aspect of spring football practice is that the home forces never lose.

That's important when you look back on a weekend in which the Illini varsity golfers finished 15th in the Kepler at Ohio State, an already disgruntled UI tennis squad dropped to 1-3 in the Big 10 with a 5-4 loss at Indiana, the conference indoor champion track squad was dismantled by Southern Illinois 98-65 in a dual meet, the young Illini baseball team lost three of four home games to Northwestern and Wisconsin, and the basketball recruiters missed connections with Mundelein's Greg Boyle (he chose Iowa).

So the gridders, bumping heads night after night in secret, continue to occupy the campus spotlight, as well they should. They are, remember, paying the bills for all the spring activities. Their progress is vital to all.

AND ACCORDING to key man Kurt Steger, the prospects are bright, if for no other reason than he's having fun playing quarterback again.

Kurt doesn't mince words. He had problems with departed coach Bob Blackman, much of it stemming from a "misunderstanding" about him playing baseball during 1976 spring drills. It evolved into a case of two people talking and neither listening.

"The change (in coaches) was a tremendous break for me," said the dark-haired Lake Park product. "Football is fun again. I'm down between 200 and 205 pounds and I feel better than I have in a long time. I know when I weighed 220, I couldn't dunk a basketball. When I got down to 205, it was no trouble. I just feel lighter on my feet.

"THERE'S NO doubt that if coach Blackman had stayed I would still be about 220 and playing baseball. But when coach Moeller came in I really wanted to play football. He didn't have to talk me into it. I have always had a dream of playing professional football and I am working toward that end.

"I'm just sorry I only have one year to play under this staff."

This is a different Steger. He played some outstanding football as a junior, passing for 1,243 yards and 10 TDs but throwing 13 interceptions with a mediocre .465 percentage.

"I'm working on stepping up into the pocket and throwing with my body," he said, "and coach (Gary) Moeller has a thing about throwing into a crowd, so I'm working harder on reading defenses to avoid interceptions. He makes you feel more alert."

THERE IS ANOTHER major change in the offensive backfield. Wright Anderson, former East Carolina offensive coordinator, takes a vigorously active part in the coaching as Moeller deals with all aspects of the team. Blackman, by contrast, worked almost exclusively with the offensive backfield, and last year's aide in that area, Elroy Morand, operated under his direction.

"Our previous backfield coaches didn't really participate that much," informed Steger.

"But Wright Anderson is in there with us. Sometimes I think he reads my mind. The big thing with this staff is execution. We have fewer plays and we try to carry each one to its fullest."

Steger conceded that missing spring practice last year hurt him in the fall. He said:

"It's hard to pick up everything in just three weeks. I knew I couldn't do it this year with a new system."

ONE OF THE necessities is becoming accustomed to new center Randy Taylor, a converted guard from LaSalle-Peru. Also breaking in are rookie tight end Mike Sherrod and competing fullbacks Charles Weber (Elgin-Larkin) and Mike Collins (Rantoul). The offense is otherwise experienced, with veteran James Coleman performing so well this month that Steger said:

"Coleman has been running super. I'd pick him for All-Big 10 at this stage. In fact, I'm pleased with the way the entire offense is looking, although I know we have some depth problems.

"But the main thing is the desire on the field. All these coaches have to do is snap their fingers. And I can't wait to hear Moeller's pre-game speech. I respect Blackman and I feel I'm still on good terms with him, but I've got to be honest. It was pretty dead in our locker room before the games. I don't think it will be that way anymore."

College Frisbee stars to meet at Northwestern

Northwestern University will host the finals of the First Annual Intercollegiate Frisbee Championships on Friday, April 29.

Thirty college students, 15 men and 15 women, having won both campus and regional tournaments, and representing colleges and universities throughout the United States, are receiving all-expense-paid trips to Northwestern to compete for the titles of Men's and Women's Intercollegiate Frisbee Champion.

Activities begin Friday, April 29, with the preliminaries at 9:30 a.m. and the finals starting at 2:30 p.m. Both distance and accuracy competitions will be held in Deering Meadows at Northwestern. In case of rain they will be held indoors at the Blomquist Recreation Building.

Combined scores in the two events will determine the champions, who will receive trophies and all-expense-paid trips to the World Frisbee Championships to be held for the fourth consecutive year at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., in late August.

Three seniors win merit scholarships

Three area seniors have won $1,000 National Merit Scholarships underwritten by grants from business and industrial organizations.

Scholarship winners are James R. Fruchterman, 1104 Carlyle Ct., Arlington Heights, St Viator High School in Arlington Heights; Alan Baltis, 260 Parkchester Rd., Elk Grove Village, Elk Grove High School; and Carol L. Roge, 221 N. Bissell Dr., Palatine, Palatine High School.

The names of 13 area seniors who won four-year corporate-sponsored scholarships were released earlier. Later this month names of winners of four-year scholarships sponsored by colleges will be announced.

More than one million students participated in the 1977 merit scholarship competition. Winners were selected through tests.

The National Merit Scholarship Corp. is a nonprofit organization administering the National Merit Scholarship Program. The merit program is the largest independently financed undergraduate scholarship competition in the United States.

Three seniors win merit scholarships

Scholarship winners are James R. Fruchterman, 1104 Carlyle Ct., Arlington Heights, St Viator High School in Arlington Heights; Alan Baltis, 260 Parkchester Rd., Elk Grove Village, Elk Grove High School; and Carol L. Roge, 221 N. Bissell Dr., Palatine, Palatine High School.

The names of 13 area seniors who won four-year corporate-sponsored scholarships were released earlier. Later this month names of winners of four-year scholarships sponsored by colleges will be announced.

More than one million students participated in the 1977 merit scholarship competition. Winners were selected through tests.

The National Merit Scholarship Corp. is a nonprofit organization administering the National Merit Scholarship Program. The merit program is the largest independently financed undergraduate scholarship competition in the United States.

It's springtime in the Northwest suburbs. The sun is streaming through the open windows illuminating those decorating dilemmas that winter's shadows camouflaged. The need to replace the fading wallpaper in the kitchen, the worn carpeting in the living room and the shredding shades in the bedroom comes to light. On the following pages, The Herald highlights the latest furnishing, decorating and home project ideas and "where to buy" locally.

Guidelines to create the illusion of space

Emphasize small areas to advantage

by LINDA MADAY

In this age of compact living and multi-purpose rooms, trying to give every niche and cranny in limited-living areas a useful design function without effecting the look of an overcrowded furniture warehouse often pulls the rug out from under even the most well-thought-out decorating schemes.

"Don't overlook limited areas. There is a way to emphasize small space to advantage," suggested Mary Stephan, A.S.I.D., director of design at Office Equipment Co. in Chicago.

"People tend to ignore small spaces. They don't realize that if one thing is out of place, the whole room is wrong. By applying a few basic design principles and some of your own personality, those dead areas can be focal points of the home."

"THE PSYCHOLOGY of color" is fundamental to creating the feeling of openness in a room, said Stephan. "Push back walls and increase the size of any room by painting the walls white or a light, cool color."

Stephan pointed out that "light, natural colors are easier to live with for longer periods of time and allow for a variety of accents." She suggested a monochromatic color scheme using one color and incorporating variations of that tone throughout the room treatment.

It is important to keep the number of textures in wall and floor coverings, window treatments and furnishings to a minimum. "Decide on a texture and follow it through. For contrast and balance, a low variety of textures means less visual eye break-up and better continuity."

Avoid large, heavy patterns in wall covering and concentrate on small patterns to achieve a clean feeling. "Reflective surfaces, when used properly, can double the size of an area and add sparkle," said Stephan. Bronze and chrome are effective background metals.

"MAINTAIN ONE floor covering throughout a living area for free-flowing spaciousness," urged Stephan. "Ceramic tile will open up tight areas, but the comfort of carpeting generally is preferred.

"In selecting the correct carpeting, color is the main consideration. Heavy area rugs do nothing for small-space situations."

Mrs. Stephan did not recommend elaborate window treatments in limited-space areas. "Strive for a simple look. Treat the window as an overall part of the wall, not a separate entity. Allow for as much light as possible."

Balance and scale are the guidelines in furniture selection. "Modern designs are good for today's apartments because they complement the architecture. Heavy, traditional styles demand a lot of space, as do large-scaled, patterned furniture.

"SMALL ROOMS needn't be cramped or uninteresting. By aligning small-scaled furniture along the walls, you can put every inch of space to use and use it effectively."

Lighting can be very effective in widening a room by eliminating dark spots, especially in corners. "Whenever you light vertical surfaces, you open up a room by throwing the light on walls themselves."

Small spotlights and globes that sit on the floor were Stephan's solution to expanding smaller areas electrically. Mood lighting, by attaching dimmer switches to overhead fixtures adapts to different times of the day and multi-faceted areas — lower levels for conversation and brighter for "task lighting."

STEPHEN DEMANDS light, translucent lamp shades in small areas and bases of clean design, properly proportioned to the height of the lamp.

She has found that accessories are important to the finished look of a room and should be geared to the over all dimensions of the area.

"Where space is limited, you must be more selective in your choice of accessory pieces."

Perspective graphics add depth. Large wall hangings draw the eye but should not be overpowering. She admitted that one large piece is often better than cluttering a wall with many smaller objects. If room colors are flat, wall hangings afford the ideal opportunity to bring in color.

DIVIDERS IN multi-purpose rooms that serve as living and eating quarters, for instance, cut down on space. Stephan recommended eliminating obstructions to give the most wide-open effect.

If you are undecided about how to make the most of an unused area, Stephan suggested looking to your own personality for clues to erasing the question mark. Combining fundamental design techniques and a hobby or favorite collection form an interesting and functional solution to a problem area.

For example, an unused or poorly designed closet can be converted and used for other purposes.

STEPHAN APPLIED this technique in her own home. She removed the doors on an impractically situated and narrow formal closet and installed adequate lighting, fold-away table and seat, shelves and sewing machine. The result was a complete and unique sewing center.

Stephan said she also made the personal preference idea work in a Northwest suburban home she recently decorated. The homeowner called on Stephan to convert a small den into a bedroom. Stephan emphasized the owner's passion for flowers and the window that looked out onto a garden as the focal points of the room. She carried a small iris pattern in the wallpaper through to the bedspread and draperies and used its mint-green background as the carpet color.

"By doing it all in one pattern, I opened the room up and blended the outside with the interior."

Strive for simple window treatments.

Perspective graphics create depth.

SPIRAL STAIRS open many areas to livable and useable space by occupying a small square footage in the access area. Available in any given height and in right or left spirals, the graceful stairs add interest and beauty that cannot be achieved with a straight stairway.

Beautify bathroom

Even if it's old and cramped and its furnishings are rooted to the floor, there's much you can do to revitalize and beautify the bathroom.

Here are some decorating tips which will work equally well for renewing the classically-small, apartment-style bath and its country cousin, the more spacious, private-home powder room.

- Cover walls with a bright, colorful wallpaper. If your bathroom has a window, have the shade made from extra wallpaper to match the walls.

- Hang a fancy shower curtain. Almost any washable material can be used, as long as you protect the "wet side" with a water-proof shower sheet.

- Add some decorative shelves. Cabinet space is often at a premium in bathrooms. A few gold-or silver-trimmed shelves will provide extra storage space and lend an elegant look to the room, and you can use them to show off pretty bubble bath, bath oil and perfume and cologne bottles.

Align small-scale furniture along the walls.

Save energy the old-fashioned way

Homeowners who want to save money on their utility bills can take a few tips from their grandparents.

Before technology delivered us from the discomforts of our climate, people used natural methods for cooling their houses in the summer and conserving the heat they had in the cold months. The natural ways are still available to us and they are surprisingly inexpensive and easy to do.

With energy in short supply and rising in cost, everyone has to be concerned with conservation.

UNTIL GOVERNMENT and industry come up with a solution to the problem of scarce fossil fuels, the American Association of Nurserymen pointed out three things homeowners can do to use their energy supplies wisely around the house.

Make the heating and cooling systems work more efficiently and use them conservatively. Secondly, use other energy sources such as sun and wind.

Take steps to reduce energy needs in the home by controlling the effects of climate on the house itself. Trees and other plantings can help do all these things.

These are the methods our grandparents used. They opened their windows on hot days and let cool breezes run through the house. The breezes were nicely channeled by thick hedges planted in the right places outside.

THE BIG LEAFY shade trees were located where they rained shade on the house to keep it cool and comfortable during the summer.

In effect, they created their own "miniclimate" in and around their houses. Regardless of the weather outside, those old houses managed to remain comfortable all year around without expensive, fuel-consuming air conditioners and sophisticated heating units.

Even in modern houses homeowners can create their own energy-saving miniclimate which will not only help save money and energy, but which enhances the value of the property.

Proper landscaping with trees, bushes, shrubs, evergreens and other plantings requires just good common sense and a little professional advice from a local garden center or nurseryman.

SHADE TREES, for example, are among nature's most efficient climate controllers. In the summer, their big leafy umbrellas provide a cooling shade in or around a house.

They also give off cooling vapor through transpiration. In winter, they drop their leaves and allow the warming effects of the sun to come through.

Smart planting and energy-saving measures can help every modern day homeowner create his own energy-saving "miniclimate."

DuPont ZE PEL forms an invisible shield on the carpet which keeps dirt from lodging itself within the carpet fibers. Even mud doesn't seep in, and drys on the surface. Since dirt tends to settle on the top of the carpet, it can be easily vacuumed away. Less soil clings to the ZE PEL treated carpet, so your carpet won't need its first shampoo until much later than unprotected carpet.

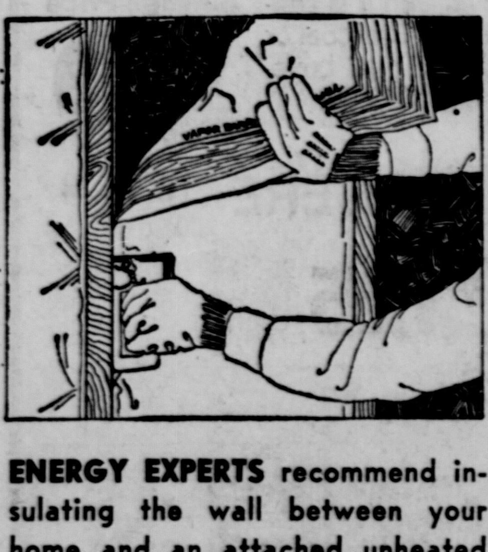
Eliminate drafts with fiber glass

According to energy experts, you can easily insulate the wall between your home and an attached unheated garage to help eliminate drafts and reduce cooling and heating bills in your house.

Purchase kraft-faced reverse flange fiber glass insulation. It is 3½ inches thick and is made specifically for applications like this where you insulate from the outside in.

The kraft-faced vapor barrier is clearly marked — and should be installed with the kraft paper facing toward the heated area of the house. The other side of the insulation is faced with special "breather" paper with flanges which you staple to the wall studs. It faces the inside toward the unheated garage.



ENERGY EXPERTS recommend insulating the wall between your home and an attached unheated garage to help eliminate drafts and heat loss in your house. Kraft-faced reverse flange fiber glass insulation is made specifically for applications like this where you insulate from the outside in.

HEY THERE, that's coordination! This well-put-together living room arrangement centers around a matching sofa and love seat. The sofa opens into a queen-size bed. It is one of the many styles of sleeper sofas avaplable at Sit, Stack & Sleep Shop, 11 S. Dunton in Arlington Heights.

Put the freeze on poor selections

Buying a refrigerator is a decision you'll have to live with for many years.

For that reason, experts suggest that before you begin shopping, you determine your needs objectively.

What about the size of your family? Do you have small children with small appetites who will grow into teenagers with enormous appetites? Or will your children be leaving the nest in the next few years?

STYLE IS A matter of preference. Top-freezer models offer wide, eye-level freezer space while side-by-side models have narrower freezers that extend from the top to the bottom of the unit. Side-by-sides offer easy access to frequently-used items from both fresh food and freezer sections.

If convenience is important to you, through-the-door ice service would be worth considering. There are models available that deliver crushed ice or ice cubes through the door, and dispense chilled water through the door. In addition to daily living convenience, they are particularly helpful if the family entertains frequently.

THE COLOR of the refrigerator you select will play an important role in the colors you can choose for walls, kitchen furniture and decorative accessories in the future. Refigerators are available in a variety of "natural" colors.

Other features worth shopping for include adjustable shelves to give storage flexibility, large freezer sections, wheels to help you move the refrigerator out when cleaning, and a power saver switch which lets you save electricity under low humidity conditions, such as in air-conditioned homes or during the winter.

Buying a refrigerator is a decision you'll have to live with for many years.

For that reason, experts suggest that before you begin shopping, you determine your needs objectively.

What about the size of your family? Do you have small children with small appetites who will grow into teenagers with enormous appetites? Or will your children be leaving the nest in the next few years?

STYLE IS A matter of preference. Top-freezer models offer wide, eye-level freezer space while side-by-side models have narrower freezers that extend from the top to the bottom of the unit. Side-by-sides offer easy access to frequently-used items from both fresh food and freezer sections.

If convenience is important to you, through-the-door ice service would be worth considering. There are models available that deliver crushed ice or ice cubes through the door, and dispense chilled water through the door. In addition to daily living convenience, they are particularly helpful if the family entertains frequently.

THE COLOR of the refrigerator you select will play an important role in the colors you can choose for walls, kitchen furniture and decorative accessories in the future. Refigerators are available in a variety of "natural" colors.

Other features worth shopping for include adjustable shelves to give storage flexibility, large freezer sections, wheels to help you move the refrigerator out when cleaning, and a power saver switch which lets you save electricity under low humidity conditions, such as in air-conditioned homes or during the winter.

GIVE YOUR HOME A FRESH NEW LOOK FOR SPRING

With an oil painting, etching or lithograph from our huge selection of works of art from America and the four corners of the world.

We carry some of the top names in art today. Names such as Rembrandt, Goya, Renoir, Whistler, Dali, Picasso, Rockwell, Hibel, Toulouse-Lautrec, Bauer, Odierna, Blaylock, King, Gilbert, Money, Munnich and many more.

Our Old Master Graphics Room has no equal.

Or visit our New Masters Room where you will find oil paintings priced from $15 to $95.

Most charge cards welcome or use our handy Budget Plan.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

One Act Play entitled
"Saga of the Upholstered Board"

Scene: Office of the Sales Manager of the major mattress manufacturing company.

Sales Manager: What is this terrific new idea of yours?

Product Engineer: It's a new mattress with a board in the middle. It makes the mattress harder than - I mean it makes it very hard.

Sales Manager: Sounds good. We could call it the "Board-O-Pedic." The public wants hard mattresses today. We've been spending enough money telling them this for the last ten years.

Product Engineer: We do use a little foam padding, but with the board in the middle, you hardly feel the padding.

Sales Manager: Have you tried it yourself?

Product Engineer: Sure! I used it for three nights and it almost killed me. I hardly slept a wink. But it's harder than any of our competitors are making so it should sell.

Sales Manager: Maybe we should call it the "Upholstered Board"?

Product Manager: I don't know - there's a little company called Schaumburg Mattress Factory that makes fun of these hard mattresses. They tell their customers they shouldn't sleep on these "Upholstered Boards."

Sales Manager: How do you know so much about the Schaumburg Mattress Factory?

Product Engineer: That's where I bought my mattress and man, is it comfortable!!!

Exit: Product Engineer.

Open Daily 9 'til 9 • Sat. 9 to 5 • Sun. 11 'til 5

WEEKEND RETREAT, an eclectic mix of woods, patterns and textures, has a great country, lounge-around feeling with warm wood tones, natural woven rush side sections on seating pieces and tables, and soft supple vinyl seats. Cushions sit on a length of fabric slung between top back and bottom front rails for individual seating comfort. By cozy-ing the room with assorted needlecraft pillow, afghan, heirloom patchwork rug wallhanging and natural Berber rug underfoot, family and friends instantly feel right at home — away from home.

Replace windows with custom look

Custom made is often elegant. It's also expensive, in clothes, automobiles and homes. With replacement windows, there's a way to get the custom look without straining the family budget.

Modern wood windows, which are manufactured in a variety of stock sizes and styles, can add a touch of class to an entire home. The warm, rich grain of wood gives windows natural detail. Good design and factory engineering do the rest.

QUALITY WOOD windows have factory-applied weatherstripping to ensure against heat-robbing air filtration. Combined with the natural insulation of wood sash and insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulation air space between — up-to-date wood windows effectively guard against heat loss through the glass areas and against condensation.

Well-built wood windows come in a range of styles and sizes to meet just about any design requirement. Unusual window treatments add visual interest to a home.

Homeowners thinking about replacing old, drafty windows with modern wood windows should consider the various tyles. Sliding windows or patio doors for example, have a trim look that suits modern architecture, yet provide good ventilation and excellent visibility. Used in series, they have the effect of opening up an entire wall.

A VISIT to Window Fashion Unlimited in Palatine is a lesson in interior design. The many vignettes in the store are indicative of their full circle of decorating services "from carpet on the floor to pictures on the wall." This display features the custom upholstering offered at the store. The drapery work is done on the premises.

Keep window treatments simple

Tailored, traditional or whimsical, window treatments are of major importance to room decor.

Too often, windows are overdone with yards of expensive fabric, or underdone in a plain white shade. Neither very practical in the sense that the windows are blocked or covered, so sunlight and heat are either streaming into the room, or are shut out completely along with the view.

ADJUSTABLE SLATTED blinds have long been accepted as the most practical and functional of interior window coverings.

Easy-care aluminum blinds come in decorator colors and allow you to select the right amount of daylight and still prevent heat gain and loss through your home's windows.

A great deal of heating fuel is wasted when heat rays, like light, pass through glass windows.

The heat from your home can escape in winter, just as the sun's heat penetrates the glass in summer. The reflective aluminum slats can reduce this waste considerably.

DRESSING UP the windows with these blinds is an easy task. As further adornment the window can be framed with a simple plywood structure.

This frame could be covered with any of a variety of fabrics, papers, paints, or even mirror tiles. The decorative covering may be as elaborate or simple as your room requires.

Find room to launder

If you badly need a laundry center but your service porch area is woefully inadequate, don't give up! Other rooms may offer the needed space without losing their appeal.

If you have a large family room, consider placing a laundry center at one end, partitioning it off with attractive folding doors or shutters to preserve the room's decor.

A spacious hallway, especially if it's adjacent to a bath, would allow for sharing of plumbing facilities and can provide a convenient place for laundry apliances.

STASH YOUR TREASURES in this handcrafted, Spanish-leather trunk and throw away the key. Lined in red velvet, the small chest was imported from Madrid. Find your own memory box at Something Special in Arlington Heights or at the second location in Barrington.

THE GEOMETRIC SHAPES of these rich-looking, contemporary wooden plant holders guarantee your greenery a place of honor no matter where you choose to place them. Busse Flowers and Gifts in Mount Prospect has them and a variety of additional ideas for displaying your foliage.

Know pitfalls of upholstery

Since looks can be the most deceiving when shopping for upholstered furniture, the best way to tackle such a major investment is to come to the store armed with knowledge.

Know the four underlying construction details that indicate good quality and look for them in each piece you consider.

Examine the joining of seams and positioning of cushions. Make certain the pattern is matched all over and there are no dangling threads.

FRAME CONSTRUCTION is another good indicator. Look for well-seasoned hardwood frames built sturdily with doweled joints and screwed and glued corner blocks.

Quick frame tests include scanning the finish of exposed wood parts and lifting the piece. Heaviness denotes good quality hardwood.

Rub your hand over the surface where the wood frame stops to make sure there are no sharp edges that can work through the fabric. Any frame movement means the joints are loose.

Today, most upholstery fabrics are entirely or partially made of synthetic fabrics and will stretch with use. Therefore, the third test point to look for is the inside of the cushion.

BETTER QUALITY cushions are filled with down rather than with synthetics because feathers and down are loose within an envelope or partition, and they allow the cushions to spring back and to conform to the shape of the upholstery fabric as it stretches.

Down-filled cushions can expand to fill the extra space. Synthetic fillers, on the other hand, are inflexible and the piece will develop wrinkles and an unfilled look as the outer cushion fabric stretches.

By checking the bedding law label you can find out if your chosen piece is down-filled. This simply means that it is filled with a blend of down and feathers in varying proportions.

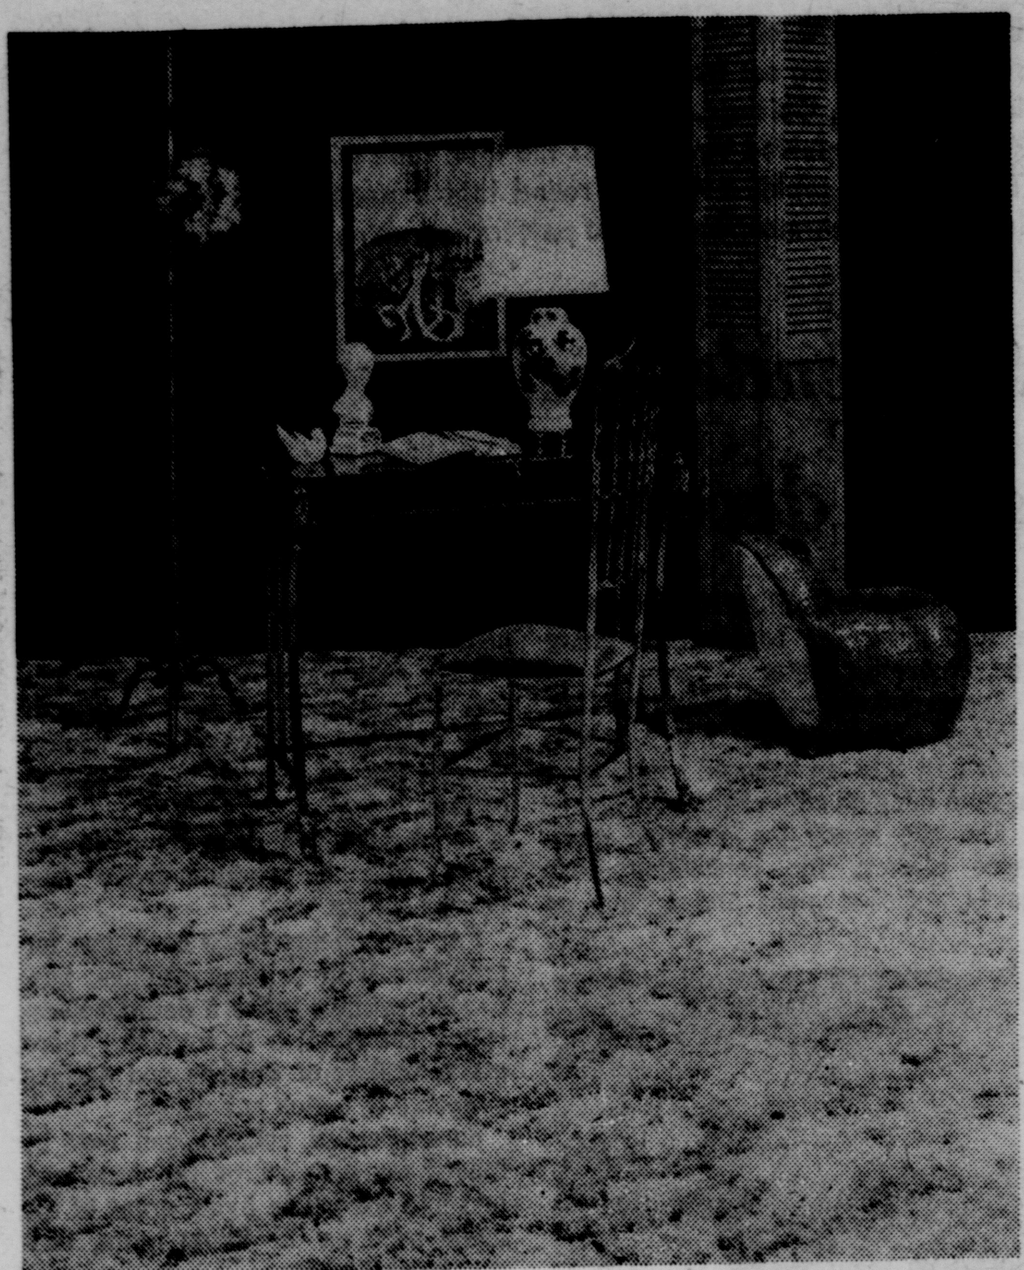
Down-filled cushions are recognizable in two basic designs. One is an all-down cushion made with partitions and dividers to keep the down from shifting.

IN THE SECOND type, the combination cushion, a down envelope surrounds central cores of soft springs, polyester or polyform filled with coiled springs.

Construction of seat springs revealed under the cushions by the width of the deck, is the fourth and final checks.

Eight-way hand-tied coil springs are the best. Six-way, drop-in performed units and wire springs or webbing in slim line decks are good also.

Shallow-decked no-sag springs are inferior. All deck springing should be insulated by resilient padding. Test for this by lifting the cushion and feeling for the springs under the fabric. Individual springs that can be felt indicate early wear problems.



RICH AND LUXURIOUS sculptured pile carpeting adds the focal point to this clean living space. The plush "Cloudburst" design from the Walter collection of fine carpeting is on display at Action Floor Covering Inc. in Palatine. An additional warehouse in Elk Grove Village offers a plentiful stock of ceramics, sheet goods and woods to cover every floor covering need.

THE ARRIVAL of a Nettle Creek Shop in Arlington Heights brings a source of complete interior decorating services to the Northwest suburbs. The shop specializes in pillows, draperies, bedspreads, upholstering, bath goods and accessories. This display shows a number of ways a print can be carried through in a bedroom setting.

BRIGHT LOOPS of chrome tubing form unique petal-like bases for a five-piece dining set from the new Caprice collection by B. Brody Seating Company, Chicago. Inviting swivel chairs, covered in Western Russet fabric-supported vinyl, stress the light look with high-arching backs. The pedestal table, a 41-inch round that expands to 41 by 59 inches, is finished in harmonizing Locust pattern melamine laminate.

Suspended ceilings solve decorating problems

The suspended ceiling has long been a work-horse for homeowners going the remodeling route.

Suspended ceilings are the type that employ large (usually 2'x4') panels which fit into an exposed metal grid system hung on wires from above.

The are handy for covering damaged plaster, for concealing bare joists, exposed pipes and wiring, or for lowering an old-fashioned high ceiling.

They are popular with do-it-yourselfers because they are easy to install. The average handyman or handywoman can do the job in a weekend or less.

About $100 will decorate a 10'x12' room with a premium-grade suspended ceiling.

Far from being mere cover-ups for problems with existing ceilings, suspended ceilings make a definite decorating contribution to a room. There are a variety of finishes and designs available to match any decor.

So suspended ceilings can now be moved up and out of the basement and into the prime living areas of the home such as the living room, bedroom and kitchen.

BESIDES BEING stylish, today's suspended ceiling offers more function than alternatives like textured paint, plaster or gypsum board. For example, suspended ceilings made of mineral fiber are washable, fire-resistant and sound-absorbing.

Another big advantage of suspended ceilings is that pipes, wiring and duct work remain accessible. The panels are simply lifted out of the grid to get to the area above the ceiling.

Most manufacturers publish excellent, easy-to-follow instructions for installing suspended ceilings. Basically, five steps are involved.

Nail the molding to the wall at the desired ceiling height to provide support for the panels at the perimeter of the room.

Attach hanger wires to the joists at four-foot intervals.

FASTEN THE MAIN runners of the metal grid (framework) to the hanger wires.

Lay the ceiling panels into the grid thus formed by the main runners and cross tees. The panels can be easily removed for access to the original ceiling.

THE EXQUISITE geometic motifs in this rug originated in the Indian city of Agra, site of the famous Taj Mahal. The design is from Karastan's new collection of wool rugs called Orient Treasures. A new computerized process gives the pattern exceptional definition and depth in the dyed-in-the-wool yarns, colored in rich paprika, gold, ivory and blue tones. Inspect the craftsmanship of this area rug for yourself at Vartanian Carpet in Palatine.

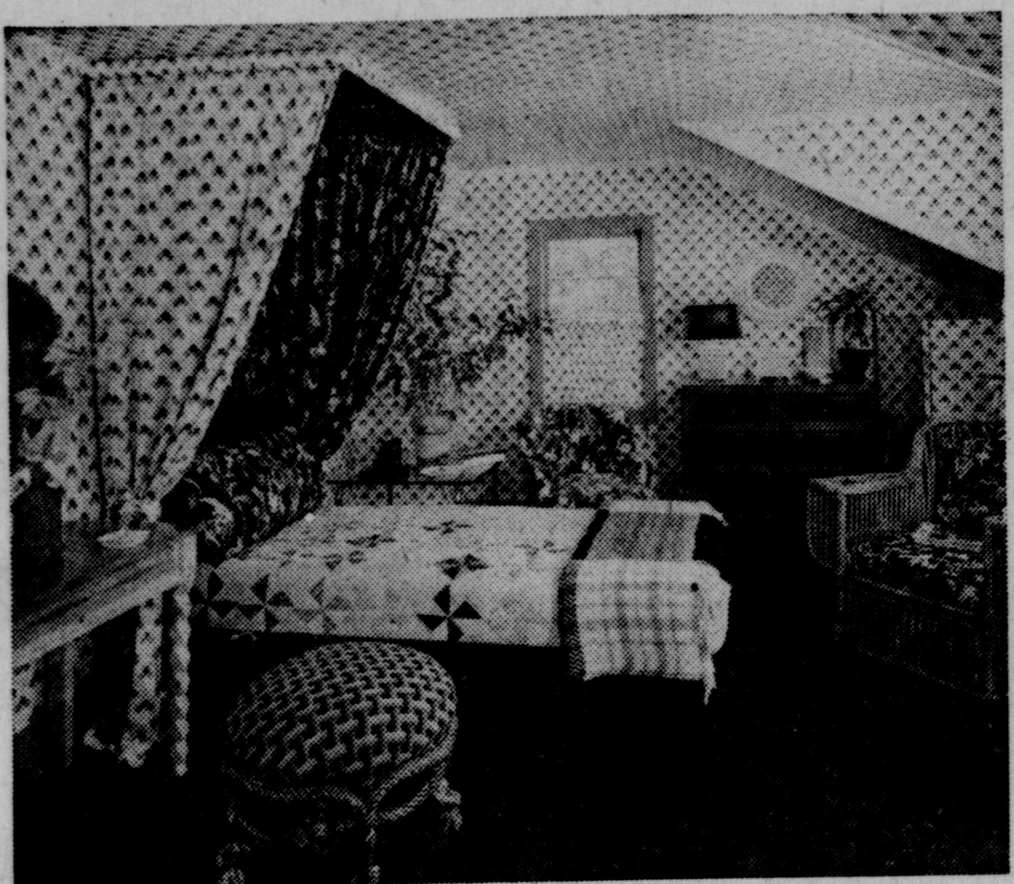
A UNIQUE SHIRRING technique utilized the lines of the wall to full advantage in correcting an irregular ceiling problem in this bedroom. Printed-over drapery combine with matching sheers, laminated window shade and spread of the same fabric to create the over-all effect. The unusual window treatment was specially designed by Arlington Draperies in Arlington Heights.



THIS ADDED-ON attic room assumed a cheerful, airy look thanks to a well-planned design scheme. Planning and securing complete coordination in a room setting like this is a job for The Great Cover Up in Buffalo Grove's Plaza Verde shopping center. From windows to walls, Bob and Yvonne Greenberg will follow up on the project until the finished product meets the customer's expectations.

Folding louver doors 'in'

Everyone thinks of doors in terms of the rooms they connect with. There are front doors and back doors, kitchen doors and bedroom doors, basement and attic doors. Some doors, however, do more than merely open and close.

Wood louver doors are an example. Besides kitchen doors, bedroom doors, closet doors, bath and laundry room doors, wood louver doors can also be used as decorative screens, room dividers and connecting doors.

THEY'RE SUITABLE for informal kitchens, formal dining rooms or as connecting doors between the two.

They function especially well as kitchen, bath, laundry and closet doors where they permit the free flow of air to circulate, helping to combat heat and humidity, odors, staleness and mildew.

Wood louver doors are available as folding or sliding units, which makes them ideal for closets in narrow foyers or hallways where floor clearance space is limited.

FOLDING LOUVER doors open and close like an accordion, requiring little floor space. Sliding louver doors don't take up any floor space.

Available in stock sizes at local lumber dealers or building supply stores, wood louver doors can be purchased either fully louvered or with a wood panel in the bottom.

The slim lines and openslat design of wood louver doors add visual interest to any room because of the warm, rich look of wood.

When stained to highlight the natural grain, wood louver doors are especially effective. But the wood can be varnished or painted to serve virtually any interior decor.

Wool. In a class by itself.

WOOL WEARS AND LOOKS BETTER LONGER — The reason is the unique coil-spring construction within the fiber, for maximum resilience.

WOOL STAYS CLEANER LONGER — A tough outer casing protects it from clinging dirt. Vacuums clean more easily. Tests prove that the good looks stay good — even after five or more shampooings.

WOOL COLORS LOOK ALIVE — Wool is protein, and dyes soak in deeper.

WOOL'S SAFER — Naturally flame resistant. A properly constructed wool carpet will not melt or support combustion. (And a dropped cigarette won't ruin your investment.)

WOOL'S QUALITY CAN BE PROVED — The Woolmark label on carpeting means it has (they have) passed a battery of tests in The Wool Bureau's laboratories for fiber content, pile weight per square yard, mothproofing, backing construction. So look for the Woolmark label.

QUIET ELEGENCE in a well-bred setting created by Robert D. Schaffer for Peters-Revington Furniture, knows no short-lived trends in home fashions. It's not a matter of priceless furnishings — just understated traditional styling incorporating such rich elements as the fine cherry diamond-matched veneer of the oval-shaped cocktail table with interesting raised rim. Designer Arto Szabo carried out the same theme in the smaller-scaled end table featuring fluted posts, lower storage space and handy, wipeable pull-out serving shelf. The rest of the decor combines true white, cotton velvet sofa, pull-up chairs with pumpkin-colored seats, area rug over white carpet, textured grasscloth wallcovering, pillowry in assorted hues, a bit of chinoiseries and exotic greenery.

Fragrant fires

If your nose rules your selection of firewoods, than obtain apple, cherry beech, hickory or pecan logs. Their smoke usually resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. Be prepared to pay more than for the standard woods.

IF THE LONG hard winter allowed you time to catch up on a lot of needlework, you are probably ready for the expert stretching and framing of Grand Frame, now located on Dryden near Kensington, in Arlington Heights. This needlepoint, framed in natural oak, is one example of the many ways to display your handiwork. Another speciality of the shop is framing latch hooked rugs on stretchers.

Use self-cleaning

According to the National Home Improvement Council, self-clean ovens consume less energy than conventional ranges.

Citing recent studies, the Council concluded, that improved insulation necessary for the self-cleaning ovens to contain the heat during the cleaning cycle, actually reduces the energy requirements during normal baking and roasting. A self-cleaning oven costs no more to operate, on the average, than a conventional oven which must be cleaned manually.

QUIET ELEGENCE in a well-bred setting created by Robert D. Schaffer for Peters-Revington Furniture, knows no short-lived trends in home fashions. It's not a matter of priceless furnishings — just understated traditional styling incorporating such rich elements as the fine cherry diamond-matched veneer of the oval-shaped cocktail table with interesting raised rim. Designer Arto Szabo carried out the same theme in the smaller-scaled end table featuring fluted posts, lower storage space and handy, wipeable pull-out serving shelf. The rest of the decor combines true white, cotton velvet sofa, pull-up chairs with pumpkin-colored seats, area rug over white carpet, textured grasscloth wallcovering, pillowry in assorted hues, a bit of chinoiseries and exotic greenery.

Fragrant fires

If your nose rules your selection of firewoods, than obtain apple, cherry beech, hickory or pecan logs. Their smoke usually resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. Be prepared to pay more than for the standard woods.

IF THE LONG hard winter allowed you time to catch up on a lot of needlework, you are probably ready for the expert stretching and framing of Grand Frame, now located on Dryden near Kensington, in Arlington Heights. This needlepoint, framed in natural oak, is one example of the many ways to display your handiwork. Another speciality of the shop is framing latch hooked rugs on stretchers.

Use self-cleaning

According to the National Home Improvement Council, self-clean ovens consume less energy than conventional ranges.

Citing recent studies, the Council concluded, that improved insulation necessary for the self-cleaning ovens to contain the heat during the cleaning cycle, actually reduces the energy requirements during normal baking and roasting. A self-cleaning oven costs no more to operate, on the average, than a conventional oven which must be cleaned manually.

IF THE SHOE FITS . . . The beanbag acts like a chair and is as comfortable as an old shoe. That's Decorion's 'Old Shoe.' Whether all alone, paired off or grouped in threes for a sofa, they're perfect for lounge-about, roust-about family rooms, dens or children's bedrooms. You can put your feet up on the ottomans while you watch TV or give a flip of the wrist, and they become tables. The laced sides hold rigid for sitting upright, and expand when you lean back to relax. They're covered in a harvest colored sturdy vinyl that will stand up for the most active family.

Study cabinets inside and out before buying

With cabinetry you have to observe what's inside as well as the outside. Here are some guidelines for selecting kitchen and bath cabinetry.

- Style, of course, comes first. Do you want classic or contemporary, sculptured Mediterranean or clean-lined American? You have to like what you're going to live with for the next several years.
- Woodgrain and stain — no two trees are alike in grain and texture, and variations in color and grain are natural characteristics of all cabinet woods.

MANUFACTURERS of quality cabinetry strive to obtain as uniform a tone as possible without disturbing the unique beauty and charm of the woodgrain. They hand-wipe their stains to accent the grain.

Construction is important. Check such details as twin-track drawer suspension, self-closing hinges, adjustable shelves to make your kitchen a help, not a hassle.

Hardware should be not only handsome in itself; it should be coordinated with style and stain color.

CHOICE OF such options as roll-out shelves, lazy susans and swing-out canned goods units give you freedom and flexibility, while a wide selection of cabinet sizes makes it possible to satisfy all manner of storage needs.

Ease of installation is a must. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, make sure the cabinetry you select comes with instructions that are easy for a non-professional to follow.

Check price. Make sure it's commensurate with the quality of the cabinets. While some producers short-cut, others, offer make-to-order quality at stock price.

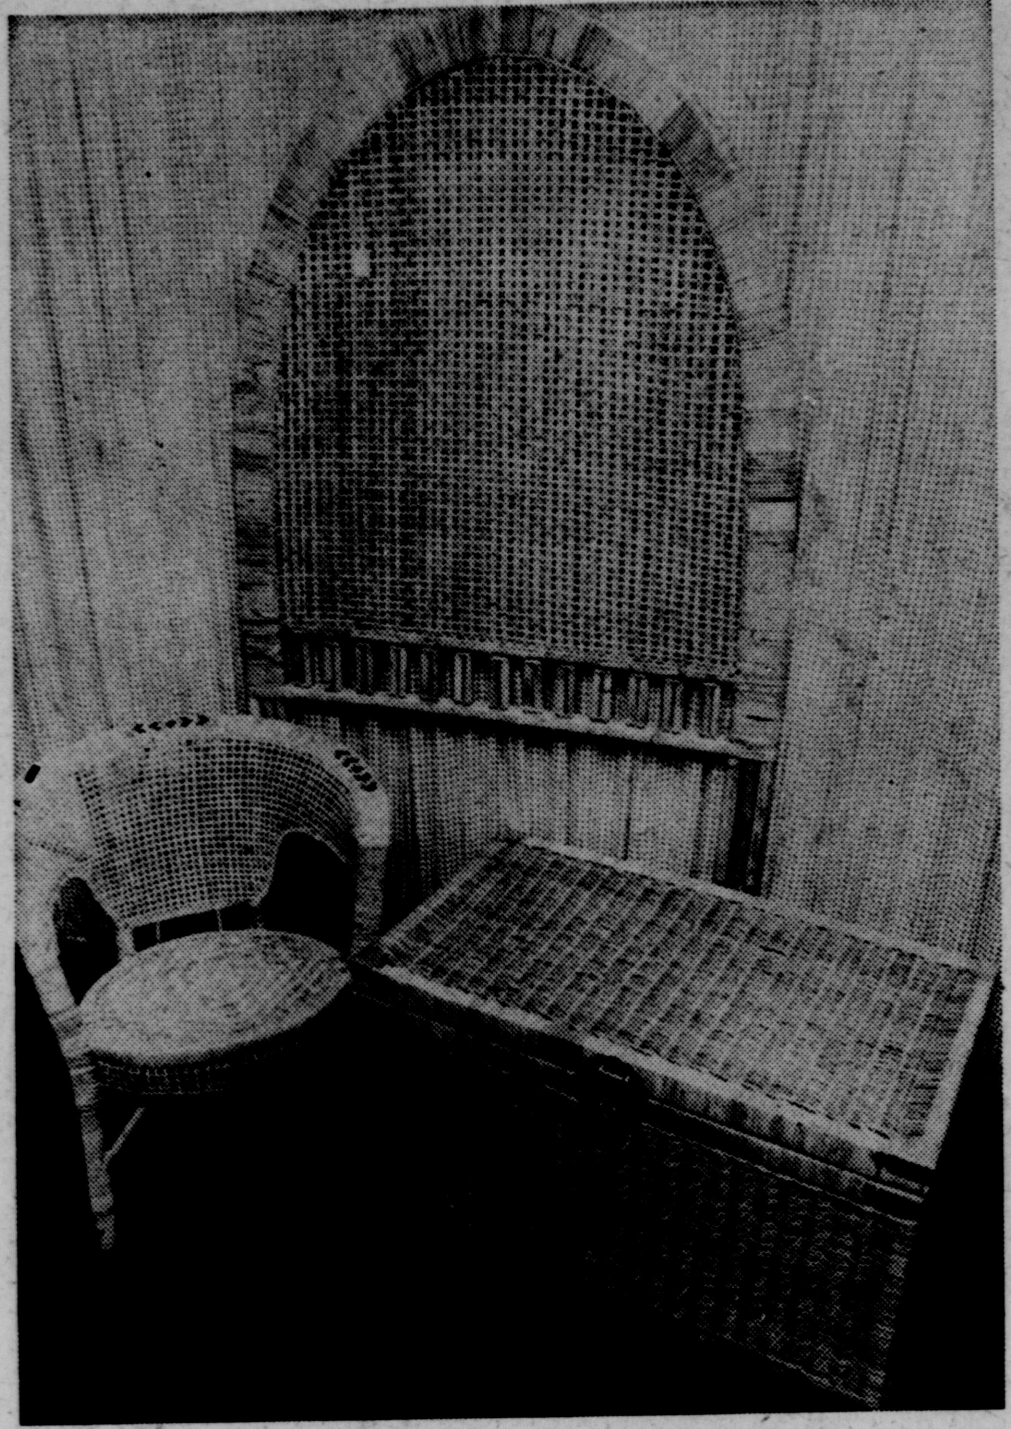
LET YOUR CREATIVITY be your guide. Everything you need for finishing furniture can be obtained at the Furniture Hutch in Mount Prospect. The chest of drawers, desk, dresser, chair, lamps and frame shown are just a sampling of the possibilities for treating the wide variety of furnishings available. And the price is right!



BEWICKERED in the Countryside Court, Mount Prospect, carries all the makings for comfortable and natural living ensembles. The "rattan peel" collection includes this tub chair, single headboard and 36 x 20 x 20 chest trimmed in brass.

Safety begins at home

Safety should begin at home, judging from a National Safety Council statistic that one-third of the persons injured each year in the U.S. are either in the home or on the home premises.

With greater precautionary measures, this figure could be reduced — especially in particular areas of the home like the kitchen, where accident risk is high.

Makers of smoke detectors and fire extinguishers designed to keep every room in the home safe from the threat of fire have a particular concern for kitchen safety.

BECAUSE OVER 65 per cent of home fires start in the kitchen, special care should be taken in this room where there is a concentration of electrical appliances.

To keep the room that is usually the "hub of activity" safe from fire and other hazards, here these DOs and DONT's.

- DON'T overloakd sockets by plugging too many power-hungry appliances into one outlet. Remember to install outlets high enough above the counter so that water can't get into them.
- DO hang a knife rack in a convenient spot out of children's reach to avoid injury to curious little hands.
- DO INSTALL a fire extinguisher on a wall next to the stove for easy reach. Never install one over the stove, where a surface fire could prevent you from reaching the safety unit.
- DO keep floor space clean and free from hazardous toys or other objects that might "trip you up."
- DON'T use an electric mixer or another small appliances next to a kitchen sink filled with water, where it might slip in and you would be apt to reach for it.
- DO check plugs and cords often for signs of wear.
- DO HAVE a towel rack placed where it should be — by the sink — for easy access to wipe up dripping slippery puddles on the floor.
- DON'T toss flammable hot pads carelessly over an electric range where they might start a fire on a burner that has been turned off but is still hot. Place a hook to hang hot pads close to the range so one can be grabbed quickly if necessary.
- DO keep a small first-aid kit in a drawer in the kitchen for easy reach.
- DON'T wait until after accidents happen to tell children the rules on kitchen safety.

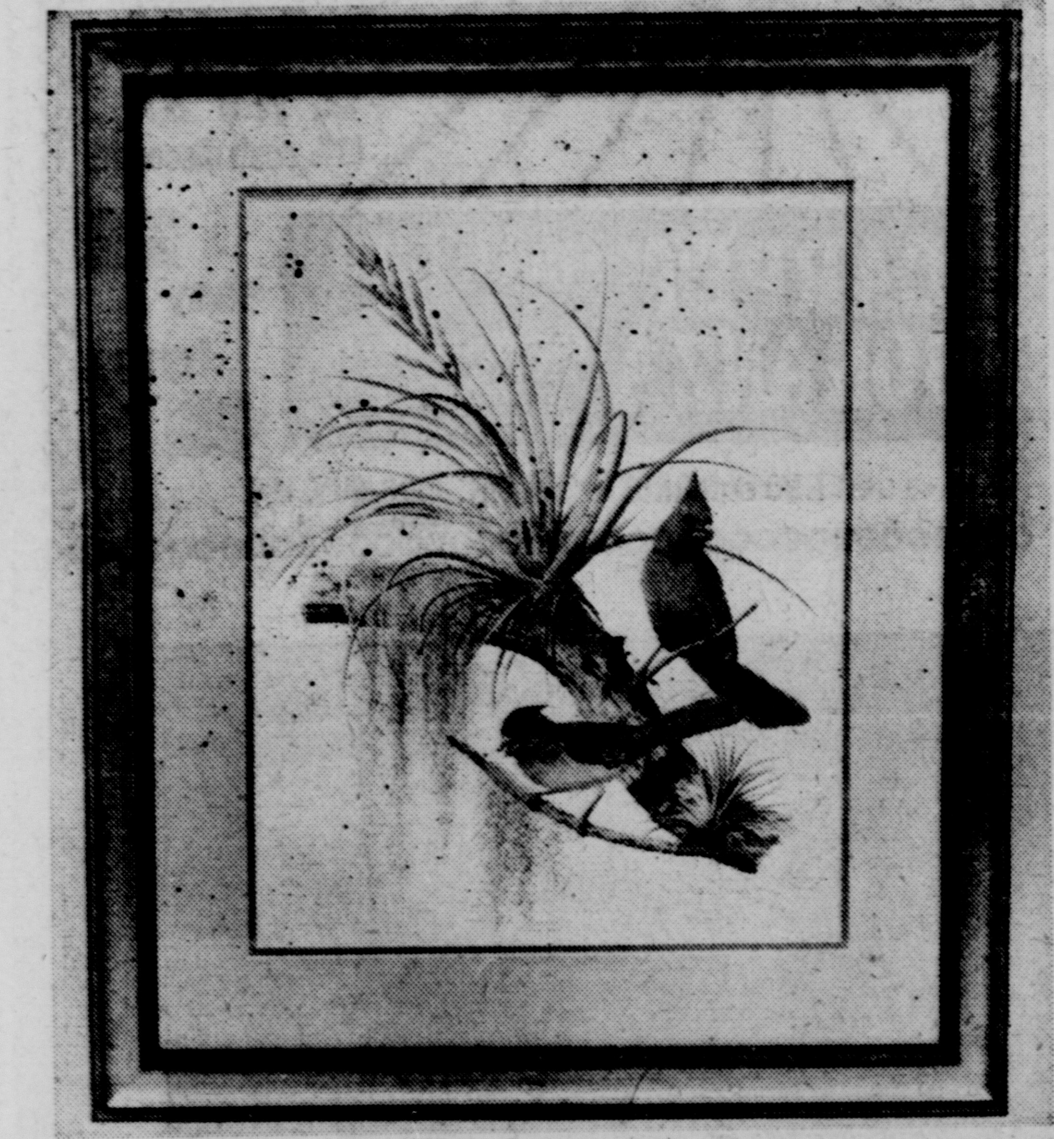
IN JUST MINUTES — and without tools — you can turn the Super 12 Gazebo into an elegant screen enclosure for bug-free dining and entertaining. Screen curtains are made of nylon with a zippered door. Kick panels are of triple laminated vinyl in colors to match your gazebo and all trimmed with white. Screens quickly and easily attach to gazebo frame at the top and are staked to the ground at the bottom. Everything for easy lawn installation is available at the Garden House in Palatine.



BRIGHT AND CHIPPER on a background of Spanish moss, Arthur Singer, one of America's most published wildlife artists, captured the Cardinal for Frame House Gallery. Singer is one of the few wildlife artists ever elected a fellow in the American Ornithological Union. The signed and numbered print is $40 at House of Frames, Surrey Ridge shopping center, Arlington Heights. The beautiful frame and mat is the work of House of Frames.

Karastan PRICE

TREMENDOUS by Karastan
Only $ 9.50 sq.yd.

Everything's "tremendous" about this exciting carpet from famous Karastan. It's a rich nylon plush with the important Saxony finish so that each lovely tuft is defined in the luxuriously dense texture. It comes in 22 typically luscious Karastan colors. Easy to care for, and with the built-in Karastan quality, you know it will last and last. Yet the price is remarkably only $9.50

No wonder it's called tremendous.

COUNTRY COMES ALIVE in Trend Line's new Cypress Lodge collection, a new approach to colonial styling emphasizing a soft, honey-toned cypress on side panels. Country details include an interesting combination of balls, heavy turned knobs, scallops and turnings, reminiscent of the Boston Rocker. There's more cypress trim above the skirt, flared wing and scalloped back. The semi-attached sweetheart-shaped back comes complete with buttons, kick pleats, and upholstered arm rest and wing. 'It's all done in a handsome nylon floral fabric in rust colorations which blend so beautifully with the wood tones. Convenient drop leaf cocktail table in the same appealing finish is from Peters-Revington's Sturbridge Square Collection.

Recycled wood for rustic look

Used wood, or wood that has a weathered look or a pitted, wormy surface, is popular for rustic effects in paneling a room or building furniture. Often, the wood is mechanically processed to give it a used or "distressed" appearance. This processed wood can be expensive.

Why not find "authentic" used wood if you are interested in a rustic effect for your home! The most economical way of buying used wood is from a person who wants to get rid of an old barn or outbuilding on his property. The owner, usually a farmer, will probably be willing to sell the wood from an old shed or barn at a reasonable price, providing you tear the building apart and haul the wood away yourself.

Inspect the building and determine if there is enough usable wood to make it worth your time and effort.

Old railroad ties are popular for adding rustic accents to a house or garden. The rairoad ties can be used for fences, steps, walkways, patios and garden borders. Check with a railroad yard for used ties that have been removed from railroad tracks and replaced with new ones. The used ties are often sold to lumber yards which sell them to the public, but the railroad yard might be willing to do business directly with you.

Utility and telephone companies may have old power poles that can be used in the same way as railroad ties. Check with local utility companies regarding the purchase of these poles.

Authentic "used" wood can have an interesting history to it, which adds to the rustic atmosphere of your home.

BRINGING IT ALL together is "Swiss Movement," from Karastan's new Helvetian Flair collection of contemporary area rugs. The precise, small-scale geometric design was styled for modern living and compliments the heavy-pillowed sectional seating from Directional and the hardwood floors. The rug is densely woven into a cut-pile surface of acrylic yarns, and skein-dyed in rich colorations. The rugs are available in three sizes at Pedian Rug in Arlington Heights. The 6x9 size is $250.

BRING THE ROLLING hillsides of country France to your sitting room with this Showcase by Plunkett Furniture, 955 E. Rand Rd. in Arlington Heights. The resultant charm and robust styling of this collection, manufactured by Heritage, inspired its name — Brittany. The shelved cabinets are separate mix-and-match units.

Enliven drab walls

An interesting arrangement of framed pictures can add new life to a drab wall. A functional hallway, stairway or non-functional alcove can be converted to a lovely display area for framed pieces that say something about your family, hobbies or travel experiences.

Postcards, snapshots, news clippings, posters, cartoons, marriage and birth certificates make delightful groupings. An appropriate frame and careful matting and mounting will lend a professional look to almost any type of hanging.

For a very symetrical, unified look, choose similar frames and mats in different sizes. Work toward an eclectic look, which, with the help of an artistic eye, will produce a harmonious arrangement.

You can theme your walls. Silly photos of the family, formal portraits of your ancestors, faces from the past you would like to have known, snapshots of yourself from birth to present, cities you have visited, would offer unique arrangements.

To balance the grouping, furnish the area into somewhat of a cozy little nook. An antique chair flanked by an old-fashioned table and lamp, for example, would make the perfect complement for your ancestors' formal portraits.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Do-it-yourself with redwood

Design garden workshop in gazebo

Do-it-yourselfers will be digging into more home gardening projects this spring than ever before. For green thumbing or outdoor living in general, a redwood garden shelter can make a graceful and practical multi-purpose outdoor room in your backyard.

This year you can design and build your own shelter with garden grades of redwood for much less than you think. These knot and sapwood-containing grades — Construction Heart, Construction Common, and Merchantable — have the weatherability and stability of more expensive clear grades, with a rustic texture ideal for a garden shelter.

You can design a redwood garden shelter to do whatever you want it to. It can be a practical potting and planting center as well as an outdoor party room or secluded retreat.

You can build shelves, cabinets and cupboards for holding lawn chairs, bench cushions and garden party knick-knacks. These spaces can also store long-handled garden tools, power tools, a lawnmower, garbage cans and hoses. A serving counter for summer buffets can convert to a convenient gardening work surface.

As extra storage space or a poolside service room, a shelter can frame a view or screen out too-close neighbors, show off favorite plants, or give a garden a new focus. Some garden lay-outs suggest other redwood structures, for example, a trellis or colonnade that can be used as a shaded walkway or entry.

Depending on your skill and needs, you can build a redwood garden shelter with simple post and beam construction, or design a more complicated structure. You should also think about where to put your shelter. Do you want to use it to catch or escape from the sun — and wind — or let in some sunlight for potted plants?

Different roof materials can control light and blend uniquely with your garden. Shingles, shakes, reed fenc-bamboo, window screening, lath, louvers, canvas, glass or plastic can be simply nailed on. Perhaps you want removable roof members attached to a framework fastened to the rafters in sections, or eggcrate blocking covered with canvas or matting.

Where do you want water outlets, or electrical outlets for lanterns and power tools? Cabinets can be designed especially for long-handled tools, or with shelves for small tools. You can plan to store your lawn-mower in a ground-level cupboard that lets you roll it straight in.

Your gardening counter can be high enough to fit garbage cans underneath. A sliding door on children's wagon wheels to enclose your workshop can be locked.

Decay and insect resistant Construction Heart grade redwood is recommended for posts, retaining walls, planters, steps, greenhouse framing and shelves subject to periodic moisture, on, in or within six inches of the ground.

Less known but most economical for decking, fence boards, trellises and benches above ground are Construction Common and Merchantable grades. These contain knots (as does Construction Heart) and cream-colored flashes of sapwood that blend naturally with a garden, but should not be used in actual ground contact.

For cabinet doors requiring close fit, you can use Clear (knotless) grades, available Certified Kiln Dried.

In building a redwood garden shelter, you'll find that aluminum alloy nails and non-corrosive fastenings far outlast plain iron, steel, or cement-coated nails in outdoor use. Nails galvanized by other than the hot-dip process deteriorate, leaving black marks on the wood, and lose holding power. Top quality hardwood may cost extra but its performance is worth it.

Redwood's pink to cinnamon brown colors blend and weather without finishes to a bleached gray. However, redwood also holds finishes and paint better than most woods, eliminating many maintenance problems.

Redwood has low density, high dimensional stability and high resistance to checking. Available in smooth-planed or rough re-sawn textures, its long straght grain and long board lengths make it easy to work with and it contains no pitch.

If you want your shelter to match the color of your house, you can add lightly pigmented stains that preserve the grain and texture. Bleaching oil provides an instant driftwood gray effect.

If a natural redwood color tone is your preference, an easy-to-apply clear water repellent solution will protect from dirt and stabilize redwood color to a buckskin tan. Recommended for application to lumber before use, it can be followed with a second coat after construction, with reapplication very two to three years. Varnishes or film finishes that can't stand weathering outdoors are not recommended for garden shelters or any outdoor uses of redwood.

The California Redwood Association offers a color booklet of design ideas called "Redwood Garden Shelters," and a data sheet on "Building a Redwood Garden Shelter." Send 50 cents for both to the CRA at 617 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Calif., 94111.

How to buy materials

Once you decide to build a redwood garden shelter, pay a visit to your local lumber dealer for help in deciding what grades and sizes of redwood you'll need, and perhaps some construction tips. Ask for economical garden grades of redwood, and keep in mind that heartwood grades must be used for any application in or on the ground.

Check the thicknesses, widths and lengths of your lumber. Widths and thicknesses are slightly less than nominal sizes because lumber is reduced when planed in the mill. Lengths are often longer than nominal.

Lumber purchases for a good-sized project need careful planning, and as with any large home project, allow two to three weeks from order to delivery time.

Remember that top quality nails and hardware may cost extra, but they far outlast cheaper materials. Your dealer can also give advice on brands and applications of finishes for your shelter, such as water repellents, stains, or paint.

CONVERT your children's play area into a place to dream with a menagerie of characters from fantasy land. The delightful "Disney" personalities, offered at Paulson's in Arlington Heights, are non-toxic, washable and removable. The jumbo size of the figures add cheery, life-like attributes to the atmosphere.

Ease burden of cleaning

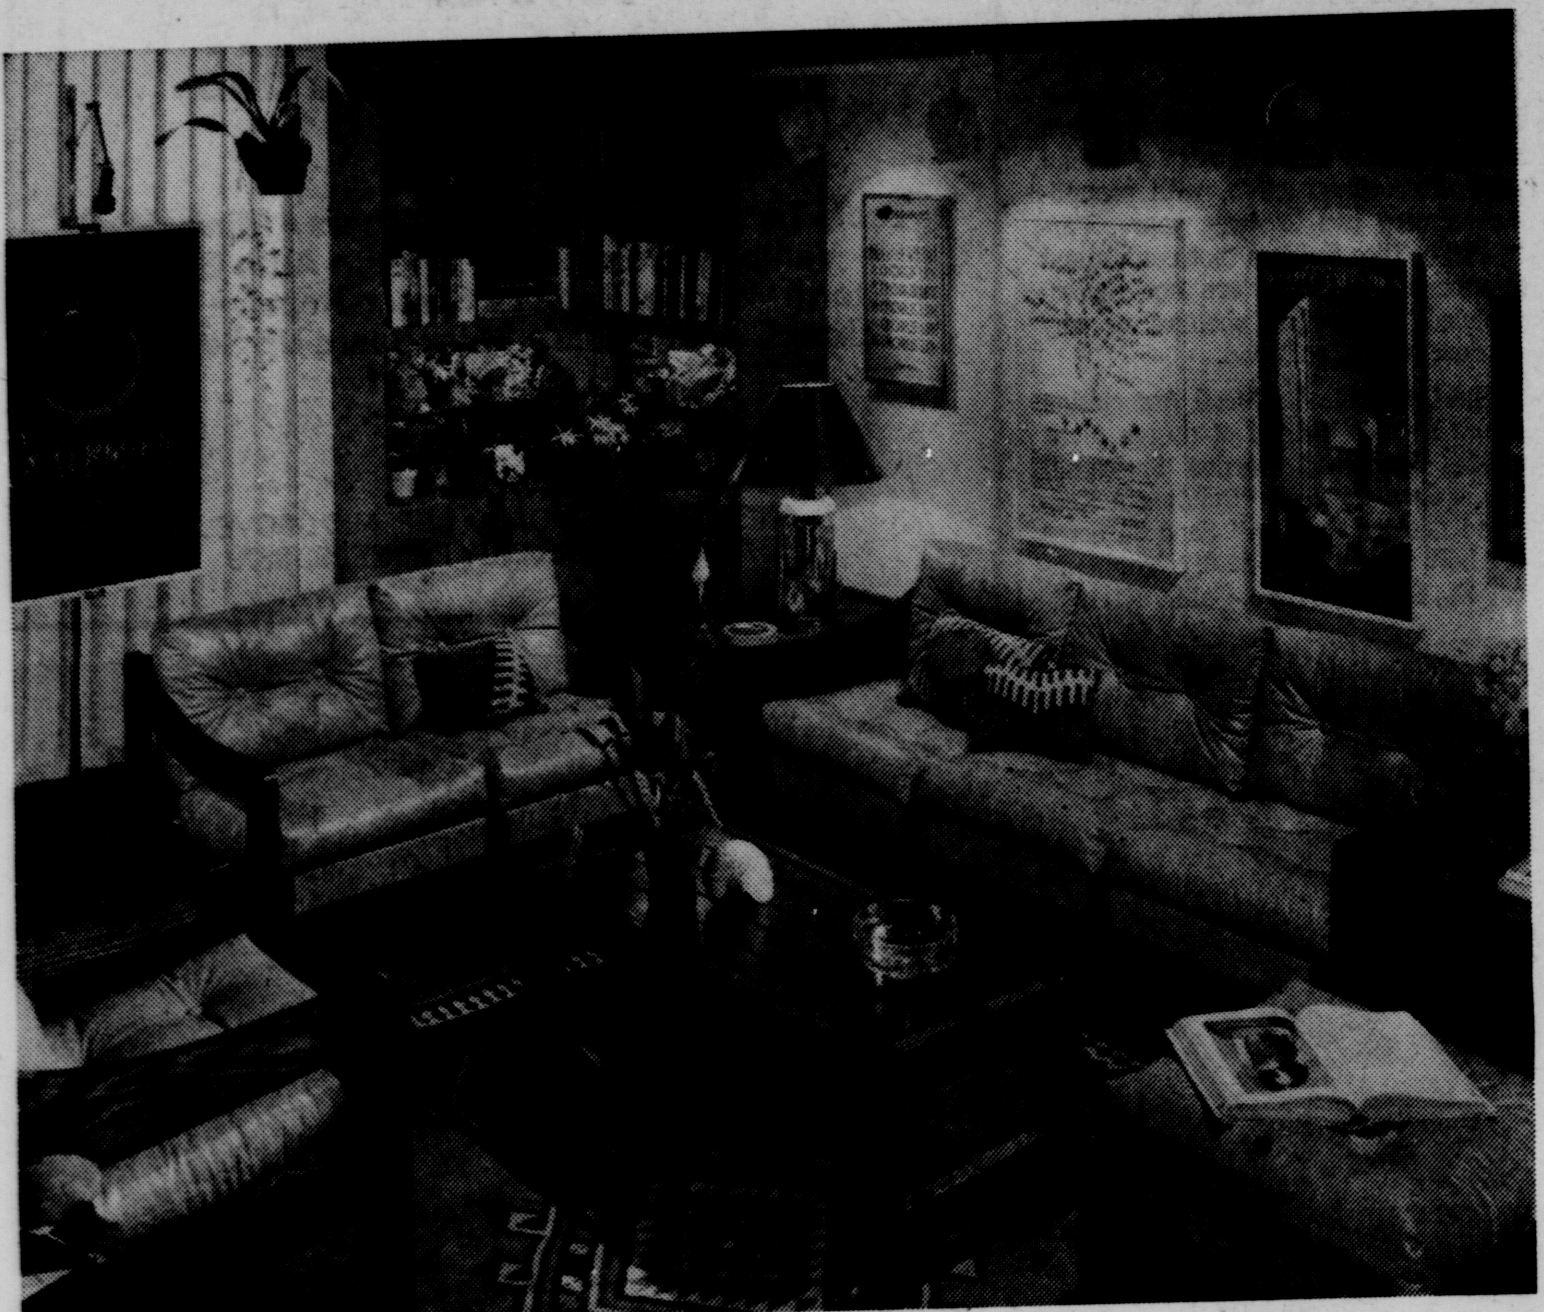
Maintaining living and working areas is a time-consuming, tedious task. Engineers and technologists constantly work to improve appliances that help ease the burden of large-scale cleaning jobs.

The new Sanitaire wide track commercial upright vacuum cleaner by Eureka is a new work-saving development. Cleaning a 16-inch-wide track with each sweep, the appliance features top-filling cloth bag that converts to use optional disposable dust bags, 6-inch low-profile design to clean under furniture, 6-position "Dial-a-Nap" that adjusts to carpet heights for maximum cleaning and an all metal 16-inch "vibra-groomer" beater bar brush roll.

The Sanitaire wide track weight, 21 pounds and has a 50-foot cord that allows for a 100-foot cleaning range. It is available for industrial users at Mobile Vacuum Service, 127 W. Wing in Arlington Heights.

'X' marks the spot

Before you drive nails into your walls, mark the spot with an "X" made of cellophane tape. This handy trick will keep the plaster from cracking when you hammer in the nail.



MORE TASTE THAN MONEY is in this room designed for an enthusiast. Theatre posters, dramatic lighting and orchids everywhere were used as inventive accessories. Harvest gold vinyl upholstery with richly grained dark pine frames and matching tables create a comfortable and inviting room ambiance in put-together furniture. With simple instructions and its own special wrench, a room full of furniture can be assembled in time for a night on the town.

CONVERT your children's play area into a place to dream with a menagerie of characters from fantasy land. The delightful "Disney" personalities, offered at Paulson's in Arlington Heights, are non-toxic, washable and removable. The jumbo size of the figures add cheery, life-like attributes to the atmosphere.

Ease burden of cleaning

Maintaining living and working areas is a time-consuming, tedious task. Engineers and technologists constantly work to improve appliances that help ease the burden of large-scale cleaning jobs.

The new Sanitaire wide track commercial upright vacuum cleaner by Eureka is a new work-saving development. Cleaning a 16-inch-wide track with each sweep, the appliance features top-filling cloth bag that converts to use optional disposable dust bags, 6-inch low-profile design to clean under furniture, 6-position "Dial-a-Nap" that adjusts to carpet heights for maximum cleaning and an all metal 16-inch "vibra-groomer" beater bar brush roll.

The Sanitaire wide track weight, 21 pounds and has a 50-foot cord that allows for a 100-foot cleaning range. It is available for industrial users at Mobile Vacuum Service, 127 W. Wing in Arlington Heights.

'X' marks the spot

Before you drive nails into your walls, mark the spot with an "X" made of cellophane tape. This handy trick will keep the plaster from cracking when you hammer in the nail.

MORE TASTE THAN MONEY is in this room designed for an enthusiast. Theatre posters, dramatic lighting and orchids everywhere were used as inventive accessories. Harvest gold vinyl upholstery with richly grained dark pine frames and matching tables create a comfortable and inviting room ambiance in put-together furniture. With simple instructions and its own special wrench, a room full of furniture can be assembled in time for a night on the town.

ADVENTUROUS, creative decorating around Colonial themes and contemporary materials required white painted walls with red for wainscot, trim and hutch. Stenciling (as fashionable now as in the 17th Century) doesn't stop at the walls, but goes right onto curtains and chair cushions, too. Pewter dishes, tinware candelabra and antique ladder-back chairs are in good company with super-modern, super-cushioned sheet vinyl floor covering. A Parsons table covered in checked fabric and treated with a protective polyurethane finish completes the dainty scheme. Ideas, materials and know-how from Webber Paint, downtown Arlington Heights.

Lower cooling costs this summer

In most homes built in Illinois before 1973, when heating and cooling costs were lower, little attention was given to proper ceiling insulation. According to Sam Romano of Seidel-Romano Construction in Arlington Heights, today's energy costs make it increasingly practical for homeowners to invest in additional insulation.

To find an exact answer as to the extent of insulation needed in a particular home would require complicated testing by an expert to determine the product and the average depth and density. The ability of insulation to resist heat (R-value) depends on these factors.

Romano suggested a rule of thumb that any homeowner can use to estimate the additional insulation needed to reach the recommended R-value.

Based on Home Builders Association's analysis of the cost and benefits of ceiling insulation in new homes, Romano concluded that homes now being constructed and existing homes be brought up to a minimum insulation level of R-22.

For years people have talked about ceiling insulation in inches. Romano claimed this has been a mistake because inches do not indicate the insulation value of any product. You must know the density of the material to arrive at a valid R-value. Products like fiberglass, rockwool, and cellulose vary widely in these requirements.

Manufacturers' recommendations to obtain specific R-values are found printed on the bag or on the batt or roll the material is purchased in, or are available from the insulation contractor or retailer.

SLEEK CHROME pedestals are a gleaming contrast to upholstery of rich buckskin brown fabric-supported vinyl in a contemporary dining set from the B. Brody Seating Company, Chicago. A space-saving design for the smaller home or apartment, table is a 41-inch octagon that opens to 41 by 59 inches. Top is surfaced with Locust pattern melamine laminate with resilient bumper guard edging. Swivel chairs are styled for casual comfort, with unusual cord-tufted back and seat cushions.

HALF The Cost Of New!

Dream Kitchens At Half The Cost!

50% OFF!

A New Kitchen For HALF The Cost!

Insulation means conservation

If your house has a crawlspace rather than a basement, you can make your home more comfortable and energy-saving by insulating the perimeter of the crawlspace. This approach is often quicker, easier, and less expensive than actually insulating the joists beneath the floors of your home, according to the enerby experts.

The crawlspace should be an unvented one, or you should close off and insulate any existing vents in the winter.

BEFORE YOU BEGIN, measure the distance between the floor joists (usually 15 inches or 23 inches) so that you can purchase six-inch-thick batts or rolls of unfaced fiber glass insulation to fit between them.

You'll also need a hammer and nails, heavy duty linoleum shears, a linoleum knife or serrated bread knife to cut the insulation, temporary lighting with waterproof wiring and connections, a portable fan for ventilation, a tape measure and duct tape two inches wide.

Buy ½" x 1½" strips of wood to use in securing the insulation to the sill along the walls and enough nailing strips to extend the entire length of each of the walls to be insulated.

You'll need polyethylene sheeting (6 mil thick) to completely cover the earthen floor beneath the house and to extend up the walls several inches all around.

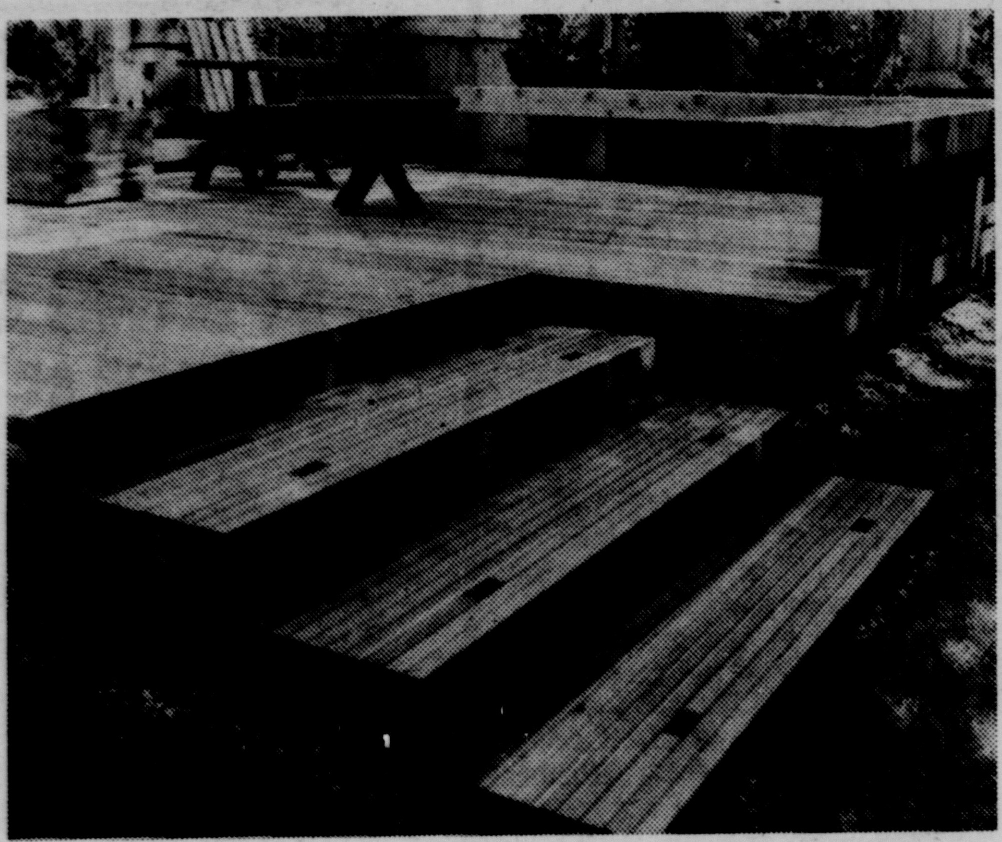
WHERE JOISTS are perpendicular to the side wall, begin by cutting short pieces of insulation to fit snugly against the header. Then install longer strips of insulation, nailing it to the sill using the strips of wood.

You can also solve the problem by nailing the insulation directly to the header using the wood strips. This procedure works particularly well when joists run parallel to the wall you're insulating.

ONCE YOU'VE insulated all the wall areas, install the pyethylene vapor barrier underneath the insulation on the earth floor, extending up the walls about two inches. Tape it to the walls, overlapping the edges of the sheeting six inches, using the duct tape. Lay the vapor barrier while you're installing the insulation.

As a final step, place 2 x 4 lumber, or rocks, on top of the insulation batts along the wall to help keep the insulation in place snugly against the wall.

For more information on insulating your home from the attic on down to the ground, write to the CertainTeed Home Institure, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa., 19482. They have a number of free booklets available.



BUTCHER BLOCK benches and cleated laminated stairs customize small contemporary redwood deck, designed from new Redwood Design-a-Deck plans kit and built with economical, low-maintenance garden grades of redwood. Special Design-a-Deck planning aids and complete construction manual show how to attack a variety of deck designs to any house wall, fence or garage, or build free-standing. Redwood Design-a-Deck kit is available for $4.00 from the California Redwood Association, Dept. DD, 1050 Battery Street, San Francisco, CA, 94111.

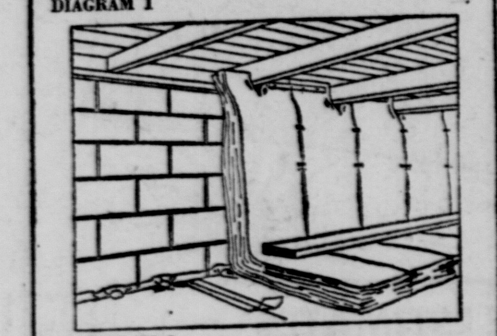

DIAGRAM 2

INSULATING crawlspace walls is easy when you know the procedure. On walls perpendicular to joists as in Diagram 1, insert a piece of fiber glass insulation between the sub-floor and the sill, then attach a longer batt of insulation directly to the sill. Or, attach the long insulation as shown in Diagram 2. In both instances, make sure that the insulation extends at least two feet into the crawlspace. Install a 6-mil thick polyethylene vapor barrier under the insulation over the entire floor area and two inches up the wall, securing it with moisture-proof duct tape.

What Is Thatch?
Thatch is a dense mat, an accumulation of roots, stems and grass clippings between the soil and the visible green vegetation. Often several inches thick, thatch prevents the penetration of fertilizers and water. It creates a breeding ground for fungus and for insects that destroy lawns. Every time you mow, more thatch builds up.

What Is Thatch?
Thatch is a dense mat, an accumulation of roots, stems and grass clippings between the soil and the visible green vegetation. Often several inches thick, thatch prevents the penetration of fertilizers and water. It creates a breeding ground for fungus and for insects that destroy lawns. Every time you mow, more thatch builds up.

New paint restores aluminum siding

A specially-formulated latex paint to restore the factory-painted look of aluminum siding, when the original finish becomes stained, faded or weathered, has been introduced.

Bob Maloney of Maloney's Wallcoverings & Paints in Arlington Heights said the new product, marketed under the Fuller-O'Brien label, removes any insecurity or uncertainty homeowners may experience in contemplating repainting aluminum siding. With it, there is no longer need for concern over choosing the right paint — latex, oil, enamel, gloss, flat or whether or not to prime.

The paint for aluminum siding can be applied with a roller, nylon brush, spray or paint pad. The new type of paint pad is well-suited for use with this paint, since it creates a more uniform finish than brushing, is faster and saves paint.

THE NEW PAINT can be used on wood trim, providing the surface is clean and the previous coating sanded dull.

Maloney pointed out that the product provides the low angular sheen associated with most factory finishes and has excellent resistance to weathering. the self-priming, product has good resiliency and the ability to withstand changing climatic conditions.

The Fuller-O'Brien research and development department feels that factory-finished aluminum siding does not necessarily give "lifetime" service.

Chemists note that the original paint film on aluminum siding may required repainting as often as on wood siding, depending upon the general environment, exposure to untraviolet rays, close proximity to highly trafficked roads and frequent washing to remove stubborn stains.

A HOMEOWNER usually can detect rather easily when aluminum siding should be repainted. One of the first signs is when dirt becomes increasingly difficult to wash off, especially in the protected area immediately under eaves. The use of strong cleaning solutions and scouring cleansers to remove stubborn accumulations will frequently detract from the appearance or color of the finish.

When weathering erodes the coating, white finishes may begin to look "bluish" or "Grayish." This is the metal beginning to show. Fading and chalking show up on colored siding faster than on white.

Many homeowners may have inherited aluminum siding with the purchase of their home and may prefer a color change even though the siding is relatively new.

To repaint aluminum, Maloney stressed that the surface must be clean. It can be washed with a detergent and a scrub brush. Stubborn accumulations can be dislodged with scouring powder. As soon as the dirt is dislodged, the siding should be rinsed thoroughly, preferably using a garden hose for pressure.

Time to find extent of roof repairs

Learning how to detect the early trouble signs of a "dying" roof can help homeowners save money and aggravation.

A damaged roof that's left uncared for can sometimes cause serious problems beneath the roof surface and also in the attic. This often means costly repairs and related inconvenience.

To help guard against roof related trouble, a simple checklist will determine if the roof needs repair or replacement.

- CRACKED OR CURLED shingles may be an instant sign that a new roof is needed. Never climb up on the roof. Inspect it from the ground or have a professional roofer give an on-the-roof inspection.
- Check for a heavy loss of the roof's protective mineral granules. Look for evidence in gutters and downspouts.
- If a leaking roof is suspected, inspect the attic the next time it rains. Minor leaks can usually be repaired, but a leak can mean the roof must be replaced.
- If a roof is relatively new and has suffered limited damage from a storm or falling objects, chances are it can be repaired easily. For example, individual shingles that are damaged or have blown away can be replaced. Loose shingles can be renailed, and leaks around flashing points can be patched.

WHEN THE ROOF is beyond repair, consult the Better Business Bureau for a reputable roofing contractor who can install new shingles efficiently and for a fair price.

The serious do-it-yourselfer can install a new roof himself, providing he has proper "know-how" and follows the shingle manufacturer's method for application.

Installing a new roof or repairing an old one can be a dangerous job. Follow simple precautions to make roofing safer.

- Never start roofing in cold (below 40 degrees F) or wet weather.
- Always secure the ladder firmly top and botton.
- NEVER WALK on a wet roof. Early morning dew can be slippery.
- Keep the roof surface clean.
- Wear heavy rubber-soled shoes for good footing.
- Don't touch power lines or conduits and never let a metal ladder contact one.
- LIFT ONLY easy loads.
- If the roof slopes more than a 6" rise for every 12" horizontal, use roof brackets and boards. Leave the bottom board at the eaves (edge) until that section of the roof is complete.

Protect others in the area. To avoid danger, shingles and tools should be placed where they will not slide off the roof. When roofing is being installed, others should be kept away from the area below.

Felt on bases leaves no traces

Protect your table tops against scratches from lamps or other objects by putting felt on each base. Use two-sided tape to affix felt to the base.

Keep cookware in condition

Grandmother had the right idea when she hung her pots and pans within easy reach of the stove.

Whether your kitchen is expansive or compact, you can easily adapt the "old-fashioned" look to suit your needs.

If you kitchen is room, install a hanging pot rack from the ceiling. If not, nail a peg board with "S" hooks to a wall near the stove.

SHOULD YOU CHOOSE to just cook with your pots and pans or to display them, too, remember to give them the care they deserve to keep them working well and looking good.

Try these basic rules to keep your cookware in condition:

- Do not run cold water into a hot pan. Cold water can warp a metal pan and crack glass and earthenware.
- TO REMOVE greasy residue, don't use harsh abrasives and metal scrapers which can scratch some pans.
- If a pot must be scouted, use a plastic pad — metal scouring pads can scratch some pots.
- Do not let gas flames lick up the sides of pots and pans — it could cause heat stains.
- DO NOT USE metal or enameled cookware to store food as they may be damaged by salt and acids.
- Remove stuck-on food by pouring cold water into the pan and letting stand until the food is soft.
- Dry cast iron cookware immediately after washing to lessen the chance of its rusting.

ROOM AT THE TOP . . . is for a successful conversion of cobwebbed storage space into a comfortable attic hideaway. A multitude of textures, simple furnishings and natural color scheme lends itself to an extra bit of decorative license — splashes of color in paintings, graphics, pillows and table accessories. Alternating white, soft brown and wheat strips of vinyl flooring is the perky alternative to badly scratched and discolored floor boards. A slightly ambitious do-it-yourself project of burlaping the new plasterboard walls provides a good neutral backdrop for favorite prints, paintings and old airplane propellor.

Home water purifier developed

Although city filtration plants strive to make water supplies safe and human consumption, recent tests revealed that there may be new potential health hazards to consider. Private supplies also are suspect.

Culligan International recently developed and marketed a console unit to provide high-quality drinking water of the quality purchased in bottles. Culligan spokesmen said the Aqua-Cleer Water Purifier System operates on the reverse osmosis principle — unlike softening, simple filtration, or any of the typical methods of treating water — to remove undesirable or potentially dangerous impurities from water. Sediment, asbestos particles, bacteria, amoebic cycts, algae, tastes, odors, brackish water mineral salts, nitrates, laxative sulfates, as well as unhealthful dissolved metals such as arsenic, barium, cadmium, lead, mercury and sodium, and organic contaminates like detergents, insecticides and pesticides are filtered out.

Depending on the model, the Aqua Cleer is equipped to offer ample quality water for a wide variety of everyday uses — cold, hot or room temperature — from a conventional spigot. The standard system provides up to 150 gallons a month and can be adapted to double this amount.

Besides processing water for pharmaceuticals, foods, cosmetics and electronic components, Culligan units are installed in kidney treatment centers and applied for other health care needs, officials reported.

Culligan engineering incorporates the process of fine filtration, reverse osmosis, membrane purification and activated carbon absorption.

Culligan Northwest installed the Aqua-Cleer consoles in many Northwest suburban industries to provide high-quality drinking water for employes. The console also fits in the average kitchen, and also is available in an under-sink model.

Is there an architect in the house?

Many a homeowner is reluctant to call on an architect for remodeling because an architect is believed to be unnecessary.

This is not always true and may turn out to be a penny-wise, pound-foolish omission, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

The homeowner who wishes his home to be truly well-designed would do well to consider using an architect for his remodeling project.

ROOM AT THE TOP . . . is for a successful conversion of cobwebbed storage space into a comfortable attic hideaway. A multitude of textures, simple furnishings and natural color scheme lends itself to an extra bit of decorative license — splashes of color in paintings, graphics, pillows and table accessories. Alternating white, soft brown and wheat strips of vinyl flooring is the perky alternative to badly scratched and discolored floor boards. A slightly ambitious do-it-yourself project of burlaping the new plasterboard walls provides a good neutral backdrop for favorite prints, paintings and old airplane propellor.

Home water purifier developed

Although city filtration plants strive to make water supplies safe and human consumption, recent tests revealed that there may be new potential health hazards to consider. Private supplies also are suspect.

Doubtful double backfires

West's double of South's one-spade opening bid was one of those doubtful doubles that lots of players make. We have seen worse ones, but seldom one that backfired so strongly against the doubler.

It took exactly two bids for South to arrive at six spades. West made his natural lead of the jack of hearts and South had time to study the dummy.

The slam was a good one in spite of the duplication in clubs. At the worst, South could discard one of his clubs on a high heart, lead a club from dummy and guess whether to play the jack or the king. Then South reviewed the bidding and saw that it was likely that West would hold both high clubs.

Then South worked out a squeeze end play against West. He trumped his queen and small diamond and ran out his trumps. South finally led his ace of diamonds, leaving himself with four cards — the seven of hearts and king-jack-three of clubs. Dummy held three hearts and two clubs in back of West and poor West had to throw the queen of clubs in order to hold on to the heart. South just discarded the low heart from dummy, led a club and claimed.

Ask Andy

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Annette Johnson, 9, of Charlotte, N.C., for her question:

WHAT ARE AMPHIBIANS?

Millions of years ago, the scientists tell us, occasional fish-like creatures breathed air with great difficulty and became the first eventually to walk on the land. As the ages passed, descendants breathed air more easily and traveled farther from water in which they had passed their infancy.

A class of animals is living that we call amphibians. They are bound to water by a need for keeping their eggs moist and for the nurture of their larval stage, but as soon as they reach adulthood they can hop or crawl away from the water to a new home on dry land.

Amphibia means double life and refers to the ability of the animals to live in water or on land at different times. During the water phase, gills like those of fish help them absorb oxygen from the water. Some amphibians retain their gills for life and never leave water permanently, but in most the gills are absorbed at the same time lungs begin to function.

We have three orders of amphibians living today: the Salientia, which includes frogs and toads and is the largest group; the Caudata, which includes the salamanders, and the Gymnophiona, legless, burrowing worm-like creatures that live only in the tropics and are not seen often because of their secret habits.

Most of these creatures burrow in soft earth and seldom come above ground except when a rainstorm fills their burrows. They are limbless and are extremely primitive in structure. They do not have pelvic girdles.

Salamanders also are secretive and like to hide. There are 225 different species and subspecies known at the present time, so they're not what you would call rare.

Largest group of amphibians are in the frog and toad family. Some 2,600 different species make up this very large family. They live just about any place on earth with the only exceptions being snow-capped mountain tops, waterless deserts and some of the islands in the Pacific Ocean.

Members of the toad and frog family are born in the water and spend the first phase of their lives under the wet stuff. Then as life advances for them, they come up for air and eventually become creatures of the land.

Amphibians do not make good pets since they do not do well in a restricted area. It is best to enjoy them as they run free.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Lisa Stickl, 12, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, for her question:

HOW IS VANILLA MADE?

That delicious vanilla flavor that just about everyone loves comes from a vine that is related to the orchid. The plant is widely grown in Madagascar and has been cultivated for years in Mexico.

Vanilla vines grow upward by means of air rootlets that twist around trees. They live for 10 years, producing pods five to 10 inches in length which resemble large string beans. Picked when yellow-green in color, they are allowed to dry and turn brown. The pods are then cut up, including the inside pulp which is an oily mass containing seeds. By a most complex process, the vanilla flavoring is extracted from the pulp.

Because production costs are high, a synthetic vanilla flavoring has been developed.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Doubtful double backfires

West's double of South's one-spade opening bid was one of those doubtful doubles that lots of players make. We have seen worse ones, but seldom one that backfired so strongly against the doubler.

It took exactly two bids for South to arrive at six spades. West made his natural lead of the jack of hearts and South had time to study the dummy.

The slam was a good one in spite of the duplication in clubs. At the worst, South could discard one of his clubs on a high heart, lead a club from dummy and guess whether to play the jack or the king. Then South reviewed the bidding and saw that it was likely that West would hold both high clubs.

Then South worked out a squeeze end play against West. He trumped his queen and small diamond and ran out his trumps. South finally led his ace of diamonds, leaving himself with four cards — the seven of hearts and king-jack-three of clubs. Dummy held three hearts and two clubs in back of West and poor West had to throw the queen of clubs in order to hold on to the heart. South just discarded the low heart from dummy, led a club and claimed.

Ask Andy

Amphibians enjoy living on land or sea

WHAT ARE AMPHIBIANS?

Millions of years ago, the scientists tell us, occasional fish-like creatures breathed air with great difficulty and became the first eventually to walk on the land. As the ages passed, descendants breathed air more easily and traveled farther from water in which they had passed their infancy.

A class of animals is living that we call amphibians. They are bound to water by a need for keeping their eggs moist and for the nurture of their larval stage, but as soon as they reach adulthood they can hop or crawl away from the water to a new home on dry land.

Amphibia means double life and refers to the ability of the animals to live in water or on land at different times. During the water phase, gills like those of fish help them absorb oxygen from the water. Some amphibians retain their gills for life and never leave water permanently, but in most the gills are absorbed at the same time lungs begin to function.

We have three orders of amphibians living today: the Salientia, which includes frogs and toads and is the largest group; the Caudata, which includes the salamanders, and the Gymnophiona, legless, burrowing worm-like creatures that live only in the tropics and are not seen often because of their secret habits.

Most of these creatures burrow in soft earth and seldom come above ground except when a rainstorm fills their burrows. They are limbless and are extremely primitive in structure. They do not have pelvic girdles.

Salamanders also are secretive and like to hide. There are 225 different species and subspecies known at the present time, so they're not what you would call rare.

Largest group of amphibians are in the frog and toad family. Some 2,600 different species make up this very large family. They live just about any place on earth with the only exceptions being snow-capped mountain tops, waterless deserts and some of the islands in the Pacific Ocean.

Members of the toad and frog family are born in the water and spend the first phase of their lives under the wet stuff. Then as life advances for them, they come up for air and eventually become creatures of the land.

Amphibians do not make good pets since they do not do well in a restricted area. It is best to enjoy them as they run free.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Lisa Stickl, 12, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, for her question:

HOW IS VANILLA MADE?

That delicious vanilla flavor that just about everyone loves comes from a vine that is related to the orchid. The plant is widely grown in Madagascar and has been cultivated for years in Mexico.

Vanilla vines grow upward by means of air rootlets that twist around trees. They live for 10 years, producing pods five to 10 inches in length which resemble large string beans. Picked when yellow-green in color, they are allowed to dry and turn brown. The pods are then cut up, including the inside pulp which is an oily mass containing seeds. By a most complex process, the vanilla flavoring is extracted from the pulp.

Because production costs are high, a synthetic vanilla flavoring has been developed.

Conifers 'ageless and ever green'

by TONY T. FULMER
of Klehm Nursery

Guest gardener

'Evergreen" is an award-winner and the conifers should be performing in your landscape where they will garner prizes for year 'round versatility.

Highly popular because of the variety of shapes and sizes available to fill a multitude of purposes, they are often used to the exclusion of deciduous plants that lose their leaves. The most interesting landscape plantings consist of a balance of evergreens and ciduous materials — the evergreens providing constant color and form as a complement for the seasonally changing "leafy" plants. Those of the deciduous variety bud, flower, fruit and develop their fall color before exposing their tracery of stems to winter snows.

Always favored as the backbone of the foundation planting is the Capitata Yew, a dense cone capable of growing to 12 feet. Tolerant of sun or shade, this beauty is easily trimmed to a very formal shape. Probably one of the most widely grown corner specimens, it will look even better when low ground cover-type evergreens or very low shrubs, such as Crimson Pygmy Barberry, are planted completely around the base to soften the "ground line." Like all yews, a well-drained location is a must.

A number of other concical evergreens are useful, too, but usually as lawn specimens to the side of the house for "framing" or in the back yard since they will dwarf a smaller home if used in the front foundation grouping. An excellent choice in this category, challenging the blue spruce in coloration, is the Concolor Fir. Growing to 40 feet at maturity this broad-based pyramid has longer, softer needles than the spruce and the color is a metallic blue-gray. The Con-color Fir has good heat and drought resistance and retains its lower branches to the ground even at maturity giving it a beautiful silhouette.

The blue spruce with its upright, conical form, is available in many varieties and grades available. Varieties listed in nursery catalogues as "seedling" green or blue Colorado Spruce are grown from seed and vary as to color intensity. The seedling varieties are excellent for windbreaks and the green spruce grows more rapidly than the blue.

When looking for a specimen spruce where the finest silver-blue color is desired the grafted 'Hoopsi' Blue is highly recommended. Grafted spruce are obtained by selecting parent trees with outstanding color and form and propagating them asexually by budding. The 'Hoopsi' Spruce are descended from one parent tree and are genetically identical. The result is uniformity — the trees will always be 100 per cent true to color. The labor and time involved in grafting and training these 'Hoopsi' Spruce makes them somewhat more costly but they are well worth it when you see the results in your yard.

Two unusual conifers are the Swiss Stone Pine, Pinus cembra, hardy, blue-green conifer of medium size, growing slowly to 25 feet and the Dwarf Scotch Pine Pinus sylvestris 'Watereri' prefering full sun and well-drained soil. The needles are more silvery-blue thanthe species Scotch Pine and the growth habit is nearly globular. Compact and very slow growing, at maturity it will be 8-10 feet tall as well as wide.

Becoming more popular in landscape schemes are sculptured evergreens — specimens that have been sheared into various geometric forms exposing the branching structure of the plants. This is a method of pruning and not a plant that has grown this way naturally. Annual pruning is required to retain this appearance. Plants that are widely available as "pompoms," "poodles" and topiaries are 'Canaerti', "Blue Haven' and Blue Pfitzer Junipers. These are specimen plants reflective of the ancient art of bonsai and are particularly effective in rock gardens, courtyards or in free-form islands highlighting a piece of statuary or in combination with rock.

Evergreens are useful as color accents, also. Two examples are the 'Gold Coast' Juniper and the Blue Pfitzer. The 'Gold Coast' is a flat-topped spreader with horizontal branching and bright gold spring and summer foliage. The Blue Pfitzer is a medium-sized spreader, more compact than the common Green Pfitzer with silver-blue needles.

In the landscape, masses of spreading plants are often called for to re peat horizontal lines in the house and the spreading yew is an excellent solution. One that is particularly good is the "Klehm's Spreader'. A very lacy textured yew growing to 5 feet, this variety deserves special mention because it is unusually resistant to windburn even in the severest winters. Many other plants are showing considerable browing this season due to a combination of dry soil, strong winter winds and subzero temperatures for prolonged periods.

One way to control tempoeratures and cut noise pollution is through the use of screens and windbreaks. Colorado Spruce is very effective for this purpose as is the Scotch Pine. Another plant that should be mentioned is the Austrian Pine, a long-needled, broad-based pyramid with dark green leaves. Compact, symmetrical and a rapid grower, if flourishes in a well-drained soil.

If screening is not needed but good formal hedging is, Hick's Yew is the perfect choice. Black-green needles on a perfectly columnar plant, Hick's Yew can grow as tall as six to eight feet and still be no more than three feet wide. Very little pruning is required to maintain a nice formal appearance.

On an even smaller scale are the low ground cover type evergreens.

THE LOFTY SPLENDOR of the Colorado Spruce is one of the many "ageless and ever green" conifers. The seedling varieties of the spruce, with stalwart, conical design, make excellent windbreaks.

Spreading from three to six feet across the Andorra Compacta Juniper with lacy flat-topped growth to eight feet and plum-purple winter color, 'Blue Rug' Juniper — very prostrate with bright silver-blue branches, and Japanese Garden Juniper which grows to six inches. All are very useful in rock gardens, around pools, with statuary or cascading over walls. For slightly taller ground covers don't overlook the Mugho Pine, a slow-growing dome-shaped dwarf.

There are many dwarf conifers but one that deserves special mention is the little Alberta Spruce. Whether growing in a pot or in a confined area where a small upright is needed the bright green growth and dense habit of the plant grows one inch annually.

If care is taken to select the proper plant for your landscape needs, all evergreens are winners.

Prune most evergreens now

April is the best time to prune most evergreen landscape plants, says Floyd Giles, University of Illinois Extension horticulturist.

Pines, however, are an exception and should not be pruned until May or June when new growth is in the "candle" stage.

Regular pruning each year keeps evergreens at the desired size and prevents the need for doing major pruning on overgrown, neglected evergreens. But too often homeowners leave conifers unpruned because they are unsure how to prune this group of landscape plants, Giles says.

Pruning should preserve the character of the plant and should not drastically alter the natural branch pattern. To maintain the natural form, head back the branches. Cut branches back to side shoots or to buds, using a sharp knife or pruning shears. But only cut off enough wood to shape the plant, continues Giles.

Selectively prune shrubby junipers and yews by heading back the most vigorous branches. Hand pruning shears are better to use than a hedge clipper to maintain the plant's natural form. Finished shrubs should not have a clipped, formal appearance. Junipers and yews put on a second flush of growth about July 1. A second pruning at this time is required.

Trim arborvitae and upright-growing junipers with a hedge clipper to obtain a dense, formal appearance. These plants should have a smooth outline after pruning.

Limit spruce and fir pruning to heading back the shoot growth produced during the preceding prowing season, Giles says. Vigorously growing, straight, unbranched shoots at the branch tips should be cut back to one-third their length. Side buds will develop, producing a denser plant.

Pines are pruned in the candle stage when the new needles are not yet fully formed. They reach this stage in May or June and should be pruned then. The new candles should be cut back to one-third their length. The buds at the base of the shortened candles will produce side shoots, resulting in a denser, more compact plant. The shrubby mugho pine especially needs this pruning, concludes Giles.

'Evergreen'' is an award-winner and the conifers should be performing in your landscape where they will garner prizes for year 'round versatility.

Highly popular because of the variety of shapes and sizes available to fill a multitude of purposes, they are often used to the exclusion of deciduous plants that lose their leaves. The most interesting landscape plantings consist of a balance of evergreens and ciduous materials — the evergreens providing constant color and form as a complement for the seasonally changing "leafy" plants. Those of the deciduous variety bud, flower, fruit and develop their fall color before exposing their tracery of stems to winter snows.

Always favored as the backbone of the foundation planting is the Capitata Yew, a dense cone capable of growing to 12 feet. Tolerant of sun or shade, this beauty is easily trimmed to a very formal shape. Probably one of the most widely grown corner specimens, it will look even better when low ground cover-type evergreens or very low shrubs, such as Crimson Pygmy Barberry, are planted completely around the base to soften the "ground line." Like all yews, a well-drained location is a must.

A number of other concical evergreens are useful, too, but usually as lawn specimens to the side of the house for "framing" or in the back yard since they will dwarf a smaller home if used in the front foundation grouping. An excellent choice in this category, challenging the blue spruce in coloration, is the Concolor Fir. Growing to 40 feet at maturity this broad-based pyramid has longer, softer needles than the spruce and the color is a metallic blue-gray. The Con-color Fir has good heat and drought resistance and retains its lower branches to the ground even at maturity giving it a beautiful silhouette.

The blue spruce with its upright, conical form, is available in many varieties and grades available. Varieties listed in nursery catalogues as "seedling" green or blue Colorado Spruce are grown from seed and vary as to color intensity. The seedling varieties are excellent for windbreaks and the green spruce grows more rapidly than the blue.

When looking for a specimen spruce where the finest silver-blue color is desired the grafted 'Hoopsi' Blue is highly recommended. Grafted spruce are obtained by selecting parent trees with outstanding color and form and propagating them asexually by budding. The 'Hoopsi' Spruce are descended from one parent tree and are genetically identical. The result is uniformity — the trees will always be 100 per cent true to color. The labor and time involved in grafting and training these 'Hoopsi' Spruce makes them somewhat more costly but they are well worth it when you see the results in your yard.

Two unusual conifers are the Swiss Stone Pine, Pinus cembra, hardy, blue-green conifer of medium size, growing slowly to 25 feet and the Dwarf Scotch Pine Pinus sylvestris 'Watereri' prefering full sun and well-drained soil. The needles are more silvery-blue thanthe species Scotch Pine and the growth habit is nearly globular. Compact and very slow growing, at maturity it will be 8-10 feet tall as well as wide.

Becoming more popular in landscape schemes are sculptured evergreens — specimens that have been sheared into various geometric forms exposing the branching structure of the plants. This is a method of pruning and not a plant that has grown this way naturally. Annual pruning is required to retain this appearance. Plants that are widely available as "pompoms," "poodles" and topiaries are 'Canaerti', "Blue Haven' and Blue Pfitzer Junipers. These are specimen plants reflective of the ancient art of bonsai and are particularly effective in rock gardens, courtyards or in free-form islands highlighting a piece of statuary or in combination with rock.

Evergreens are useful as color accents, also. Two examples are the 'Gold Coast' Juniper and the Blue Pfitzer. The 'Gold Coast' is a flat-topped spreader with horizontal branching and bright gold spring and summer foliage. The Blue Pfitzer is a medium-sized spreader, more compact than the common Green Pfitzer with silver-blue needles.

In the landscape, masses of spreading plants are often called for to re peat horizontal lines in the house and the spreading yew is an excellent solution. One that is particularly good is the "Klehm's Spreader'. A very lacy textured yew growing to 5 feet, this variety deserves special mention because it is unusually resistant to windburn even in the severest winters. Many other plants are showing considerable browing this season due to a combination of dry soil, strong winter winds and subzero temperatures for prolonged periods.

One way to control tempoeratures and cut noise pollution is through the use of screens and windbreaks. Colorado Spruce is very effective for this purpose as is the Scotch Pine. Another plant that should be mentioned is the Austrian Pine, a long-needled, broad-based pyramid with dark green leaves. Compact, symmetrical and a rapid grower, if flourishes in a well-drained soil.

If screening is not needed but good formal hedging is, Hick's Yew is the perfect choice. Black-green needles on a perfectly columnar plant, Hick's Yew can grow as tall as six to eight feet and still be no more than three feet wide. Very little pruning is required to maintain a nice formal appearance.

THE LOFTY SPLENDOR of the Colorado Spruce is one of the many "ageless and ever green" conifers. The seedling varieties of the spruce, with stalwart, conical design, make excellent windbreaks.

On an even smaller scale are the low ground cover type evergreens. Spreading from three to six feet across the Andorra Compacta Juniper with lacy flat-topped growth to eight feet and plum-purple winter color, 'Blue Rug' Juniper — very prostrate with bright silver-blue branches, and Japanese Garden Juniper which grows to six inches. All are very useful in rock gardens, around pools, with statuary or cascading over walls. For slightly taller ground covers don't overlook the Mugho Pine, a slow-growing dome-shaped dwarf.

There are many dwarf conifers but one that deserves special mention is the little Alberta Spruce. Whether growing in a pot or in a confined area where a small upright is needed the bright green growth and dense habit of the plant grows one inch annually.

If care is taken to select the proper plant for your landscape needs, all evergreens are winners.

Prune most evergreens now

April is the best time to prune most evergreen landscape plants, says Floyd Giles, University of Illinois Extension horticulturist.

Pines, however, are an exception and should not be pruned until May or June when new growth is in the "candle" stage.

Regular pruning each year keeps evergreens at the desired size and prevents the need for doing major pruning on overgrown, neglected evergreens. But too often homeowners leave conifers unpruned because they are unsure how to prune this group of landscape plants, Giles says.

Pruning should preserve the character of the plant and should not drastically alter the natural branch pattern. To maintain the natural form, head back the branches. Cut branches back to side shoots or to buds, using a sharp knife or pruning shears. But only cut off enough wood to shape the plant, continues Giles.

Selectively prune shrubby junipers and yews by heading back the most vigorous branches. Hand pruning shears are better to use than a hedge clipper to maintain the plant's natural form. Finished shrubs should not have a clipped, formal appearance. Junipers and yews put on a second flush of growth about July 1. A second pruning at this time is required.

Trim arborvitae and upright-growing junipers with a hedge clipper to obtain a dense, formal appearance. These plants should have a smooth outline after pruning.

Limit spruce and fir pruning to heading back the shoot growth produced during the preceding prowing season, Giles says. Vigorously growing, straight, unbranched shoots at the branch tips should be cut back to one-third their length. Side buds will develop, producing a denser plant.

Pines are pruned in the candle stage when the new needles are not yet fully formed. They reach this stage in May or June and should be pruned then. The new candles should be cut back to one-third their length. The buds at the base of the shortened candles will produce side shoots, resulting in a denser, more compact plant. The shrubby mugho pine especially needs this pruning, concludes Giles.

PLANT A "SALAD TOP" tomato in a decorative pot and place on a sunny kitchen window sill. It will begin to set fruit when only four to five inches high, and produce an abundance of 1 to 1½-inch bright red-tomatoes for salads and snacking. The attractive, well-shaped plants grow only 18 inches tall, making "Salad Top" ideal for container growing.

Garden offers solution to noise pollution

Heavy street traffic registers a noise level of about 70 decibels. The American Association of Nurserymen advised that proper landscaping can reduce noise by about 60 per cent. Plant parts break up sound waves, change their direction and reduce their intensity. Among various types of buffer plantings available are hedges, trees, shrubs, grasses, vines and combinations of these.

Want a finer lawn? Then read this!

Last summer, was your lawn starting to thin out? Brown patches showing up here and there? To much shade, or too many kids playing on it to give it a chance?

It doesn't make much difference whether you are starting from scratch with a new lawn or your lawn is ten, twenty-five or fifty years old; here are some facts you should consider:

WITH AN OLD LAWN you don't have to put up with a scuffy, unsightly lawn you are ashamed of . . .

WITH A NEW LAWN you can avoid the discouragement and problems mentioned above.

HERE IS WHY: Research facilities, established nearly a third of a century ago by Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc., have under observation over 1,000 strains and species of lawn grasses. Several of these new grass discoveries have had excellent ratings from universities who are doing turfgrass research. They have no financial interest in the sale of these new grasses.

One of these grasses is BenSun ® (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass which outranks all other bluegrasses in most of the categories studied and tested. For example:

BenSun (A-34) is rated the most shade tolerant of any bluegrass.

BenSun (A-34) is the only grass to receive an excellent rating for wear tolerance.

BenSun (A-34) is rated at or near the top in disease resistance.

BenSun (A-34) has been under observation for twenty-five years and has been performance proven on hundreds of thousands of lawns, athletic fields and golf courses for the past eighteen years. No other recent bluegrass development has had such a long experience of successful ratings and performance.

BenSun (A-34) thrives in hot or cold climates, high or low altitudes and does well on good or poor soils.

BenSun (A-34) is the most hardy bluegrass available. When injured it springs back quickly, healing the injury in a very short time.

BenSun (A-34) was the only grass to remain green during the recent drought in England and Scotland. Tees at St. Andrews Golf Course planted with BenSun (A-34) remained green even when not watered regularly.

BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass is available as sod, sod plugs or seed. The sod and sod plugs of BenSun (A-34) are guaranteed against loss from growth failure. BenSun (A-34) Sun & Shade Mixture Lawngrass Seed is guaranteed as follows:

"If you are not satisified with the results obtained from this seed, return the empty box with proof of purchase within 6 months to Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. You will be supplied with more seed or your money will be refunded, your choice."

For every person who sees the inside of your home, thousands will see your lawn and landscaping around your home. So when renovating an old lawn or establishing a new lawn why not insist on the finest lawn possible at the lowest price possible . . . BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass. You, your children and maybe your grandchildren will be glad you did. BenSun (A-34) is like a diamond . . . it is forever.

BenSun (A-34) is a product of the world's largest, one of the oldest and most experienced grower of fine lawns.

THE FIBROUS-ROOTED begonia, called Glamour Picotee, is an attractive addition to the hybrid series introduced by the Pan-American Seed Co. last year. Picotee flaunts white flowers, up to 2½ inches in diameter, delicately embroidered with a rose edge, against glossy deep green foliage. Plants flower when only 3 inches high and bloom continuously in either sun or partial shade. Heat and high humidity of midsummer do not discourage them. Mature plants are about 10 inches high. Use them in tubs, window boxes, hanging baskets, in mass plantings or as edging plants.

Harvest green onions in two months

You can have green onions from your garden in six to eight weeks if you plant sets now, said James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois Extension horticulturist in Cook County.

Planting sets is the easiest and surest way to grow onions. Sets are small bulbs less than an inch in diameter that have been grown from last year's seed. You can buy them in grocery, seed, garden and hardware stores.

Plant onion sets anytime the soil can be worked, now in most of Illinois. A little frost will not injure them, adds Fizzell. If you plan to use them as green onions, place the sets upright in a furrow about three to four inches deep. By setting them upright you prevent crooked green onions from forming. Place the sets about one inch apart in the row. At this spacing, one pound of sets will plant a 25-foot row.

IF YOU WANT to grow dry onions to use after the growing season, space the sets three to four inches apart in a furrow one to two inches deep. One pound of onion sets will plant a row 50 feet long.

Early planted sets are less affected by blast, thrips or air pollution than those grown from seed or transplants, notes Fizzell. Also, weeds are less of a problem when you grow onions from sets.

Dry onions will be ready to harvest in three to four months — about late August or early September. Harvest onions when the necks are thoroughly dry or about 95 per cent of the tops have bent over. Pull the onions and place them under cover to finish drying. Cut off the tops about an inch above the bulb, place in a well ventilated container such as a mesh bag, and store in a cool, dry place.

Lawn requires careful mowing

Proper mowing is the key to a good lawn. A well-cut lawn with a dense, uniform surface improves the aesthetic value of the lawn and helps in the fight against weeds and disease says James E. Schuster, extension horticulturist at the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service office in Wheaton.

Proper mowing means cutting at the right height at the right time, and using the right mower.

Proper mowing height for most turf grasses is about two inches. Kentucky bluegrass varieties, red fescue, any ryegrass do best if maintained at this level.

Cutting grass too short weakens the plants and increases their susceptibility to disease and insect attack. Also weeds such as crabgrass grow well in short turf.
and detracts from a lawn's appear- and detracts from a lawns appearance. Mow often enough so that no more than one-third of the grass leaf is removed.

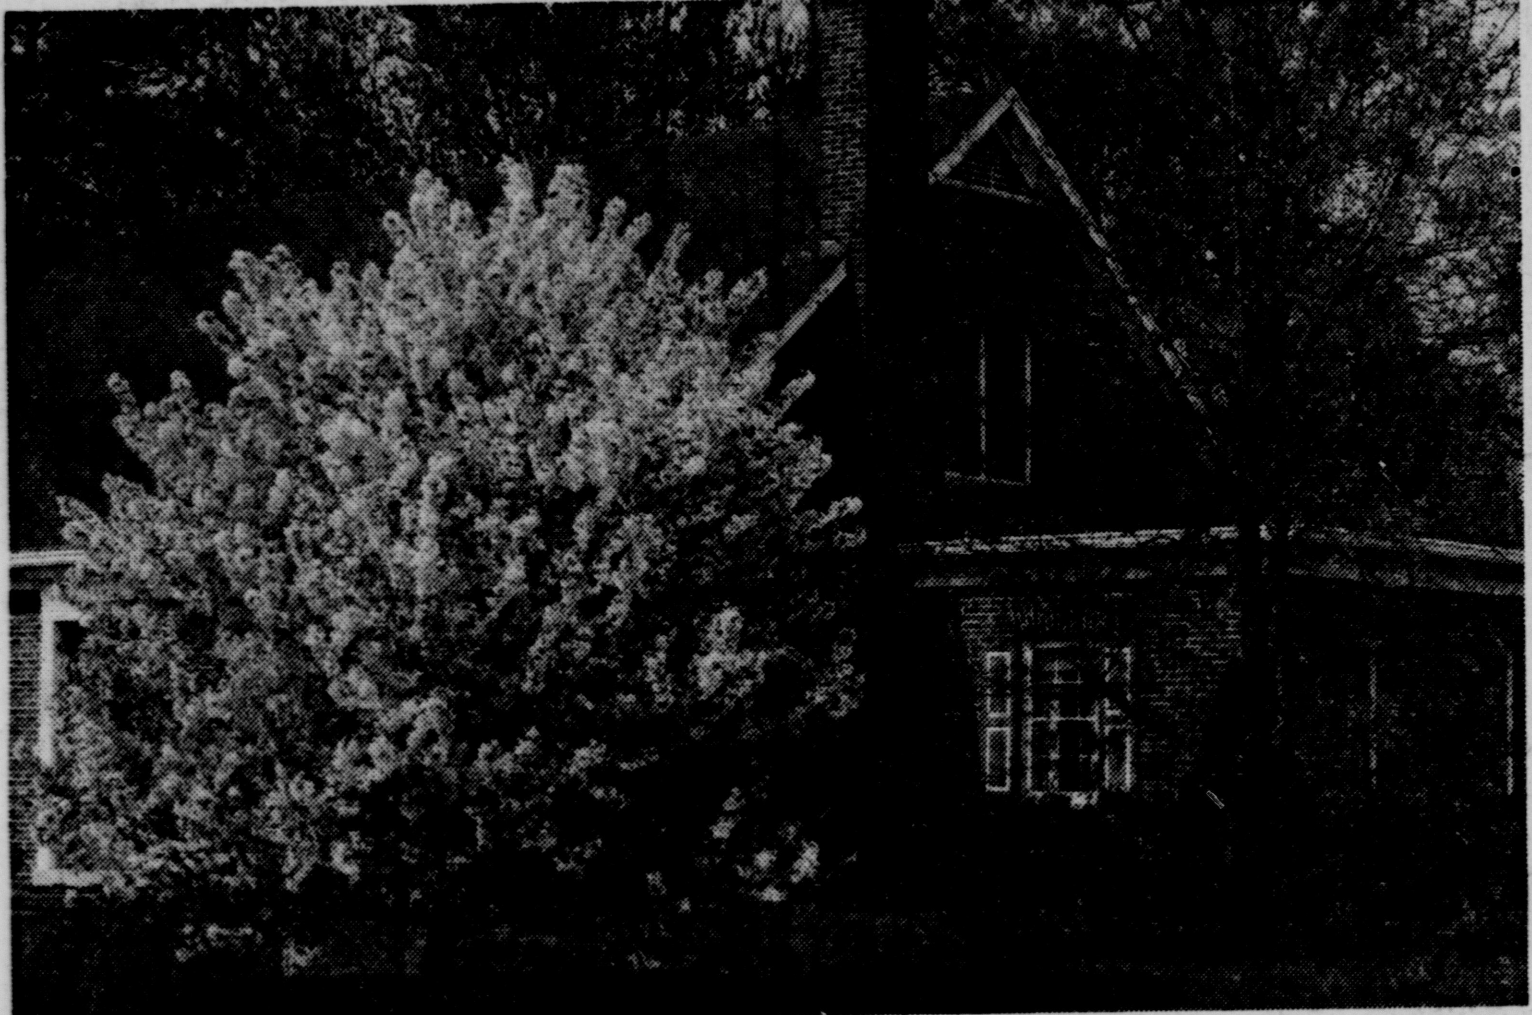
This means to maintain a two-inch height, the grass should be mowed before it exceeds three inches. In wet weather, it may be necessary to mow twice a week to do this.

Clippings from a properly mowed lawn should not be collected. They are actually beneficial in providing essential plant nutrients and organic matter to the soil. And, a pile of grass clippings or plastic bag of grass on the curb all weekend definitely detracts from the looks of an otherwise well-kept lawn.

Whether a reel mower or a rotary is used, it should be kept sharp. Reel mowers are more apt to stay sharp all season because they cut by positive shearing action.

Rotary mowers should be sharpened every four to 15 hours of running time. If inspection of cut leaves shows the grass is being torn instead of cut, sharpen the mower sooner.

Mowers, particularly rotarys are inherently dangerous. Keep them well sharpened and run them only fast enough to do the job, warns Schuster.



THE ORNAMENTAL flowering crabapple tree has resplendent spring blooms that make it one of the finest of landscape additions. The berries of the crabapple attract the birds and the foliage offers colorful autumn hues.

THE FIBROUS-ROOTED begonia, called Glamour Picotee, is an attractive addition to the hybrid series introduced by the Pan-American Seed Co. last year. Picotee flaunts white flowers, up to 2½ inches in diameter, delicately embroidered with a rose edge, against glossy deep green foliage. Plants flower when only 3 inches high and bloom continuously in either sun or partial shade. Heat and high humidity of midsummer do not discourage them. Mature plants are about 10-inches high. Use them in tubs, window boxes, hanging baskets, in mass plantings or as edging plants.

Harvest green onions in two months

You can have green onions from your garden in six to eight weeks if you plant sets now, said James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois Extension horticulturist in Cook County.

Planting sets is the easiest and surest way to grow onions. Sets are small bulbs less than an inch in diameter that have been grown from last year's seed. You can buy them in grocery, seed, garden and hardware stores.

Plant onion sets anytime the soil can be worked, now in most of Illinois. A little frost will not injure them, adds Fizzell. If you plan to use them as green onions, place the sets upright in a furrow about three to four inches deep. By setting them upright you prevent crooked green onions from forming. Place the sets about one inch apart in the row. At this spacing, one pound of sets will plant a 25-foot row.

IF YOU WANT to grow dry onions to use after the growing season, space the sets three to four inches apart in a furrow one to two inches deep. One pound of onion sets will plant a row 50 feet long.

Early planted sets are less affected by blast, thrips or air pollution than those grown from seed or transplants, notes Fizzell. Also, weeds are less of a problem when you grow onions from sets.

Dry onions will be ready to harvest in three to four months — about late August or early September. Harvest onions when the necks are thoroughly dry or about 95 per cent of the tops have bent over. Pull the onions and place them under cover to finish drying. Cut off the tops about an inch above the bulb, place in a well ventilated container such as a mesh bag, and store in a cool, dry place.

Lawn requires careful mowing

Proper mowing is the key to a good lawn. A well-cut lawn with a dense, uniform surface improves the aesthetic value of the lawn and helps in the fight against weeds and disease says James E. Schuster, extension horticulturist at the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service office in Wheaton.

Proper mowing means cutting at the right height at the right time, and using the right mower.

Proper mowing height for most turf grasses is about two inches. Kentucky bluegrass varieties, red fescue, any ryegrass do best if maintained at this level.

Cutting grass too short weakens the plants and increases their susceptibility to disease and insect attack. Also weeds such as crabgrass grow well in short turf.
